WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

Wall Street's Incubator.
The Dean's for Eugenics.
Hawks' New Triumph.
The Prohibition Verdict.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE WALL STREET baby had another pain yesterday. One firm failed, as an aftermath of stock gambling, and men that should know better will be frightened by this little incident in the richest country in the world.

From the biggest business men to the smallest nobody, we all should stop talking pessimism, and, instead, show signs of energy and courage. If we did, conditions would be better.

IN MODERN incubators there are no sharp corners, the inside being made round to keep chicks from crowding into a corner and smothering each other.

Wall Street needs to be rebuilt apparently on incubator principles. Those easily scared to death are inclined to crawl into a corner and smother each other's prosperity.

DEAN INGE, of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, most important clergyman, warns his fellows in the church that they must not "ignore the eugenists," namely, those interested in producing better children.

Nature does not know anything, according to the dean. We have scientific knowledge, and if we don't use it, that is "counted to us for a sin."

THE DEAN even takes an interest in the theory that a woman should be allowed to regulate the size of her family.

There is something in the statement that nature doesn't always function perfectly. Of the first two brothers born on earth by nature's process, Cain and Abel, one killed the other.

ANOTHER OCEAN hop started yesterday, when Capt. Boyd and Lieut. Connor left Harbor Grace, just before noon, on the way to England.

The most remarkable flying news is that Capt. Hawks, who now ranks as the first flier in America, or anywhere else on earth, flew from Philadelphia to New York City in 20 minutes, his average speed 270 miles an hour.

THAT SPEED, if sustained, would make the trip to Paris in less than half the Lindbergh time.

Those now living will become used to this advertisement:

"New York to Paris or London in 10 hours, with refund for any delay of more than 30 minutes."

MR. WICKERSHAM, head of President Hoover's commission on prohibition, intimates that a report will soon be made, and is said to believe that if the impossibility of enforcing prohibition is proved, that fact should be stated.

ALREADY MANY leading politicians, including the Republican and Democratic candidates for governor in New York, have declared that prohibition is a failure, also a criminal injury to the country, and should be repealed.

The daily murder news, bootleg news, racketeering and general crime wave news indicate the necessity of reaching some decision as early as possible.

AS REGARDS any change in prohibition, the probabilities, in the opinion of one humble observer, is that government, in obedience to public opinion in large cities, will ignore the law, not repeal it.

This would put the country on a permanent basis of whisky made by bootleggers, beer made by those that don't know how to make it, everyone allowed to drink as much, and die as soon, as he chooses.

IT IS SAID the British never repeal a law, but let it die of its own accord. The British rule that a man may beat his wife with a stick no bigger around than his thumb remained law, long after such beatings had lost public approval.

EARTHQUAKES DISTURB many parts of Europe, including Germany, Austria and Italy. Yesterday buildings in Vienna were cracked, chimneys shaken down.

A hundred years ago it would have been said that the human race was being punished, if a little late, for its wickedness in the great war.

But men recently have concluded that the laws of nature run along evenly, and are not used by Providence to punish the wicked.

They would not believe as they did in 1680 that St. Sebastian sent a plague, killing thousands, because no monument had been erected to him, and stopped the plague when the monument was hastily completed.

NEW YORK CITY does not seem to feel any hard times pinch. It is announced that in 1931 the city will spend 51 millions more than in 1930.

The additional millions could easily be spent wisely, usefully and productively. Perhaps they will be.

New York City, spending more than six hundred million dollars in 1931, will spend more than twice as much as the United States Government used to spend in the days of Tom Reed and the "billion-dollar Congress."

HURLS APPLE AT ASSAILANT

Betty Letender, 25, waitress, of 2242 Berg street, today in Morals Court told of beating off a youth who had seized her as she was waiting for a street car near Arlington avenue and Eleanor street, early Wednesday.

She said:

"I threw an apple I was eating at his face, beat him and screamed."

She identified James Metzgar, 17, of 219 Renne street, who was arraigned before Magistrate T. D. Jones, as her assailant. He admitted the charge, saying Miss Letender was the second young woman he had grabbed in the last year. He was fined $50 with the alternative of 30 days in the workhouse.

Stand of Political Leaders To Be Shown at Rally; Business Chiefs Bolt

The local political situation had these highlights today:

1—The Republican organization leaders were summoning their forces to the first general pre-election rally to be held in Hotel Henry tonight. The turnout will reveal, leaders conceded, just how firmly the Francis Shunk Brown adherents mean to support Gifford Pinchot, gubernatorial candidate.

2—Leaders were speculating on the effect the latest Liberal party move of swinging a powerful group of industrial and financial leaders into the Hemphill camp would have on the campaign.

An indication of the degree of support Gifford Pinchot will receive in his campaign for governor from local politicians who opposed him in the primary may be disclosed at a meeting tonight in Hotel Henry headquarters, called by Republican County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong.

Armstrong led the primary fight against Pinchot as chairman of the committee for James J. Davis, for United States Senator, and Francis Shunk Brown, for Governor, and he was joined by the entire county payroll, including elected officials, excepting County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

Mayor Charles H. Kline threw his support to the Davis-Brown slate and had the assistance of members of Council and the en-

Rally Ends Stocks' Crash

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The stock market closed with a strong tone today, after a dizzy sinking spell during the early hours of trading. Net advances of 2 to 6 points were numerous.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Wall Street held its breath for a few hours today while the stock market made a dizzy dive, only to land on its feet and bound upwards.

Selling such as had not been seen since those dark days last autumn poured on to the floor of the exchange in the afternoon, sweeping away hundreds of millions of dollars in quoted values and sending such old market stalwarts as United States Steel common, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone and Pennsylvania Railroad to new lows for the year or considerably longer.

The general market came back with a snap after a sharp recovery in stocks of companies identified with Harley Clarke, of Chicago. These shares included Fox Film, which regained a $10 loss, and Utilities Power and Light Class A, which regained more than half of a $9 decline.

Some of the heaviest selling of the year broke prices relentlessly during the morning, but when the turn came early in the afternoon shorts began to cover frantically.

DINE, BUY RUM, THEN RAID CLUB

Prohibition agents dined and danced with the hostess of a rural night club at Orchard, Westmoreland County, in obtaining evidence against the place, they testified in appearing before a U. S. commissioner today against the woman and four men, charged with violating the liquor laws.

The agents testified to visiting the Orchard Hotel twice recently and buying liquor. A raid followed last night.

Miss Lydia Hisker, 30, identified as the hostess and Melvin J. George, the alleged owner, were held for Federal Court in $2,000 bail each, charged with sale and possession of liquor.

Constable C. D. Jones, of Adamsburg, Pa., and Oscar J. Meyers, 415 Larimer avenue, Turtle Creek, were held in $500 bond each, charged with possessing liquor. Burgess Paul C. Crabell, of Adamsburg, was discharged. Agents testified that Crabell, Jones and Meyers drove up to the hotel in an auto that contained liquor, as the raid began. No liquor was found on Crabell, they said.

WILMERDING POLITICIAN CONVICTED

Arthur Volpe Found Guilty In Slot Machine Case; Winkler Star Witness

Arthur Volpe, one of the four Volpe brothers of Wilmerding, reputed political bosses, was found guilty of maintaining gambling devices, in a sealed verdict read at the opening of Criminal Court today before Judge J. Frank Graff.

Attorney Frank J. Zappala, in behalf of Volpe, notified the court he would file a motion for a new trial. He has five days in which to do so.

YEAR MAXIMUM

The maximum penalty is a fine of $500 or one year imprisonment, or both.

After five postponements, Volpe's trial began late yesterday.

Volpe, in Beau Brummel attire, a huge diamond stud in his tie dazzling the eyes of the jurors, watched the proceedings.

Chief County Detective George W. Murren testified he made the information against Volpe at the direction of Judge James B. Drew. This was after Tony Winkler had pleaded guilty to maintaining gambling devices in a clubroom in Middle street, Wilmerding, before Judge Drew, and told the judge Volpe owned the slot machines. That night Winkler was set upon and beaten. He returned to the district attorney's office the next day and told of the beating, and later testified before the grand jury.

For various reasons the case was postponed, but was definitely set for trial two weeks ago.

WINKLER TESTIFIES

Then Winkler, the star witness, suddenly disappeared. County detectives, set to watch, found him when he returned a few days after the case had again been postponed, and subpenaed him.

Yesterday Winkler testified so reluctantly that he was cross-examined by Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson.

This ended the state's case and Attorney Frank J. Zappala, for Volpe, without offering any evidence, made a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal. Judge Graff refused it.

"Baering" Down On the News With Arthur "Bugs" Baer

This week 49 U. S. war vessels were sacrificed to the mail-order system of peace.

A bite a day will wear away the strongest apple. The Navy is selling its old clothes to the junkman. But it will need a new dress for the next party.

This instalment of patriotic wrecks indicates our desire for peace in its most virulent form.

Bugs Baer

It also strengthens the suspicion that the Declaration of Independence would have been a fine document if we hadn't forgotten to take up the option.

We thought the Navy was paid for until the commandant's wife answer the doorbell and yelled:

"Sam the man is here for the boats."

The Army has already been reduced to a news reel. The next time President Hoover reviews the Navy he will do it in a diving bell.

We hope they stop sinking all those guns and scrap iron off Long Island. Not that it means anything, but it spoils the taste of the oysters.

MOTOR FAILS IN SIGHT OF GOAL

International News Service.

CROYDON, England, Oct. 10.—With their veteran plane crippled by engine trouble, Capt. J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry P. Connor made a forced landing on an isolated beach in the Scilly Islands today, successfully spanning the Atlantic Ocean from east to west and earning new laurels for an old machine that had a previous ocean crossing to its credit, but failing to reach their goal, London.

Word received by air ministry officials here said the plane had come down at Trescoe, near St. Mary's in the Scilly Islands, off the western-most tip of England.

ENGINE FAILED

A message to the airministry from the Trescoe coast guard, timed 5:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m. eastern standard time), said the fliers had come down near there because of engine trouble. The time of their landing was not revealed in the message.

The flight started yesterday at 11:20 a. m. from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

First reports reaching Croydon failed to give details of the forced descent, stating merely that engine trouble had caused the airmen to bring down their plane.

SEEN BY STEAMER EARLIER

News of the forced landing was the first word to come through since the Columbia had been sighted at 9:20 a. m., eastern standard time, by the British steamer Virginia 200 miles west of Penzance, on the west coast of Cornwall.

Two other ships had sighted the Columbia, one of them 100 miles northeast of Cape Race yesterday and the other at 5:40 p. m., 400 miles east of Harbor Grace.

The plane, in which Chamberlin and Levine flew to Germany three years ago from New York, and which has achieved a multitude of flying feats, confronted a good deal of fog along its course but had generally favorable winds

CHICAGO HAILS HEARST

By JOHN W. DIENHART.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Chicago welcomed William Randolph Hearst with open arms.

Thousands of cheering men and women hailed him as his car passed over the 25-mile route of the parade.

Thousands more yelled themselves hoarse as he entered the Soldier Field Stadium to receive the formal tributes of the community.

It was a demonstration the magnitude and fervor of which had never before been seen here. It was also a demonstration in protest of the action of the French government in recently ordering the publisher to leave France for having exposed the secret Anglo-French naval treaty.

BUSINESS LEADERS HERE JOIN MOVEMENT FOR HEMPHILL

FORM GROUP TO DEFEAT PINCHOT

Financial and Utilities Men Regard Ex-Governor as Dangerous Economically

Republican politicians here today appear to be maintaining party regularity in contrast with Philadelphia leaders who have bolted Gifford Pinchot for John M. Hemphill, Democratic nominee for governor, but financial and utility company executives, usually Republicans, are joining the movement to defeat Pinchot.

A score of men, prominent in local financial, utilities and industrial activities were announced last night by Arthur M. Scully, Liberal party county chairman, as members of the Liberal party's executive committee.

Political observers pointed out that this group included executives of a number of important Mellon group corporations and others with public utility affiliations.

The group also included E. T. Whiter, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who in allowing his name to be used in behalf of Hemphill was putting himself into the camp in which Gen. W. W. Atterbury, the Pennsylvania's president, placed himself yesterday by resigning from the State Republican Committee.

ISSUE STATEMENT

The new committee announced a belief that the best contribution that can be made at this time to the promotion and stabilization of employment and industry and to the safeguarding of the public welfare generally is to keep "Pinchotism" out of the state government. The statement read:

"This committee opposes the election of Gifford Pinchot because he is the spokesman of an unsound and dangerous economic demagogy, and because the times cry aloud for sane conservative and constructive leadership in public office.

"The time has come when business men, called upon to bear heavy responsibilities as employers and taxpayers, in justice to themselves and their public obligations, no longer can afford to keep silent or inactive.

"The record, the platform and the personal qualities of John M. Hemphill, justify complete confidence that under his leadership, a high standard of public policy will be assured at the state capital."

COMMITTE MEMBERS

VETERANS HOST

Former service men of the World War will be hosts to Hemphill, former captain of the 47th Infantry, 4th Division, at a dinner next Wednesday night in Hotel Schenley. Hemphill's comrades plan to present him with a silver plaque in recognition of valor he displayed in France.

Scheduled speakers are Scully; Gen. Mark Hersey, of the 4th Division, and Arno S. McClellan, of Waynesburg, former captain of Company C, 4th Division.

DRY HEAD HINTS VOLSTEAD ACT CHANGE

Congress May Modify Law, Doran Says in Debate Before Church Group

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The possibility of changes by Congress in the prohibition enforcement act has been suggested by James M. Doran, in charge of the industrial alcohol division at the Treasury.

He expressed the opinion last night that the Eighteenth Amendment would be retained when he asserted:

"It may be that Congress will change the enforcement act in some part. But in any event Congress must enact proper enforcement laws in order to be mentally honest. There is nothing sacrosanct about always holding that more than one-half on 1 per cent of alcohol content is illegal."

DORAN IN DEBATE

Doran's remarks were made before a church group in a three-cornered debate on what should be done about prohibition. The other participants were Edward B. Danford, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League, who upheld the dry laws, and Rufus Lusk, an official of the Washington branch of Crusaders, predicting prohibition repeal.

President Hoover's law enforcement commission, after a three-day discussion of prohibition, adjourned this afternoon until next Wednesday when work will be continued on the dry law report promised for December.

None of the members would discuss the evidence obtained.

Several members will remain in the capital to prepare the vast amount of new material already gathered as a basis for the commission's prohibition statement.

Several commissioners prepared to carry away with them voluminous mimeographed reports for study.

POISON LIQUOR KILLS 4 IN BOSTON

International News Service.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Four persons, including one woman, were dead today from poison liquor and between 500 and 600 persons were in hospitals, many suffering from paralysis and blindness, while rumblings continued over whether officials had been lax in prohibition law enforcement during the American Legion convention just ended. Hospital authorities said that few of the hospital patients were Legionnaires.

Nine defendants, including one Legionnaire from Little Falls, N. Y., were arraigned in Federal Court for alleged violations of the prohibition law. The Legionnaire pleading guilty of possessing liquor, was fined $250.

DISPUTE WITH DRYS

On the heels of an address by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, prominent "dry" worker, in which she accused the Boston Police Department of winking at open violations of the prohibition law, and denounced Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards for his alleged "wet" activities attendant upon the convention, came statements by Supt. Michael J. Crowley, Federal Prohibition Administrator Jonathan Lewis, Conrad W. Crooker, of the Liberal Civic League, and Gen. Edwards.

Supt. Crowley denied Mrs. Peabody's accusations and said that she "saw more than the police did," but if she would present proof he would be glad to investigate.

Administrator Lewis, emphatically stating that the liquor situation was not to be blamed on the Legion, declared that it was evident that big liquor interests had attempted to capitalize on the big celebration.

EDWARDS REPLIES

Gen. Edwards, in replying to a statement by Mrs. Peabody that "a general had opened a booth in a hotel to work for repeal of a state law," stated that the office referred to was the headquarters of the Women's Association for Prohibition Reform, and not his, but that he was heartily in accord with its policies.

Meanwhile, by train, steamboat and automobile, visitors and legion delegates continued their departure to their homes today, leaving hotel lobbies and streets with a strange air of silence in contrast to the tumult and shouts that characterized the week of the twelfth annual convention.

AUTO FUMES KILL BANK HEAD

Rescuers Battle for Hours To Save Lester L. Swaney, Overcome in Own Garage

Eight policemen, three doctors and crews from the United States Bureau of Mines and the Mine Safety Appliance Company fought a losing battle for hours today in an effort to save the life of Lester L. Swaney, 52, bank president, found unconscious from gas fumes in his garage in the rear of his home, 1526 Murray avenue.

Four hours after he was found by L. C. Richardson, his brother-in-law, physicians pronounced him dead.

DOORS OPEN

Swaney, president of the Peoples State Bank of East Pittsburgh, went to the garage at 9:30 p. m. yesterday to work on his car. When he failed to return at 11:30, Richardson went to call him and found him unconscious in the garage, the doors of which were open. The engine of the automobile was running.

Police of the Squirrell Hill station and several doctors were called. The emergency squad of the East End station, with an inhalator, was attending a three-alarm fire at Twenty-sixth street and Liberty avenue. The squad was summoned to the Swaney home. Other calls were sent to the Bureau of Mines and the Mine Safety Appliance Company, which sent rescue crews with inhalators and tanks of oxygen. Their combined efforts failed, and shortly before 3 a. m. the victim was pronounced dead.

WAS POSTMASTER

Swaney was born in Shippingport, Pa. When a young man he moved to McKeesport, where he attended public school. Later he studied at Allegheny College, at Meadville, and the law school of the University of Pittsburgh.

In 1903 he was appointed postmaster of East Pittsburgh, later being associated with the H. Windt Real Estate Company, of that town. In 1919 he aided in organizing the Peoples State Bank, and four years ago was made president.

He was a member of various Masonic bodies, the Loyal Order of Moose, the Eagles, B. P. O. Elks, the Bankers' Club of Pittsburgh, Rotary Club, East Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the Alcoma Country Club, Phi Gamma fraternity and the Sixth Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh.

He leaves his widow, a son, Lester L. Swaney, Jr., and his mother, Mrs. Fred Englert, of McKeesport.

OPERA SINGER IN DEATH LEAP

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The woman who leaped or fell to her death from the roof of the Warburton House, a hotel exclusively for women, was identified today as Mrs. Thomas Haskins Graham, 54, a former opera singer, of Stroudsburg, Pa.

Identification was made by Mrs. Graham Dougherty, of Wyncote, chairman of the board of trustees of Warburton House.

Police said they had learned that Mrs. Graham had gone from her room on the eighth floor to the roof, one floor above. A parapet four feet high surrounds the roof and a folding camp chair was found against it, indicating Mrs. Graham had climbed to the parapet.

Mrs. Graham was born in Budapest, Hungary, and it was there she first sang in opera. Later she toured South America and also sang in Germany in the company with Madame Schumann-Heink. She was married in Europe in 1917 to Thomas Haskins Graham, a mining engineer, who was one of the developers of the Pocahontas coal fields of West Virginia.

tire city organization excepting State Senator James J. Coyne, who worked for Pinchot and Senator Joseph R. Grundy.

START ACTION

In calling tonight's meeting, Armstrong sent invitations to Mayor Kline and his cabinet, city councilmen, ward chairmen, county officials, leaders in legislative districts outside Pittsburgh, and Republican nominees from Allegheny County for Congress and the State Assembly who are up for election November 4.

No program for the meeting has been announced, but it is believed that if a genuine effort is to be made to elect Pinchot, Chairman Armstrong will set the wheels in motion for an active campaign by arranging for the collection of money to finance the fight, by appointing committees for meetings and the selection of speakers, and by arousing district workers to action.

Revolt Against Pinchot Spreads Over State

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The breach in the Republican party of Pennsylvania is growing.

Starting with the revolt of powerful Philadelphia leaders against the candidacy of Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, leading Republicans in other parts of the state have declared for John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal opponent of Pinchot.

What is considered in political circles as one of the most important recent developments in a campaign that is daily growing more bitter was the resignation of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, as Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania.

Four members of the Philadelphia Republican organization have bolted Pinchot for Hemphill. William S. Vare, leader of the organization, is reported ready to turn in for Hemphill as soon as he recovers from a cold which has kept him confined to his Atlantic City home.

DELAY AIR MAIL INAUGURATION

The trans-continental air mail service, which was scheduled for inauguration October 15 by Trans-Continental and Western Air, will not be begun for about two weeks.

It had been planned to inaugurate the service carrying both mail and passengers from Columbus to the West Coast, but only mail on the first eastern leg.

By waiting two weeks, according to Harris M. Hanshue, president of the company, communication lines could be completed between New York and Columbus, and when the service is started, both mail and passengers then could be carried across the country.

Hanshue said the Postoffice Department had approved the postponement. The mail contract was awarded jointly to the Western Air Express and the Trans-Continental Air Transport-Maddux Lines, which with Pittsburgh and Aviation Industries, formed the subsidy of the Trans-Continental Western Air to operate the service.

Local officials said everything is in readiness here for the service.

Mediation in Brazil Advocated by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

With all the efforts that are made for peace among nations it is discouraging to see a civil war in Brazil. That country exceeds the United States in area and has a population of about 40,000,000, which is nearly 25 per cent more than our population when the war between the North and South came in 1861. The foreign commerce of Brazil is about $900,000,000 each year, of which more than one-third is with the United States.

Calvin Coolidge

While improper conduct of the government is alleged, the issues involved are obscure. They seem to be partly racial antagonism between Anglo-Saxon and Latin groups but fundamentally they are economic. The pressure of hard times and low prices has crystallized in revolt. It is important everywhere for a government to do its best to promote prosperity. In a country so large with population and resources so great, it is possible that a long and devastating struggle is commencing. Outside interference would be a delicate matter but if the League of Nations and other foreign countries would offer mediation humanity would be served.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Oct. 10.—(INS.)—Dorothy Mackaye today kept a promise to her former fellow convicts at San Quentin Prison.

When the young actress left the prison on January 1, 1929, after serving eight months for suppressing evidence in connection with the killing of her husband, Ray Raymond, by Paul Kelly, in Los Angeles, she said:

"I'll not forget you, my dearies. I'll remember you the first time I come to San Francisco, after I've made my 'Comeback,' and I'll come to see you."

Today Dorothy Mackaye kept her promise.

By special permission of Warden James B. Holohan, she spent more than an hour in the women's quarters of the prison, and later had lunch with the warden.

Miss Mackaye's visit was unheralded, and she was welcomed vociferously by her former prison associates when they had recovered from their surprise of seeing an ex-convict on the prison reservation as a visitor.

Among the women who greeted her was Clara Phillips, Los Angeles "hammer murderess." Dorothy Ellingson, San Francisco matricide, and many others who were her friends and companions during her prison sentence.

"My New York attorney handled the whole thing. I did not appear in it. I think the suit was brought in one of the upstate counties—Ulster County, if I remember rightly."

In the same case, DeRosa, John Capocciano and K. E. Dettola, members of the board, pleaded guilty to negligence a year ago. Sentence in that case has been deferred.

THOUSANDS HAIL HEARST IN CHICAGO

merson and the state, said to the stadium throng:

"Illinois, in the very heart of the greatest nation on earth, whose hallowed soil holds the remains of the immortal Lincoln, joins its sister states, east and west, in extending a most sincere and wholehearted welcome to the able and widely-known native son of California.

"In doing so it expresses in no uncertain manner its resentment of an unwarranted affront to a leading American citizen by a foreign power from whom, because of international ties and relations dating back to the period of Lafayette and carried on through to the close of the World War, only favor and friendship might reasonably be expected."

"Mr. Hearst is the greatest living American today. This is living American today."

HEARST APPLAUDED

He told of the "polite but firm" request that he leave France and continued:

"The French government said that the publication of the treaty was an act of hostility to France. My friends, I am not an enemy of France or of any foreign country, but my first allegiance is to my own country and to my own people, and I have no divided allegiance."

'U. S. SAVED FRANCE'

Vociferous applause interrupted his remarks. When quiet was restored, Mr. Hearst resumed:

"When our brave soldiers sailed across the seas to fight in a foreign land, in a foreign war, they did not do this for love of France, but for love of America.

"They found France tottering on the verge of an abyss. They raised her from the very grave of defeat and placed her on a pinnacle of safety and success.

"And I do not see how the dullest mind or the shortest memory in all France could fail to remember and to realize that loyalty to America does not mean hostility to France.

"In conclusion, I want to say that anything I did in securing that treaty and publishing it for your information and for what I believe to be the best interests of my country, I would do tomorrow again in just the same way."

"Atta boy!" called the Mayor above the tumult of the cheering that followed.

SCROLL PRESENTED

Flanking Mr. Hearst on the Stadium platform were 32 G. A. R. veterans, representing five posts. One of them, Bert Crouse, 80 years old, came from Pauline, O., to pay personally his respects to Mr. Hearst and to participate in the ceremonies.

As Mr. Hearst was about to take his seat, he was presented with a testimonial scroll by Maj. Frank Lee Beals, on behalf of the Reserve Officers Training Corps of the Chicago High schools.

"The future of the country depends on the future of you children, and I am sure the country is in safe hands," responded the publisher.

The ceremonies and demonstration started a few hours after Mr. Hearst arrived from Washington, where he was President Hoover's dinner guest in the White House.

REVIEWS PARADE

It officially got under way at 1:30 p. m., when Mr. Hearst, accompanied by state, county and city officials, reviewed a parade of 2,000 high school bandsmen, 50 elaborately decorated floats depicting dramatic moments in early American history, the Black Horse Troop of the Illinois National Guard, and the other units which participated in the Stadium exercises.

As the parade flowed north in Michigan avenue, to Jackson and east to the Stadium, the official guest of the city and county was speeded between lines of cheering people to Twenty-third street and the outer drive. Then he was taken on a 25-mile trip over the North, West and South Sides, accompanied by 5,000 decorated automobiles and 50 bands.

As his car entered the Stadium grounds, an hour and 40 minutes later, 1,000 aerial bombs exploded in a great burst of thunder high over the heads of the throng. From the clouds of smoke emerged 1,000 American flags. The grand march was the signal for the release of 40,000 red, white and blue balloons.

Text of W. R. Hearst's Chicago Day Address

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The address of William Randolph Hearst, delivered at Soldier Field, follows:

My friends, your Mayor has asked me to say a few words about the secret Anglo-French treaty which I and my associates secured and published, for which I was expelled from France.

Let me say that the treaty was secured, as the French courts have themselves decided, by no dishonorable means but simply by a practical application of Chicago's motto, "I WILL."

We knew that the secret treaty was under negotiation by two of America's late allies.

We knew that America had been invited into the war but had not been invited into this treaty.

We knew that America had the right to know what was in the treaty.

We thought that it was our duty as journalists and as American citizens to get the treaty and publish it. So we got it and published it for the information of our fellow citizens.

The French government declared that this publication was an act of hostility to France and that I was an enemy of France.

My friends, I am not an enemy of France or of any foreign country, but my first loyalty is to my own country and my own people.

Furthermore, I have no divided loyalty. The Bible says "No man can serve two masters," and the only master any loyal American can aspire to serve is his own nation.

When our heroic soldiers went across the seas to fight in foreign lands in a foreign war they did this not for love of France but for love of America.

They answered the call of their own country; they rallied around their own American Stars and Stripes. They followed the inspiring words of their own leaders.

They raised her from the very grave of defeat and placed her upon the pinnacle of success and safety.

All this occurred only 10 short years ago and I would think that the dullest mind and the shortest memory in the whole French nation would remember and realize that loyalty to America does not mean hostility to France.

Now, my friends, I want to thank you for the opportunity you have given me of addressing you.

I want to thank the City Council and the Cook County Commission for the honor they have shown me.

I want to thank your good Mayor for his kindness and courtesy, and finally, I want to say that all that I did in securing the treaty for your information and for what I believed to be the best interests of my country, I would do again tomorrow even if I were to be expelled from every country in Europe for doing it.

After all, what does the attitude of foreign countries amount to if a man can find kindly greetings like this from his own people in his own home?

WAGNER URGES INJUNCTION REFORM

Senator Tells Labor Meet Remedy Lies With Public Men; Sees Jobless Cure

By DAVID F. SENTNER,
International News Service.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Eradication of unemployment and the labor injunction through the leadership of American public men was called for by United States Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem.), of New York, in an address today before the American Federation of Labor convention. He said:

"It is not the absence of remedy but the absence of will that is delaying the cure of the injunction evil. It is a man-made obstacle to the workingman's pursuit of his justified aims.

"Like unemployment, it interferes with the introduction of a greater measure of security and self-respect into the life of the wage earner.

"They are both blots upon our industrial order. The immediate need is of men in public life who are willing to use the existing tools to eradicate them."

A protest against the alleged "indifference shown by industrial leaders against unemployment" was uttered by William Green, president of the federation in a previous address, who said:

"I have always maintained that if industry would regularize employment and deal with it in a scientific way, unemployment could be eliminated."

FIRE FIGHTING METHOD TOLD

How fires caused by explosions can be extinguished with metal gauze charged with high electric voltage, was told by G. St. J. Perrott, superintendent of the United States Bureau of Mines, at the fall meeting of the Mining Advisory Board of Carnegie Institute of Technology and the Bureau of Mines in Carnegie Inn last night.

He explained that 7,000 volts of electricity sent through a screen will extinguish a blaze, but this could not be utilized in mines at this time, but might be applicable to industries handling highly volatile products.

FOES WIN FIGHT ON ANNEXATION

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court allowed an appeal from the Superior Court in the move of a portion of Penn Township for annexation to the City of Pittsburgh. The move resulted in a bitter fight in the township to prevent the annexation.

Allowance of the appeal was ordered by the Supreme Court in concluding its Pittsburgh session yesterday. Adjournment was taken to convene in Philadelphia November 24.

Opposition to the annexation reached the courts when Louis A. Snyder appealed to Quarter Sessions Court from the annexation ordinance passed by the City of Pittsburgh, alleging the proceedings were not in accordance with the law. The appeal was dismissed, and on appeal to the Superior Court the dismissal was upheld in a decision handed down July 10 last. The petition for appeal to the Supreme Court followed.

The Supreme Court also allowed an appeal from the Superior Court by Michael Berardino, New Kensington banker, in connection with his conviction in Criminal Court here of attempted felonious assault and battery. The charge grew out of a collision between his automobile and another occupied by his estranged wife, Mrs. Margaret Berardino.

U. S. Postal System Business Improves

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The United States postal system as a business barometer is beginning to show the revival prophesied a month ago by Assistant Postmaster General Arch Coleman.

On the theory that postal history over a period of 60 years had shown the volume of third and fourth class mail rising and falling in direct ratio to the briskness of business, Coleman anticipated postal return toward normal by feeling the business pulse.

'Greatest Living American' Mayor Terms Hearst

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—(Universal.)—Describing William Randolph Hearst as "the greatest living American," Mayor William Hale Thompson spoke as follows in introducing Mr. Hearst to the great throng at Soldier Field:

"I have been talking so much night and day for the last 13 days in my efforts to give Mr. Hearst, through the people's efforts the welcome to which this great American citizen is entitled, that with a hoarse throat I will say little further.

"Chicago Day on October 9 in 1871 Chicago went down in ashes. Now we have another Chicago Day—we have unemployment but, thanks to Mr. Hearst's broad-mindedness, he would have me take this great organization of Republicans and Democrats and make it possible by this affair to go forward for a greater prosperity and a new October 9, to create jobs for the unemployed, so I will simply present to you a man who to me is the greatest living American, not only because of his patriotism, but because of his great power to instill that Americanism through his publications into the hearts and minds of 20,000,000 of people every day.

"So it is with that great power, besides his sterling qualities of patriotism, I believe I am conservative when I say I present to you the greatest living American—William Randolph Hearst."

PITTSBURGHER LEADS PEACE APPEAL

Lutherans Given Stirring Plea by Dr. G. E. Swoyer, Ex-Chaplain, Pastor Here

(The Rev. Mr. Rupp will write daily exclusive dispatches for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, featuring those highlights of special interest to Pittsburgh district Lutherans during the sixth biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church now being held in Milwaukee.)

By THE REV. L. W. RUPP,
Special Correspondent.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 10.—The Rev. G. E. Swoyer, pastor of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church of Pittsburgh, led a move yesterday which resulted in resolutions approving programs for world peace being passed at the United Lutheran convention here.

The Rev. Swoyer, an Army chaplain in the World War and in the reserve corps since 1918, said:

"If the church does not favor the movements for peace to end the damnable business of killing one another, before God who can end it?

CIVILIANS START WARS

"These resolutions commending peace should be passed. Even the military favor the doing away with war. Army men are not responsible for the start of war. The civilians start wars, the military only carry out the wars civilians start."

The Pittsburgh clergyman said that while the church favors resolutions leading toward peace, we still need adequate protection for our lands.

"To believe that peace pacts and paper agreements will end war is to hide one's head in the sand and to be blind to world issues and troubles.

"What we need is to make every endeavor to end wars and yet not deny the fact that occasions may come when the state may need protection. Because these resolutions commend progress toward peace we favor their approval by this convention."

DIVORCE FOR DESERTION

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The United Lutheran Church in America through its convention delegates authorized desertion as a justifiable ground for divorce. Previously the church had recognized infidelity as the only grounds.

The anticipated contest over allowing women to act as synod delegates failed to reach the debate stage. When opened, the subject was referred to a committee to report back at the next biennial session.

SCHOOL BANKING SHOWS THRIFT

Pupils in Pittsburgh public schools last year deposited $1,017,335.66 in Pittsburgh banks, the Board of Education announced yesterday. Total now to the credit of the pupils is $2,000,109.99. The savings are the result of lessons in thrift taught in classrooms. In Schenley High School a banks' club has been formed, students acting as cashiers, tellers and auditors. In some schools, the announcement continued, every pupil has a savings account.

Oil Fortune Heir Works in Filling Station

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Lee F. Phillips, Jr., heir to an oil fortune running into the millions, is working in overalls as an attendant at a filling station here. He is the son of L. F. Phillips, of Bartlesville, Okla., chairman of the executive committee of the Phillips Petroleum Company.

After graduating in 1927 from the University of Kansas, where he specialized in geology, young Phillips toured around the world and then went to work as an oil scout. Now he is learning the sales end of the business.

"It's a good thing to know the attitude of buyers in the station," he explained.

FIVE JAILED IN ROBBERIES

Five robbery suspects were jailed by County Detectives Samuel Whisner and Thomas Calig, they reported. Three are George Bostley, 28, Sarah street; William Zdanczewski, 22, of 2513 Jane street, and Frank Youk, 24, of Verona, accused of holding up the "Bock House" barbecue on the Peketa road, Penn Township, Tuesday, and a roadhouse of Peter Haller, Randolph way, Penn Township, last night. The other two are Verene Wheeler, 24, and Joseph Gibbs, of North Bessemer, who with Edward Davis, Negro, are alleged to have held up the Unity Beach, Penn Township, September 15. Davis was shot by William Lentz, proprietor, and was captured.

ARMY EXTENDS APPEAL

The home service fund appeal of the Salvation Army is to continue for another week instead of ending tomorrow as originally planned. With only $38,150 of the $112,900 budget reported, Lieut. Col. Charles B. Campbell has granted the request for an extension of time made by those soliciting funds. This is the first time the army has found it necessary to go beyond its own time limit. The campaign began October 1.

Continuance of the campaign will not interfere with Red Shield tag day tomorrow. The 1930 tag day, according to Adjt. W. B. Fowle, campaign director, is considered more important than those of other years. It really is an emergency tag day, Fowle says, as the army expects to provide ready cash with which to carry on its work until complete returns are in from the appeal.

Salvation Army lassies and their friends will be on the streets offering red shields for sale. Workers will be on duty all day.

THE HEART OF YOUR RADIO

Is Your Daughter Well and Strong?

There are three trying periods in a woman's life, when the girl matures to womanhood; when a woman gives birth to her first child; when a woman reaches middle age. At these times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore normal health and vigor. Thousands testify to its worth.

Daughter of Mrs. F. Butcher, R. No. 2, Gridley, Kansas

"My thirteen year old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school, and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired." —Mrs. Floyd Butcher.

Daughter of Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her, off and on. Then a friend told us about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls. I really think the Compound helped her more than all the other medicine I gave her."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi.

Daughter of Mrs. M. Milano, 1408 Park Ave., New York, New York

"My seventeen year old daughter Fannie was rundown, weak and nervous. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she has gained in weight and strength. She eats and sleeps well. She is a packer and she is able to go to work every day. We recommend the medicine to other mothers and daughters." —Mrs. M. Milano.

ARMY EXHIBITS WAR MACHINES

ARMY PROVING GROUND, ABERDEEN, Md., Oct. 16.—(AP.)—On land and in air the United States Army played its trump cards, revealing mechanical developments shown in war maneuvers before 10,000 spectators, among them representatives from Washington and from foreign governments.

The occasion was the twelfth annual meeting of the Army Ordnance Association. It brought from every quarter of the country industrialists and officers to view the demonstration for the first time of the equipment of a mechanized force.

From the tiny tanks, capable of making 20 miles an hour, to the cross-country cars and cargo carriers, the maneuvers seemed to concentrate on speed. Infantry rode in speedy carriers. Thirty-five planes, including pursuit ships, observation and bombers, flew low in formation at varying speeds.

CURTIS HONORS U. S. PIONEERS

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 16.—(AP.)—Vice President Charles Curtis, speaking here last night at a dinner honoring the memory of George Rogers Clark, paid high tribute to the courage and bravery of Clark, Daniel Boone and other pioneers whose deeds made possible the opening of the great northwest territory for settlement a century ago.

The vice president said the spirit that prompted Clark and his fellow pioneers to push ahead is carried on today by the feats of Lindbergh, Byrd and Edison.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Hands Are a Tip-Off on Character

A great deal can be learned of a person's health and character by the appearance of the hands. Care of the hands is really supremely important, and there are very good reasons why everyone should give attention to the subject.

Scrupulous cleanliness of the hands prevents many an infection from disease germs. Think of all the things you touch with the hands. Try as you will, you cannot avoid contact with contamination of one sort or another.

When the hands are neglected the result is hangnails, breaks in the cuticle or outer skin, or other broken surfaces. Any of these openings in the skin may be the gateways for some bad germ to enter the body. Soiled hands and fingernails carry a host of germs, many of them germs of disease. It depends upon your resistance to disease whether or not these germs become active in the system.

It is very necessary to wash the hands frequently during the day with warm water and soap. Every child from earliest years should be taught this lesson. The gentle use of a nail-brush helps very much to thoroughly cleanse the hands and fingernails. A fine pumice stone or pumice powder may be used to remove stains from the hands, or an excessive amount of dirt. Persons, particularly the feminine members of the family, who have tender skins, find a soothing hand lotion helpful in keeping the skin soft.

Proper care of the hands is surely indicative of character. Almost always one scans the face and hands of a new acquaintance, even without thinking to note their appearance. Many a mental note is instantly made. Slovenly dress and unkempt hands usually go along with a "don't-care" attitude toward life. If you would be successful in the world you must think of these things. You may not be able to dress in the fashion of the hour, but neatness of person, tidiness in dress and clean face and hands will carry you a long way to success. They are silent witnesses of character.

A common blemish of the skin of the hands is a wart or a cluster of them. Boys often have them, and girls, as well. Adults sometime have them. They are not serious in youth, and can be removed very easily by the family physician, practically without pain. In advanced life, however, they are more significant because one of them may break down into a malignant growth. It is better to have the warts removed when first they make their appearance.

Almost anyone may have freckles on the hands. This is true at the end of the summer when the direct rays of the sun have turned the pigment cells to a yellowish brown color. Many times they remain on all winter. But they are perfectly harmless.

How Old Are You?

Today Said She—I'm 43

Am I Fat?—Not Me

Yes! A year ago I had twenty-two more pounds of fat than I needed—I was fat—and very sensitive about it—but now I say it is very foolish for anyone to be overweight.

What did I do? Nothing very hard, I can assure you—I cut out pies—candy and all sweets—ate moderately, and every morning before breakfast I took one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water—never missed a morning.

I lost fat—gained in energy—vigor—charm—and vivaciousness and have a shapely figure I am proud of—anyone can do the same.

A North Carolina woman lost 47 pounds in 3 months—a Montana woman lost 19 pounds in 4 weeks — Wisconsin woman 11 pounds in 6 weeks.

Every druggist in the world sells Kruschen Salts—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks—costs 85 cents.

KILLER SUSPECT PSYCHOLOGIST

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 18.—Dabbling in psychology, diving into the classics, and finding "mistakes" in all-planned crimes were the hobbies of George (Jiggs) Perry, Milwaukee phantom lover, sought by police on a charge of slaying his "want ad bride," a close relative of Perry revealed today. And marriage to Perry was nothing but a "racket" to make money, the relative said.

Reported by police to have three known wives and probably a fourth, Perry is accused of slaying Cora Belle Hackett, 42, his third "wife." Her body was found on the Lac du Flambeau Indian reservation, in Northern Wisconsin, several days ago.

Search for Perry narrowed to the St. Louis area today with the report that he contracted a fourth marriage there. Perry, with a new bride, left a hotel there Wednesday just before police arrived to arrest him, detectives learned.

WELFARE FUND BEFORE CLUB

Miss Eleanor Webster, member of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, tonight before the South Hills College Club, in Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, will explain what the welfare fund is trying to do in stimulating better housing conditions.

The campaign of the welfare fund for money to carry on its relief work will open in November. A larger fund is necessary for the coming year, it is pointed out, because seven new agencies have joined in the activities of the organization.

Chestnut Tree Bears, Blooms Same Time

WESTON, W. Va., Oct. 18.—Unusual weather conditions have produced a freak chestnut tree on a farm owned by W. M. Bowyers, of Roanoke, this county, on Powers Run of Sand Fork. The tree is covered with burrs, which will yield a large crop, and with blooms. Both burrs and blooms are found on the same branches in profusion.

WINS WORLD'S DRUM HONORS

The roll of the drum has mbrought a second world's championship to M. M. Gerlach, winner of the open drum contest of the American Legion convention in Boston.

Gerlach, a Pittsburgher, represents Observatory Post No. 81, American Legion, in the sheepskin competition yearly. He was awarded the championship last year in Louisville, Ky. The American Legion title is generally considered the world's championship, it is said.

Notre Dame-Navy Tickets Stolen By Gunmen

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Save a place in the furthest recess of your safe or safe deposit box for any football tickets you may possess this fall.

Two armed men held up Harry Kelly, Detroit representative of Notre Dame University in his office and took 50 or more tickets to the Notre Dame-Navy football game next Saturday.

Police were supplied with descriptions of the tickets and the seats in the Notre Dame stadium for which they call.

COMEDIAN SUED BY LANDLORD

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—(INS.)—Bert Wheeler, film jester, is being sued for $665 for damaging the furniture of a Hollywood mansion he rented from its owner, Eugene V. Brewster. Brewster, plaintiff in the suit, claimed Wheeler left cigaret burns, scratched oil paintings, broke lamps, ruined books and didn't leave some books that belonged in the house.

News of His Death Fails to Disturb Shaw

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw accepted philosophically the news that rumors of his death had been circulating in New York.

"Well, it's a little previous," he told an Associated Press correspondent.

"They seem in a bit of a hurry to kill me off, don't they?"

"Then we may say that you are in excellent health?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes, you can tell them all that."

CONCERT HEADS NAME 'CZAR'

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Six concert managers said to control about two-thirds of America's bookings selected a "czar" to coordinate their work. They formed the Producing Music Managers' Association, Inc., to present a "united but friendly front" to the radio, sound films and mechanical music in general.

The dictator is Milton Diamond, attorney who helped draw up the peace treaty between American and German film interests last summer.

Brighter Days!

You need not punish a sluggish system with purgatives that do violence. Just chew a pleasant Cascaret before bedtime. Next morning you'll be a new person. Candy Cascarets are made from cascara—which doctors say actually strengthens the bowel muscles. So their action is always beneficial. They clear up a stubborn, bilious, headachy and constipated condition every time. You awake with coating gone from tongue; with eyes brightened; breath sweetened; appetite on edge. For a bright morning, try a Cascaret tonight. Then you'll know why 20 million boxes are used every year.

SUIT OVER LOAN WON BY SINGER

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Mary Fabian, Chicago opera singer, won a civil suit for $300 she loaned Caroline Segrera three years ago so the latter could continue music studies. Miss Segrera now is the wife of Everett Marshall, Metropolitan Opera baritone. She testified:

"I expected her to go on the opera stage and make enough to repay me. But instead she married Marshall and hasn't made anything by her own voice since."

Marshall admitted in court his wife might owe the money. He declared community property was not liable to her premarital debts. As codefendant, Marshall was ordered to pay.

DUNCAN SISTERS, JESSICA DRAGONETTE, DICK POWELL ON AIR

Return of Sousa.
"Golden Age."
Nothing Sacred.
Phil Lord Prolific.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—John Philip Sousa will soon be taking his baton to the microphone. And then for a rich and welcome orgy of marches on the loudspeakers.

Louis Reid

No one can play marches with the vigor and swing of Sousa, perhaps because no one has written them with such vigor and swing. Sousa has played — and still plays—before more people than any other director in the history of band music. One of his Glasgow audiences numbered 153,000 persons.

All of the leading bandmasters, with the exception of Creatore, of the waving arms and unruly hair, are now audible to the armchairs of the nation, just as all the principal symphony orchestras as well as all the chief dance bands which worship the great god Jazz, now penetrate the national eardrum. Music is in the air in an abundance never before known in America.

It Is a Golden Age For Music Publishers

Concert and operatic stars have resumed their radio careers where they left off last spring. Before many weeks grand opera itself will crash upon the air. Meanwhile hill-billy songs, hoedowns of the countryside, ballads of Broadway, hot and bothered tunes of Harlem, cynically amorous airs of Hollywood tumble out of the loudspeakers in endless array. It must be a golden age for the music publishers and the poobahs of the recording factories.

One of the most interesting spectacles on the microphones this fall is the race for the most attentive ears now going on between maestros Stokowski, Koussevitzky and Kleiber. Of the three, Stokowski has given most thought to the mechanics of broadcasting. He is most concerned with the search of radio glory not only through the business of transmission, but through the art of selecting the best of modern music for his listeners. It will be interesting to see what he does next Sunday with Ravel's "Bolero" with its exciting, stormy rhythm.

They say that Stokowski has worked hard this summer to achieve for his air audience the variety of tonal and rhythmic effects which modern music has made possible. He hopes, they say, to show that it is perfectly feasible through radio to express all the richness of musical creation. We'll soon know. It will be worth a little more haste at the nineteenth hole and on the concrete highway to know.

Two former first violinists of the Philharmonic, William Artzt and Vincent Sorey are now conducting orchestras for the Columbia network. B. A. Rolfe and his men require 236 hours of desk work and rehearsal for every hour they are on the air. "Little White Lies," by the tireless Walter Donaldson, is now the special darling of the dance bands. Donaldson typifies today in the songwriting world as Percy Wenrich typifies yesterday and Charles K. Harris the day before yesterday. Harris is still collecting kopeks from "After the Ball." Household secrets of famous men are now being revealed on the radio by their wives. Nothing is sacred to the broadcasters.

Phillips Lord Again An Author

Phillips H. Lord—"Seth Parker" to the ear-cuppers—has published his second book within a month. Bearing the title of "Uncle Hosie" it carries out the Down East tradition and philosophy of life as expressed by Lord in his radio programs. As the author himself explains:

"The folks in the cities may look pretty slick, but if you was to use a fine tooth comb on them you'd get quite a lot of hayseed that's behind their ears somewhere. When they read about Uncle Hosie they'll get homesick for a good old-fashioned whiff of the barn."

It is the genuineness of the whiff of the barn that has placed Lord's programs among the most popular on the air. His humor is never forced. It springs, as it should, from his characterization, and there is a reality, a humanness to his folk that captures the fancy of dwellers in city and country alike.

In his ability to be authentic he has far surpassed any other rural life delineator on the radio. I would not be surprised were he some day to take a place with Sol Smith Russell and James A. Jerne as an interpreter of the farm and fireside.

Eight million children, 'tis said, will catch the measured accents of Walter Damrosch today. With such an audience Damrosch, I fancy, no longer entertains any notion of forsaking radio for the goldfields of Hollywood.

TEMPUS FUGIT

Milton Tully tells one about Jeff Sparks, NBC announcer. When a boy Jeff was never on time for school. He had the worst record for tardiness in the school, and teachers stamped him as a sure failure unless he changed his ways.

They said: "You should make the most of your time, for every minute counts."

Jeff says: "And here I am in radio where they work a schedule of split seconds. Success!"

QUESTION A DAY:

Were radio microphones used in recording the sound of animals in Dr. Hoefler's picture, "Africa Speaks?" I thought I saw a microphone once.—H. G. Evans, Homestead, Pa.

Answer — Yes, microphones were used. We had a long talk with Dr. Hoefler about the difficulties that existed in recording sound, particularly the sighs and grunts of the lion. This was accomplished by "planting" a microphone at a point that was heavily "baited." Condenser mikes—very sensitive—will pick up a growl 300 or 400 feet away. When ball games are broadcast, as in the recent World Series, it is possible to hear the click of the ball and the bat as they collide—with the microphone anywhere from 500 to 1,000 feet away.

WMBJ is out of the picture temporarily until the Federal Radio Commission decides whether Rev. John W. Sproul should be given a new license or the station should be turned over to the Pittsburgh Broadcasters, Inc., or William S. Walker.

THAT Paul Oliver's real name is Frank Munn? Olive Palmer's name is Virginia Rea.

THAT people about the NBC studios often think Jolly Bill and Jane are related because Jane calls him "Uncle Bill?" Jane's real name is Muriel Harbater. Jolly Bill is William Steinke.

THAT Walter Myers and Allen Thrasher, bosom companions, may be pitched into battle any time over their favorite announcers? Walter likes John S. Young, Allen likes McNamee.

THAT Pittsburgh's bid for the RMA Trade Show in 1931 is disputed only by Chicago? The convention is sure to go to one of these two cities, the moguls say, and Pittsburgh right now is on the inside track.

THAT Ray Perkins' wife checks on hubby's modulation every time he's on the air? She sits in the monitoring room.

THAT Carolyn Gray, once hostess at WCAE, is going higher and higher in the NBC at New York?

POLICE CASE FAILS IN 'MYSTERY STILL'

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Mustaches are coming back. George Mazmarosa, the barber, reports that four of every 10 customers who drop into his chairs own mustaches, George himself has one. He contends that a mustache has a practical use in the winter time, that it protects the lip from the bitter cold. On this George Mazmarosa and your none too humble correspondent disagree. In the years to come we hope to be remembered for this incisive remark on the mustache question: A mustache is a silly expression of vanity. Whoops!

Eddie Kilpatrick, of East End Police Station, is the only driver of a police patrol who refuses to drive his wagon in Harvard street. Murder, fire and corruption can break out in Harvard street and Kilpatrick, for the purpose of this paragraph, won't budge. The reason is that he lives in that street and that when he passes his home the Kilpatrick dog, Jiggs, bounds off the porch and follows the patrol, whether or not his master's at the wheel. * * *

We have the welfare of Sidewalks readers at heart. We don't want to see any wall flowers among them. If, for example, at a party some night somebody asks what a Scotch verdict is, don't you shrink up and admit your ignorance. A Scotch verdict is a verdict by which the defendant is found not guilty, but ordered to pay the costs of prosecution. These costs may be as low as $50 and as high, in big trials, as $5,000. The costs include witness fees, jurors' fees and incidentals. A Scotch verdict might be interpreted in this language: "You're not guilty but don't do it again." * * *

We are not one to disturb the sanctity of the home, but we have learned something of the home life of a police reporter. Our authority is Joe Ambrose, a police reporter. This police reporter somehow lost his only pair of garters. In a pinch he stole his wife's. Yes, he did. She found them Monday morning and there was the dickens to pay. He blames his 2-year-old son for stealing his. Figure it out yourself. * * *

Two celebrities in local billposting circles are Shakespeare Jones and Dixie Edwards. Shakespeare Jones is so called because in his happier moments he begins to recite the choicest lines of that author. Dixie Edwards is remembered because once, in Butler, Pa., he was chased down the main street by a Chinese laundryman who didn't want a circus poster in his window.

Because (complaint) this is not an age of simplicity, dogs are no longer named Rover and boys are seldom named John and girls are infrequently named Mary. Conclusive proof: Philip Gillespie, the Allison Park bond salesman, has named his dog Tiglath Pileser.

At the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday Charles Donley made a speech on fire prevention. And just as he was urging his audience to take all precautions against fire, the fire engines clanged by in Penn avenue.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

If it isn't one calamity that hits us it's another. Did you read where Jesse Livermore, E. F. Hutton, Marshall Field, Frelinghuysen, Sloan, of General Motors, and Farrell, of U. S. Steel, and a host of others have been buying their "antique" furniture in England before it was even aged in the wood. They couldn't make these new antique "high boys" fast enough for our new rich "old boys." This expose will bring a hardship on our wealthy; it's liable to force 'em to use American-made furniture. Us middle-class over here never have to worry about having old furniture to point out to our friends; we buy it on payments, and before it's paid for it's plenty antique.

Will Rogers

Yours,
WILL.

Annie Is Cause of Trouble Among Gangsters

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," whom Polack Annie, beautiful daughter of the underworld, called her man, is killed by a machine gun planted in a window across from his room. Annie is arrested, but bailed out by Goldie Gorio, leader of Chicago's North Side gang of which the Kid was a member. Goldie's henchmen accuse Kinky King, head of the West Side gang of the murder. Gorio assures the reporters there will be no payoff. The same evening Kinky King is found murdered, a gold revolver beside him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"The Devil's Hall."

A wise buddy by the name of Jake Klingstein got the big idea—that even the men and women of the underworld wanted a little privacy. So he opened a joint that started to deal at 3 o'clock in the morning, when the suckers' hangouts closed.

It had a lookout slot in the iron door. The signal was two short raps and three long ones. If you tried any other combination, no go. If you hit it right, the slide was pushed back, a pair of eyes gave you the once over, and if you belonged you came in; if you didn't, there wasn't enough dough to get you past—the district had plenty places where a sappio could spend his jack. This was for regulars—or no count.

If you got past that portal, you stepped into a tiny lobby. Across it, knocking your eye out, was a sign. It occupied the whole wall. And it probably saved 40 murders in "The Devil's Hall." It read:

THE WOMAN YOU TAKE IN IS THE WOMAN YOU TAKE OUT.

Four weeks or so before the machine-gun let go and expunged the Edgewater Kid he walked into the dive. Beside him, looking radiant, was Polack Annie.

Annie Proud

Knew That Edgewater Kid Was Hers

The Kid checked his hat. The girl nodded and smiled—not too broadly, mind you, because that was a place where people observed their ethics. But she smiled, because the Kid was a sweet tipper. Annie smiled too—because she knew he was hers. She didn't mind him smiling at other girls. The pride of possession was strong within her. She loved to see other girls look adoringly at her Kid. She knew they knew—that he belonged to her. And he did.

They walked in. Annie had what the Kid used to call an impromptu complexion — she made it up as she went along. She was always making up. She who never had to, always did. But that was the fashion around those corners.

They nodded to a few friends. They were "downtown" — neutral territory. No Man's Land! Gang lines didn't go there — anybody's playground. And among those they saw was Kinky King.

Violated Law

Had Taken Kinky's Girl Friend

Kinky's swarthy, stubble-blacked pan went dark. The deep circles about his burning eyes turned deeper. He shook himself, smiled to the wind-blown-bobbed blonde beside him and giggled. He lit her a cigaret and kept his back turned. But Kinky burned.

Polack Annie had been his.

Kinky was past 40. He had a drag that would have brought down City Hall, and a punch that would have knocked it down. He was the undisputed monarch of the West Side gang. Aldermen, sheriffs, assistant state's attorneys, jury commissioners, jailers, marshals, county commissioners—they were working for him.

And this stug, this vassal of Goldie Gorio, had stolen his woman. The Edgewater Kid had violated the law of the "Devil's Hall" and had copped Polack Annie. He had lived to walk out with her. And he had the impertinence to bring her back there. And everybody was wise. Many a side glance was angled at Kinky King. And he knew why.

The blonde beside him was hep, too. She slanted the side-plays. Kinky got it. He leaned across and said to her:

"That fresh punk—he'll do good, he will."

"He's a good lookin' boy, ain't he?" she observed.

"Bullets," said Kinky, dryly, "have no sense o' beauty. They don' know are they goin' into a damn fool what's good-lookin' or not. I'll say one thing for 'em—they do go where they're sent. Bullets don't fall in love."

The blonde sighed. She looked at the Kid again.

"I guess I ain' no bullet," she said, half aside.

Threatening

Expresses His Dislike For Kid

"No?" pursued Kinky. "How'd you like a swell sock right in that pug nose o' your'n, you two-timin' umpchay?"

"Aw, no—nothin' like that, Kinky," she covered up. "But—he sure is a han'some feller."

"It'll never do you no good—get that from headquarters. Pour me a shoot—no, make it a man's size—I ain't no pansy . . . that's it—now take an earful o' this: You think that bozo looks good, do you? Well, you ain't the firs' broad what did. But you're about the last, see?"

"Whatya mean?"

"Nothin'—I ain't gonna answer you—but pay some attention to what I tell you—that shink-haired kid wouldn't keep his nose clean. He's lousy with youth an' spoiled by twists—like you—who tell him how good lookin' he is, when they could do better spendin' their time tellin' me how good lookin' I am.

"So it up an' went to his head. They was plenty o' room there 'cause they was nothin' else to inde'fere. The floozies flop for him. It's his America. An' he loves it. So he goes off his simple nut. He forgets who he is an' who a lot o' other parties is.

"I've saw a flock o' Edgewater Kids come an' go. You see him come. I'll see him go!"

The blonde lit a smoke.

"You—you mean—you're goin' to have that nice boy tooken?"

"Tooken, hell! This here is a big burg. But it ain' big enough for him an' me both. They'll pat him in the pan wit' a spade. An' on the handle'll be inscribed 'Kinky King.' I'm plastered, or I wouldn't let you in on this. An' if you open that kissy trap o' your'n, I'll run you

CLERGY AND LAYMEN IN VISIT TO BEAVER COUNTY SITE OF OLD SERVICE SEMINARY, NOW THE XENIA SEMINARY

3 SUSPECTS CLEARED OF CHARGES

Beebe 'Satisfied' They're Wrong Men; Found Only Mash, Drys Get Plant

Inspector Albert Beebe of the First Police District, admitted today that the raid his officers made October 4 on the largest alcohol distillery Pittsburgh has known since prohibition, where agents in a subsequent raid found six men operating the plant under police guard, had netted nothing but mash, which was destroyed.

Neither Inspector Beebe nor Capt. John H. Schnur offered any explanation of how the six men, arrested in the place by agents, got inside and set the plant in operation while policemen were supposedly watching the building, nor were they questioned as to this occurrence or the fact that the plant was operating when the second raid was made.

DENY GUILT

Carl and Joseph Miller and Nick Paret, arraigned on charges preferred after the police raid, told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg they knew nothing about the distillery, and were freed. The hearing had been continued from yesterday, when both defendants and police failed to appear.

Capt. Schnur, in charge of the raiding squad, testified:

"We arrested these three men outside the Interior and Exterior Decorating place, located in a three-story garage in Vickroy street. We confiscated mash, which we destroyed, and stills, vats, and other paraphernalia which we left in the place under guard."

Here Magistrate Rothenberg interrupted:

BLAME "OTHER" RAID

"But Capt. Schnur, on Sunday, at the first hearing, your men asked me to hold these defendants over for an investigation. Hasn't your investigation connected them with this place?"

"No. The men were outside and I can't say positively that they were connected with the racket. My investigation was shot by that federal raid."

The magistrate then asked Inspector Beebe as to his investigation, the inspector replying:

"Well, judge, we were handicapped by that other raid."

"But, inspector, are these men guilty?"

"No, judge, I don't think they had anything to do with it."

Rothenberg then turned to the defendants:

"Why weren't you here for the hearing yesterday?"

They said they knew nothing of the hearing and that they had not been notified. Rothenberg discharged them for lack of evidence.

HIGHWAYS SHUT IN COUNTY

The County Department of Public Works today announced a list of five roads in the county that are closed to traffic day and night because of construction work. The county-owned roads are the Mowry - Gilhall - Cochran Mills road in Jefferson Township, the Ohio River boulevard in the city and the Brandt School road in Franklin road. The paved roads closed are the Turtle Creek and Monroeville road and the Glassport and Elizabeth road.

The following paved roads are closed to traffic daily from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m. except Sunday and holidays for resurfacing work: Glenfield road, Bakerstown-Valencia road, Carnot-Coraopolis road, Unity and Trestle road and the Elizabeth road.

ACCIDENTS LAID TO LEFT TURNS

More than 20 per cent of all traffic accidents on the Boulevard of the Allies have involved cars making left turns on the outbound route between Bluff street and Craft avenue, Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer announced. McIntyre cited figures to justify the passage of an ordinance now before Council banning such left turns.

Ninety-two reports of reckless driving were among the 365 traffic violations brought to the attention of the Traffic Safety Observers during September, Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section of the Better Traffic Committee, announced. The observers are sponsored by the committee.

Hanged Body Found In Heidelberg Woods

The body of Carl Smiar, 72, of 1813 Mary street, South Side, was found in the Camp Hill woods, near Heidelberg, last night, with a short piece of rope he used to hang himself broken, according to the coroner's report.

The body was found under a tree to which Smiar, who left home three weeks ago, had tied the rope, police said. It was identified at the morgue by Louis Smiar, a son, who could ascribe no motive.

CONTRACTS LET IN MT. LEBANON

Contracts for the proposed Mt. Lebanon High School, which is to be completed next August, were awarded at a meeting of the township school board last night, Secretary J. W. Howell said. The general contract was given the Pittsburgh Engineering and Construction Company at its bid of $280,000.

The Delmar Electric Company was let the electrical contract at $34,000 and the Moss and Blakely Company the plumbing for $26,000. Heating and ventilating bids are to be opened November 1.

The structure is to be erected on a 12-acre plot on Cochran road adjoining Mt. Lebanon Park, where the school athletic field and swimming pool are to be situated. Opening of the school is expected to take care of Mt. Lebanon students who are now paying tuition to attend Pittsburgh high schools, Howell said.

Charles A. Fisher On Education Board

Charles A. Fisher, of Westminster place, formerly connected with the Jones and Laughlin Steel Company, was appointed a member of the Board of Public Education to fill a vacancy caused by the death of James D. Hailman, by the judges of Common Pleas Court at its meeting yesterday.

Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans was named to the board of the Gumbert School for Girls.

Foreign Engineers To Inspect District

A group of foreign highways engineers, attending the Sixth International Roads Congress in Washington, will be taken on a tour of Pittsburgh district bridges and highways Monday by James A. Hemstreet, touring information member of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, and city and county officials. The tour will start from the Chamber of Commerce.

COLUMBUS DAY PROGRAM

Columbus Day will be celebrated by the Sons of Columbus of America with a series of festivities, beginning tomorrow and ending Monday.

PRAISE MERGER OF SEMINARIES

Merging of the Pittsburgh and Xenia Theological Seminaries was lauded by prominent educators and ministers in exercises held in two counties yesterday celebrating the amalgamation ordered by the United Presbyterian General Assembly.

Nearly 200 ministers first visited the site of Service Seminary at Service, Beaver County, established in 1784. The Service institution moved to Canonsburg and later became Xenia Seminary of Xenia, O., and St. Louis.

At Service the Rev. Dr. M. G. Kyle, former president of Xenia, presided at the site of the first Service Seminary, where a tablet was erected many years ago to the memory of Dr. John Anderson, the sole professor of Service Seminary.

The party took luncheon at Chartiers United Presbyterian Church in Canonsburg and then visited Hill Church, near Canonsburg, where addresses were made by Dr. S. S. Baker, president of Washington-Jefferson College; the Rev. Dr. W. C. Williamson, of Monmouth, Ill., and the Rev. Dr. James H. Snowden, of the Presbyterian Banner.

LAYS KILLING TO AX THREAT

Joe Sapary, 41, a cripple, shot and killed George Rodesevich, 41, in the latter's home on Willock road, Willock, last night, when Rodesevich menaced him with an ax, he told county detectives. With John Pezo, 48, a material witness, he was held in the county jail. Sapary is minus his right leg and arm.

The bullet struck Rodesevich in the head. Shortly before, the victim was alleged to have entered the room of Pezo and picked up an ax and began chopping the wall. When Pezo demanded an explanation, Rodesevich left the room and started for Sapary, whose room adjoined Pezo's, it is said. Just as Rodesvich was about to wield the ax, Sapary said he fired, according to detectives.

The body of the victim, who was said to have no permanent address, was removed to the morgue.

Rum Suspects' Long Wait For Bondsmen Vain

Six men arrested Monday in a raid on an alleged alcohol manufacturing plant in Vickroy street, after being held for court yesterday by the United States commissioner waited in vain for someone to come to their rescue with bonds of $3,000 each.

They waited in the office of the United States marshal. At 5:30 p. m., when no bondsman had appeared, the prisoners were taken to the county jail. After the commissioner's hearing, counsel for the six said bonds were to be provided, and several times during the afternoon encouraging word was sent to the prisoners.

Immediately after the hearing Attorney Morris D. Canter, their counsel, sought to have the amount of bonds reduced, but the commissioner refused, declaring the amount asked was small, considering that the defendants gave fictitious addresses to the arresting officers.

Attorney Canter attacked the legality of the search and seizure and arrest of the men found in the building, on the ground the raiders did not have the authority of a search warrant. Attorney A. T. Leith, of the prohibition legal staff, contended no search warrant was necessary.

Graham Blames Slowness Of Law for Crime Wave

Foreign countries which produce narcotics are reaping a harvest in the American market, United States District Attorney Louis E. Graham last night told the Dormitory Club of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Drugs which can be bought in many foreign lands for 50 cents an ounce are peddled in the United States at $75 an ounce, he said.

This statement was in connection with an address on crime and its huge profits in the United States. Failure of enforcement authorities to speed up activities against criminals was given as the cause for widespread crime. Bank bandits nowadays, he said, frequently get away with fortunes.

LOSS $100,000 IN FIRE

The interior of a three-story brick building at 2535-37 Liberty avenue, was in ruins today from a fire which broke out twice within three hours last night and resulted in injury to seven firemen and loss in excess of $100,000.

Part of the building, which extends from Liberty avenue along Twenty-sixth street to Spring way, was occupied by the Excelsior Supply Company. The stock of the company consisting of upholsterer's supplies were consumed, as were waste materials of the M. B. Speer Company, housed in the rear of the structure.

BREAKS OUT ANEW

The first blaze, for which two alarms were sounded, broke out in the excelsior room of the supply company on the first floor. The flames were brought under control after a two-hour battle with a loss estimated at $7,000. The blaze smoldered, but did not break out into open flame for three hours. The three companies left to douse the smoldering contents with water suddenly were confronted by a sheet of flame, Battalion Chief William Davis said. Three alarms, sounded in quick succession, brought a dozen companies the second time.

The interior of the structure was ablaze, the flames shooting through the roof and windows when the firemen arrived. Fifteen streams of water were played on the burning building for three hours before the fire was declared under control.

TWO CAPTAINS HURT

In the first blaze Capt. David Wilson, of No. 25 Engine Company, suffered internal injuries and was taken to the West Penn Hospital. Hosemen John McCall, Joseph Morrissey and M. J. Johnson, of Companies 6, 32 and 38, respectively, cut by glass, were treated at Mercy Hospital and returned to the scene.

Motorcycle Patrolman Jerry Hock was injured when he fell from the running board of an automobile which he commandeered in the chase of another car which disregarded his order to stop at Penn avenue and Twenty-seventh street. He is in St. Francis Hospital.

Lacerations of the head were suffered by Capt. James Loder, of No. 25 Engine Company, and Hoseman George Ringling, of No. 32 company, when struck by flying glass at the second fire. Hoseman Joseph Tysarczyk, of No. 25 company, overcome by smoke, was revived at West Penn Hospital.

ORDER FAMILIES OUT

A dozen families living in the rear of the blazing structure were ordered from their homes by Police Captain Harry Mellon. Firemen on fire escapes in the rear of the building were ordered down when bulges appeared in the rear wall.

The fire which illuminated the sky could be seen by motorists from Bigelow boulevard and residents of Troy Hill. Streets in the immediate vicinity were flooded because of clogged sewers.

An investigation was under way today to determine the cause.

Fire in an unoccupied two-story frame house at 6385 Penn avenue, early today, damaged the building to the extent of $500, firemen said.

Suspect in Forgery 2 Years Ago Taken

Frank Moser, 45, a railroader, was arrested yesterday in Pitcairn by federal officers who charged him with forging and passing a government check for $28.75, which had been made payable to the widow of a war veteran. The alleged offense occurred two years ago and Moser had been sought in various parts of the country.

The forged check was said to have been passed on a North Side merchant. Moser is being held by secret service operatives for a hearing.

KIBITZERS NOT ALLOWED.

This was the sign which might well have been posted in the Fort Pitt Hotel today as the 1930 Pennsylvania bridge championship went into the second day.

William E. McKenney, secretary of the American Bridge League, explained his attitude towards the kibitzer.

"I do not encourage persons standing in back of the players. However, if the players themselves have no objections this will be allowed in the early rounds only. But under no circumstances will the onlookers be allowed to make conversation with the players or anybody else during the play. There will be no kibitzing."

PITTSBURGHERS LEAD

With that speech the players went into their bidding. The second round was reached today in the mixed-pair championships, open games at auction and contract, men's and women's pair championships.

About 80 players sat through two sessions yesterday and when the official scorer posted the day's sheets at 1:30 a. m. today Pittsburghers were leading in two of the three championship divisions.

In women's pair play, two Pittsburgh couples were tied for the lead—Mrs. Kirk W. Todd and Mrs. Walter O. Beyer, and Mrs. Grace Lear and Miss Leona Justice. Mrs. A. C. Lamada and Mrs. J. F. Foresman, of Williamsport, were third and Miss Margaret Beech and Mrs. H. D. Stahl, of Carrick, fourth.

In the mixed pair division L. R. Ayres and Mrs. Jay S. Jones, Jr., of Philadelphia, piled up 112½ points to take a half-point lead over Capt. F. G. French and Mrs. H. L. Peterson, of Philadelphia. In third place were Joseph H. Smith and Mrs. Mary G. Mead, of Uniontown, with 95 points.

In men's pair play J. A. Bailey and C. E. Moody, of Pittsburgh, were out front with 111½ points, a lead of nine points over three teams tied for second—Frank Young, Jr., and D. G. Hamilton, of Pittsburgh; L. R. Ayres and Capt. French, of Philadelphia; H. B. Kirkpatrick and S. H. Fields, of Pittsburgh.

TOP SCORES

Top score for the day at open contract was made by Mrs. Lamada and Mrs. Foresman, of Williamsport, and second were Mrs. Louis K. Manley, wife of Dean Manley, of Pitt, and Mrs. Walter Bever. They won the honors in the north-south division. First in the east-west sector were Mrs. R. R. Crookston, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. W. B. Edmiston, of Brownsville, Pa.

RAID BARBECUE, SEIZE GIN

County detectives made one arrest and confiscated 15 quarts of gin early this morning in a raid on a barbecue stand in Babcock boulevard, near Keown Station.

SUPREME COURT HEARS AIRPORT LAND DISPUTE APPEAL

OWNERS OF OLD HOME FIGHT OUSTER

Appeal from Local Court's Refusal of Injunction To Block County Action

The old Lutz homestead in Mifflin Township, standing in the way of the development of the county airport, occupied the attention of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania yesterday on the appeal of Charles L. Lutz and his wife, Mary E. Lutz, seeking to prevent the county from taking the property and razing their home.

They appealed August 22, last, from the refusal by Common Pleas Court of an injunction against the county to prevent their dispossession. The appeal contended that ouster should not be allowed during actual occupancy, that the exercise by the county of the right of eminent domain to condemn the property should not be allowed, as there had been no adjudication of the necessity for the taking, and that the bond of the county had not been given to both parties nor had the damages been paid.

DAMAGE VERDICT PENDING

The tract of 78 acres has been graded with the exception of the immediate homestead area and the county proceeded with the ouster until the appeal. The Board of Viewers awarded them $24,625 for their property and on appeal a verdict of $40,000 was awarded by a jury in Common Pleas Court. A new trial, granted on the ground the verdict was excessive, is pending.

The appeals of J. W. Nolf and Charles O. Wherry, Brackenridge councilmen fighting actions to remove them from office on charges that they were interested in contracts with the borough, were argued on the grounds that Common Pleas Court does not have jurisdiction to issue writs of quo warranto. The writs were issued on the motion of District Attorney Andrew T. Park to challenge the right of the councilmen to hold office.

Explorer, On Visit Here, Deems Undersea Journey Better Than Air Method

"Out-Verneing Jules Verne" is what Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins, here for a lecture at the Keystone Athletic Club, called his proposed trip to the Arctic in a submarine.

Wilkins declared:

"Nothing like it has ever been done. Just fancy cruising under the ice 16 hours a day, four miles an hour.

"Seventeen men in the steel core of a submarine, 175 feet long and 15 feet in diameter, cruising under the surface of the unexplored, unknown Arctic seas. Plenty of time to explore, plenty of time to collect oceanographic and meteorological data, enough room for necessary equipment.

"Surely, man has never had this opportunity before."

SAFETY MEASURES

Dangers? Capt. Wilkins scoffs at them.

A pair of inverted runners, the full length of the submarine, will keep the ship 15 feet below the bottom of the ice. Full buoyancy will insure the ship's coming to the surface when it comes to a break in the ice. No icebergs are that far north, to interrupt its progress.

Sir Hubert and his party of scientists and trained submarine crew plan to leave New York for London the last of April; they will journey then to Spitzbergen, from where they depart on their two-month trip under the pole to the Bering Sea and Alaska, returning early in September.

COSTLY BUT THOROUGH

"The submarine method of exploration should prove far more thorough, although air exploration is cheaper," Wilkins commented. "Two years' air work in the Arctic cost me $60,000; it will cost $150,000 to outfit the submarine alone, with another $100,000 before the trip is over.

"In a plane, however, one can't stop and one can seldom land—never without courting disaster. Only one day's observation is possible. Under water, at four miles an hour, we have plenty of time, and room for plenty of equipment. We can emerge from the sea or come up through the ice at will."

Wilkins, in a speech to the Keystone Club last night, recounted many adventures of former polar voyages, and showed motion pictures of his trips. He will return to speak before a gathering in the University Club Thursday.

This is the first speaking tour Sir Hubert has ever undertaken, he says.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO 2

Two persons were dead today as the result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district.

Mrs. Bessie Stutler, 25, of Eighth avenue and Amity street, Homestead, died from hemorrhage and shock after a machine driven, police said, by John Junin, 23, of Davis and Superior streets, Munhall, crashed at Main street and Duquesne road, Munhall, early today.

Junin told police his automobile skidded in a street car rail. He was turned over to the coroner.

Injuries suffered Saturday when an automobile he was driving collided with a truck at Sixth street and Maplewood avenue, Ambridge, caused the death in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, of Joseph Yossaff, 38, of 293 Fourteenth street, Ambridge, the coroner's office reported. Morgue attaches said the truck was driven by George Adams, of 311 Boyeston street, Ambridge.

Struck by an automobile near his home, Robert Bloat, 6, of Dewey street, Munhall, was recovering at his home today. The car, police said, was driven by John Worton, of 514 Duquesne road, Mifflin Township.

BRITAIN HONORS R-101 DEAD

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Endless columns of mourning Britons today passed slowly through Westminster Hall between long rows of coffins containing the bodies of the 48 victims of the disaster to the R-101, British dirigible which crashed and burned last Sunday morning near Beauvais, France.

The bodies will remain in the hall until they are carried tomorrow to their last resting place in the churchyard at Cardington, from where the dirigible started a week ago on the flight which ended in its destruction.

Princes of the empire, premiers of the British dominions, foreign diplomats and crowds of Londoners gathered in old St. Paul's Cathedral for the memorial services.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers, and will photograph those interviewed

Today's question: Does gambling pay?

JOSEPH E. PEFFER, Mt. Washington, director — No, I don't believe that gambling ever does pay. You may win for a time, but in the long run you will lose. It is bound to be that way.

Mr. Peffer

P. R. ZACHARAY, assistant hotel manager—No, gambling never pays. It is a game of great chances. One can only take so many chances; then he will find out the futility of it all.

Mr. Zacharay

MISS KATHLEEN HOUSTON, Brentwood, cashier — Gambling, as far as I can see, seems to pay—sometimes. That is about it, one can never depend on one's luck. As a regular thing, I would say that gambling does not pay.

Miss Houston

A DE MARCILLAC, Dormont, food accountant — No, gambling never pays. Unless a thing is founded on a firm basis, it is not dependable, thus it is with gambling. The very footing on which it stands is ever changing and as a result we can never count on our luck in gambling.

Mr. DeMarcillac

MISS SUSAN NOVOTNY, North Side, clerical work—Gambling never pays. A person who gambles never seems to get anywhere. He may be lucky for a while and think that everything is coming his way, but in the end, he is bound to lose.

Miss Novotny

EDWIN L. DECKER, East Liberty, operator —No, gambling is a matter of chance. The lucky man wins, but luck, good or bad, is never permanent. For this reason, I do not think gambling is a paying game.

Mr. Decker

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Garden Club Convention Wednesday

One of the dominating interests of Pittsburgh society women is gardens, anyone who has driven through Sewickley Heights, Shields, or through society colonies in the East End would conclude, and rightly.

So interested are many of the women that they belong to the Garden Club Federation of Allegheny County, and will entertain a convention of the Federation on Wednesday, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning, in the Allegheny Country Club.

Luncheon will be served in the clubhouse, and later Mrs. Carroll P. Davis, vice president of the western division of the Garden Club Federation, will entertain with a tea at Newington, Shields, where she lives with her mother, Mrs. L. Halsey Wiliams.

After tea the convention will visit some of the famous gardens of Sewickley, and in the evening will attend the pre-view of the International Art Exhibit.

Among those who'll have out-of-town folks as house guests are Mrs. John Semple, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. H. N. Van Voorhis, Mrs. F. F. Brooks, Mrs. Robert Milligan, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt and Mrs. W. J. Crittenden.

Baby Show

Newington, the stately old red brick home of Mrs. L. Halsey Williams, of Shields, set far back from the road and surrounded by a grove of ancient trees, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a baby show, held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Shields Presbyterian Church, for the benefit of the Leetsdale Welfare Home.

Tea was served on one of the spacious terraces, and flowers, candy and bazar articles were sold. In charge was Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks. Mrs. W. J. Crittenden was also one of the prominent workers, and so was Mrs. Carroll P. Davis, Mrs. Williams' daughter.

And youthful sons and daughters of society folks were entered in the show with Edith Benney, daughter of the Andrew Benneys and granddaughter of Henry R. Rea, tieing with Alexander Laughlin Robinson, Jr., son of the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons, for honors.

Many Attend

During the afternoon ever so many people arrived to see the young entries in the baby show. Mrs. J. Bernd Rose was there, wearing a swagger beige tweed dress and felt hat, and I saw Mrs. Andrew Benney wearing a pink crepe ensemble and a pink felt hat.

Mrs. J. D. Lyons was in pink crepe, and Katherine Walker in a peach knitted ensemble. Mrs. Edward Morse, Jr., in a black dress with a touch of white at the neckline, was there with her little daughter, Mary Leigh Morse, chatting with Mrs. Carroll P. Davis, in a green knitted ensemble.

Mrs. D. M. Taylor in a blue wool crepe gown with smart collars and cuffs of white pique, was having tea, and so were Mrs. George Barker Barrett, there with her young son, George Barker Barrett, Jr., and Mrs. H. H. McClintic.

Mrs. Eugene Kipp in a smart black and green Russian tunic dress, had her young son, Wilson, at the show, and Mrs. Gilbert Rafferty I saw near the flower table. She wore a smart mustard yellow travel print dressmaker suit with a brown felt hat, and Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., was in a grey tweed suit.

Others I noticed were Mrs. James B. Oliver, Mrs. James E. Umbstaetter, Mrs. Edward W. Woods and her little daughter, Nancy; Mrs. F. R. Stoner, Jr., in a green knitted suit, and Mrs. Francis H. McKnight with her small daughters, Laura and Jeanie.

At the flower table was Mrs. W. A. Galbraith in a purple knitted suit, chatting with Mrs. Alex L. Robinson, in a brown tweed suit, and Mrs. Roy E. Hunt with her son, McMasters Hunt.

Others there were Mrs. Frank Dravo, Mrs. Alexander Brooks, in a beige suit and a green hat, Mrs. James Todd, and Mrs. William Yost, who was at the tea table.

Gold Star Mothers' Leader Dies at 50

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Leah H. Davis, 50, national president of the Gold Star Mothers of America, is dead here. She was stricken with a heart attack last Tuesday.

Wilkinsburg Club Fetes President

The ball room of the Penn-Lincoln Hotel has never presented a more attractive appearance than it did yesterday for the president's reception of the Wilkinsburg Civic Club. There were palms everywhere and a banking of them with ferns across the stage. The piano had a lovely shawl arranged scarf-fashion and on it was a bouquet of autumn flowers. Yellow roses, large white chrysanthemums and yellow button chrysanthemums decorated the tea table where the yellow tapers, further carrying out the club colors, were tied with colonial nosegays.

The afternoon's program was opened by assembly singing and the invocation, which was by the Rev. O. H. Sisson, of the Wilkinsburg Baptist Church. Mrs. Harry Walker, retiring president, introduced her successor, Mrs. Lettie C. Erie, who took for her inaugural subject "Extending Horizons and Broadening Visions." The year's plan of study was outlined by Mrs. F. C. Miller.

The principal speaker for the afternoon, Florence Fisher Parry, Pittsburgh Press columnist, discussed a number of the outstanding plays which are due in Pittsburgh this season, among them "Berkeley Square," "Lysistrata," "June Moon" and "Death Takes a Holiday." In addition, she touched on "A Month in the Country" and "Scarlet Sister Mary," both of which are here this week, and concluded by reading a scene from "The Apple Cart." Music was by Miss Ethel Edwards, vocalist, with Mrs. Robert Minardi accompanying.

STYLISTS WARN AGAINST OVER ORNAMENTING VELVET FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Velvet is smart when it borrows a leaf from the book of politics and avoids all entangling alliances. By this we mean that the smartest velvet frocks are those which avoid all heavily beaded embroideries and rhinestones and showers of strass and ally themselves with those materials which will set off the lustrous fabric to the best advantage. Velvet and tulle, velvet and chiffon, velvet and fine lace such as Chantilly—these are ideal combinations guaranteed to give good results. One thing is important, whenever velvet is to be combined with another fabric, care should be exercised to see that both materials are discreetly blended or used. Otherwise the dress will be a cheap looking affair that will reflect credit neither on the owner or the maker. But velvet and a sheer or mesh fabric cleverly merged and unadorned by any shiny ornamentation should combine to fashion a dress that should win praise and be in the picture whenever and wherever it may be worn.

THE HOUSE of Drecoll-Beer offers an object lesson in the use of velvet and a sheer fabric, in the form of the lovely evening frock here illustrated. Only the bodice subscribes to the princess influence as the skirt is wide and flaring. The decolletage has a modest V in front and a much deeper one in back. Even a casual glance at the sketch will show how cleverly and artistically the black ring velvet and the black chiffon have been merged into one harmonious design.

BROWN is one of the shades of night with the advent of that color as a fashionable hue for dinner frocks. Lucien Lelong uses this color for an informal dinner dress with short sleeves. The material is brown georgette and a piquant color contrast is obtained by the turquoise blue of the flowers that make the shoulder decoration. The flaring sleeves and skirt edge are cut in tooth effect, an original and very pretty detail. The moderately high waistline is marked by a narrow belt of georgette with a strass buckle. Turquoise jewelry is worn to carry out the color scheme.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

I always did think the dainty, novel dishes you can prepare from left-overs are irresistibly interesting. Somehow, you put a little of your own ingenuity into the making of them, and they're greatly the better for it.

A leg of lamb, for instance—you roast it brownly and crisply for your Sunday dinner. And then with the remains you do something like this, perhaps:

PANNED LAMB WITH OYSTERS—Heat 6 oysters in 2 tablespoons of butter. When they begin to curl, add 1½ cups of finely chopped lamb, salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with gravy or with meat stock, and let simmer for 10 minutes. Serve on hot toast. Garnish with parsley. It's a dish warranted to provide a treat for a jaded appetite.

SPANISH LAMB—Slice raw potatoes very thin and put them in the bottom of a well-buttered individual baking dish. Season with salt and pepper and finely minced onion. Moisten with gravy or white sauce. Next add thinly sliced cold roast lamb. Pour over tomato puree. Sprinkle generously with bread crumbs and bake in a slow oven until the potatoes are tender. Serve with fresh hot buttered peas on top.

BAKED LAMB HASH is always good, especially if you have a generous dish of hot buttered biscuits to serve with it.

Mix equal parts of cold cooked chopped lamb and freshly cooked diced potatoes. Moisten with cream sauce, season with salt, pepper, parsley and onion. Put into a buttered baking dish. Moisten with cream or milk. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter, and bake in the oven until well browned, about 20 minutes.

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOM LOAF—Chop 1 12-ounce can of chicken and 1 8-ounce can of mushrooms fine. Add 4 tablespoons of chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper, 1½ cups of soft crumbs and 3 eggs, slightly beaten. Add the mushroom liquor from the 8-ounce can to make the mixture moist, but not too wet. Place a few slices of bacon on the bottom of a greased loaf pan, pack in the mixture, place more bacon on top and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for about 45 minutes. Serve the following sauce over the slices:

SOUR CREAM SAUCE—Saute 3 tablespoons of chopped pimento in 2 tablespoons of butter for 3 minutes. Add 1½ cups of sour cream. Smooth 1½ tablespoons of flour with 2 tablespoons of cold water, add to the hot cream and cook until creamy and smooth. Season to taste with salt and paprika. Pour over the chicken and mushroom loaf when sliced.

TOMATO STUFF WITH COTTAGE CHEESE—Four medium sized tomatoes, ½ cup cottage cheese, 4 tablespoons crushed pineapple, ½ cup cooked mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts. Chill tomatoes thoroughly. Remove a slice from the stem end and cut tomatoes in six sections, leaving sections joined at the bottom. Arrange on a leaf of crisp lettuce. Combine cheese, pineapple and mayonnaise and place a large spoonful of the mixture in the center of the tomato. Sprinkle the chopped nuts over the top. Serve with more mayonnaise, or French dressing if preferred. Yield, 4 servings.

STEAMED SQUASH—Wash and pare a squash. Simmer. Place in the upper part of the double boiler and add 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Cover closely and steam for 1 hour or until the squash is tender. Mash, add ¼ cup cream. Serve garnished with toasted marshmallows.

STUFFED STEAK—Two pounds round steak, 2 cups bread crumbs, 2 small onions, ¼ teaspoon sage, salt, pepper, ¼ teaspoon soda, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons butter. Mix crumbs, minced onions, seasonings, soda and spread on the steak, which should be flattened and well seasoned. Roll up and tie or skewer the ends to keep stuffing in. Flour steak. Melt drippings in a pan, put the steak in the hot drippings and sear well. Add 1 cup hot water, put in the oven and bake slowly 1½ hours.

JELLIED CARROTS AND PEAS—One package lemon flavored gelatin, 1 cup boiling water, ¾ cup vegetable stock or cold water, 3 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 cup cooked carrots, diced, 1 cup peas.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add vegetable stock or cold water, vinegar, salt and paprika. Chill. When slightly thickened fold in carrots and peas. Turn into molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serves six.

TRIPE A LA CREOLE — One pound tripe, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons chopped onions, chopped green pepper, 1½ cups strained tomatoes.

Melt butter; add pepper and onion, and cook until onion is soft and yellowish in color. Add flour, stir until smooth, then add tomatoes, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Season to taste with salt. Boil tripe until tender, cut in 2-inch pieces, add to sauce and simmer 10 minutes.

ORANGE ICEBOX CAKE—One-half cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup orange juice, grated rind ½ orange, 24 lady fingers, 1 cup cream.

Mix sugar and flour and add to beaten egg yolks; add milk and butter and cook over hot water until thick and smooth; add orange juice and rind. Remove from fire, cool slightly and add stiffly-beaten whites of eggs. Line bottom and sides of spring form with lady fingers, flat side toward the pan and close together. Cover lady fingers with a layer of filling; and a top layer of lady fingers. Place in icebox for 12 hours to harden. When ready to serve, remove to platter and cover with whipped cream.

COCOANUT DROP CAKES—Combine ½ cup shortening with 1 cup honey, 1 well beaten egg. Combine 1¾ cups bread flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 tablespoons cornstarch and ½ teaspoon salt. Sift 3 times and combine with grated rind of ½ lemon, ½ tablespoon orange extract and add to the first mixture. Mix well. Drop by spoonsful onto a cookie sheet. Sprinkle thickly with shredded and chopped cocoanut. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.

SWEET POTATO SURPRISE—Two cups diced sweet potatoes (an egg beaten slightly); a few grains of pepper, ½ teaspoon salt, 8 marshmallows, ½ cup rice flakes rolled into crumbs.

Add the egg, pepper and salt to the sweet potatoes. Form in eight balls with a marshmallow inside. Roll in the crumbs and fry in deep fat (380 degrees) until a golden brown.

SCRAMBLED EGGS, COUNTRY STYLE—One cup of small cubes of white bread, 2 tablespoons cooking oil, 4 eggs, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cornstarch, ¼ cup milk, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Fry the bread in the cooking oil until slightly brown. Dissolve the cornstarch in the milk, add the seasonings and eggs, beaten. Scramble slowly, allowing the mixture to coagulate a little before scraping it from the bottom of the pan.

ROLLED PECAN WAFERS—One-quarter cup shortening, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoonfuls flour, 1-3 cup pecans, chopped, ⅛ teaspoonful salt, ½ teaspoonful vanilla.

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Add flour, nuts, salt and flavoring, and mix well. Drop by teaspoons on greased cooky sheet 5 inches apart and spread out thin with back of spoon. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove with a spatula and roll while hot over round wooden spoon handle. If the cookies become too cool to roll, they may be reheated in the oven.

A CRANBERRY SALAD is not only seasonal and delicious, but it has the added advantage of being splendid for the system! Run a quart of cranberries and 2 whole oranges through the food chopper; add 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water, and boil 2 minutes. Add to it a package of gelatin dissolved in a cup of boiling water; cool slightly, add a cup of celery and nuts and set aside to chill and set. Accompany the salad with cheese straws or thin cheese sandwiches, olives and a beverage, and you have an ideal luncheon.

SPICED PUNCH — One cup sugar, 1 cup water, ½ tablespoonful whole cloves. Juice 6 oranges, 3-inch piece cinnamon stick, juice 6 lemons, 1 cup grapefruit juice, 1 cup pineapple juice.

Make a syrup of sugar, water and spices. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil 10 minutes. Strain and cool. Add fruit juices and water to taste. Serve with cracked ice, or ice tubes tinted with green vegetable coloring.

ILLINOIS FRIED CORN — Straight from the corn belt comes this recipe for a favorite: 3 cups green corn cut from the cob; ½ tablespoon corn syrup; 2 tablespoons cooking oil; a minced green pepper; a small can of pimentoes, chopped; salt and pepper.

Sunshine Bakers are so careful, they almost count the grains of salt they put on their Krispy Crackers. That's why everybody likes 'em. They're not too salty . . . And yet there s a hearty tang about these crisp, flavorful squares that makes them just right to serve with soup, salad, cheese, jam, jelly, and peanut butter.

FIRED because he was always tired

IN EVERY WALK of life you meet the "Drowsy Bills" . . . men and women who are losing out because they are always tired. They try hard enough . . . but most often the poisons from constipation sap energy and strength — and bring illness, defeat and old age prematurely.

What a pity, when eating a delicious cereal could prevent it all! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation! Two tablespoons daily — at every meal, in severe cases.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in a natural, healthful way, by sweeping the intestines of all poisonous wastes. Eaten regularly, it helps keep the system healthfully clean.

Isn't this far better than taking pills and drugs that are often habit-forming and may become ineffective?

ALL-BRAN also adds iron to the blood. It is a delicious cereal with milk or cream. Use it in cooking too. Recipes on the package. At your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Cathie's Attorney Thinks That She Is Guilty

CHAPTER XLI.

Cathie came into the room where he was waiting. The visitors' room where she had seen so many people in the last four days. She put out one hand and groped her way to him. Her frenzied powdering with the matron's puff hadn't done any good. The tears washed the powder away as fast as she put it on. In the end she gave up, and went to him just as she was, all crumpled and red-eyed and half blinded with tears. And never had his heart gone out to her, as it did then, in her disheveled despair.

"Gordon—I—I almost thought you weren't coming!"

"Cathie—oh, my dear, my dear!"

She saw that he was shocked at her appearance, and her lip trembled, she was going to cry again.

"Cathie, darling, I didn't know. I started on a fishing trip—not to catch any fish—just to get away. I couldn't bear losing you, and I did just the worst thing—the worst thing—"

She clung to him. "It doesn't matter now. You're back. Oh, Gordon, I've wanted you so. I've waited and waited—"

"My dear . . . my poor little Cathie—"

"I knew you'd come. Only it was so hard, waiting."

"Cathie, what can I say? What can I do? I know so little—"

"Don't say anything. Just hold me in your arms, Gordon. I'm so tired. I just want you to love me. Then I don't care about anything else. Just love me—that's all—just—love me—"

She rested in his arms. It was the first time she had really rested in the four long, heart-breaking days . . .

People passed in the corridor, turned to crane their necks and stare. A policeman. Two women crying softly, on their way to visit a young girl picked up on a bad-check passing charge. The matron. Another matron from another floor. But Cathie didn't see them, and Gordon didn't care.

"Cathie, I'm going to see the attorneys. We've got to get you out of this."

"I know."

"Cathie, have you told all you know?"

Gordon Has Alibi

"Yes. They've asked me questions until I'm almost out of my mind. But I don't know anything."

"Cathie. Do you know what I think? Chester—"

"Chester? his own fa-father!"

He set his mouth grimly. "Yes, it's terrible. But it's possible."

"But—a son—"

"Cathie, did you tell them about the fights Chester and Farnsworth had toward the end?"

"No."

"Good! I'm off for the attorneys."

"But you couldn't send Chester . . . I mean you couldn't do that to him?"

"I couldn't?" He smiled bitterly. "After what he did to you?"

She threw out her hands helplessly. "I think he believes I did. Oh, don't look that way. I saw his face. I know he believes it."

"Ridiculous. But leave all that to me. We won't talk of that. I'll take care of you, Cathie . . . By the way, I had to take care of myself, too. I was a suspect too, did you know that?"

"Then they did mean it! They told me, but I didn't believe it. Oh, Gordon, tell me. I won't ever forgive myself for getting you into all this—never—never!" She was beginning to shake again.

Found by Chinaman

"I don't know, Gordon. She was asleep when I went to her room. She had nothing to do with it. She tried to help me."

"Yes, but why did she run out on the police?"

Cathie shook her head. "I don't know. She was always queer, you know. Maybe she got frightened."

After a pause Cathie said, "Gordon, isn't it funny they haven't arrested any of the Chinese?"

"Oh, they grilled the poor devils. I got that from the boy who found me. Good Lord, I almost forgot to tell you how they found me. The police have been combing the country. So have David and Uncle Andrew. So's Aunt Maud in her own way, too. By the way, Aunt Maud is coming down for the trial—she's determined to help you. She will, too. She's a regular detective. Know's what's going to happen before it does . . . She—She knew I was in love with you almost before I did, Cathie . . . She told me afterward . . ."

Cathie smiled wanly. Dear little blind lady. And how long ago it seemed . . . A lifetime.

"There—I got off the track, and forgot to tell you about Cheong. Cheong, the see-all, know-all, and say nothing! He knows every Chinaman in the state of California. Regular underground railway system. Lord knows how they do it. Anyway the word was relayed along and this Chinaman walked into my camp about daybreak this morning. He had the whole file of clippings on the case. Pretty near floored me. I couldn't believe it. . . . Well, we left my camping stuff where it stood, and beat it for the nearest town. I gave myself up and we came on with a police escort and sirens tooting from Sacramento. Quite a ride!"

She smiled in sympathy, reached over and patted his dark head. To think he was still young enough to get a thrill out of a ride . . . She felt too old herself. . . . Cathie, who was 20. . . .

Cathie Happier

I'd better go along, Cathie. Work to do! I've got to get you out of here. Tomorrow at the latest. Can you stand another day, honey? Will you be brave?"

"Oh, yes—but don't go. Don't go yet. You've just come, and I've so much to tell you. . . . And, oh, Gordon . . . think of it—poor Mr. Farnsworth. Gordon, you don't think he did it himself, do you? Do you know I wouldn't like to think that. I—I'd rather be here—accused and all, than to think that I made him—that I made him—"

"But you didn't!—That theory's all exploded. We'll soon know who did it, Cathie. I'm off now. I must go—"

"No—don't leave me. Don't leave me!"

She cried a little when he left, but she was almost happy. Powdered her nose, asked for clothes, agreed to the matron's offer of tea.

But she thought Mrs. Evans looked more sorry for her than ever. Their tea wasn't very gay, though Cathie chattered, and laughed, and was more like herself than she had been for days.

The cups were hardly drained when Mr. Allan came. "All I do is have company!" Cathie laughed, when the message came.

"Well, never get too busy to see your attorney, young lady!"

Mr. Allan got right to the point. "How brave do you feel?" he asked her abruptly. He looked fat and dyspeptic and finished with life.

Lawyer Pessimistic

Cathie paled a little. "I feel very brave," she said steadily. But her heart was crying . . . Oh, now something's happened . . . now when he's back, and I was feeling happy . . . if it only could have come before, when I wasn't caring . . .

"I don't mind telling you that you're in a fine hole," he said. "This boy friend of yours coming on the scene, and you all smiles and blushes won't help ONE BIT. 'She killed the old one, for the young one'—do you see? I foresaw that. Tried to build up a history of abuse for you, tried to give you a decent motive. But you've ruined all that. Only this morning in your interview with the press you told how good Farnsworth was to you. Bah! What sympathy will they have for you? You've got to stop talking. I won't allow any more interviews, but the damage is all done."

She looked at him, not quite comprehending. She was still so happy. "Well, I didn't do it, and there's all there is to it. My word is as good as Chester's, isn't it?"

He looked at her glumly. "My dear young lady. They've got a witness downstairs. They're going to bring you down to be identified in a few minutes. Now come clean with me. Tell me the truth, or I'll have to drop the case. Confess and I'll save your freedom and my reputation. Hold out on me, and sure as I'm Jesse Partington Allan, the best you can hope for is life!"

Household Hints

As you iron, stack your clothes into piles according to the rooms in which they will be put away. Then when you are finished the clothes are sorted and need not be handled twice.

One woman has a cheap towel rack screwed to the right-hand end of her sewing machine, on which she hangs the different parts of her stitching as she finishes them. Nothing is ever mislaid or mussed during her sewing orgy.

The housewife will think up almost anything to make for improvement in the furnishings in her home. The same thing applies to cooking. A little imagination and thought when putting foods together make for very interesting dishes.

He Walks Out on Her: Better Before Than After Marriage—Fay King

By FAY KING

A young man has been devoted to a girl.

Everything was perfectly lovely with prospects of a proposal and marriage. Suddenly, without rhyme or reason, he walked out of the picture.

"Why? What shall I do?" she writes to ask.

Well, there is nothing to do but watch and wait, and see what happens next. That alone can solve the mystery.

He will either come back and explain, or she will learn from another direction why he left so suddenly.

There can be any number of reasons.

At any rate, it is better to lose one who can have such a sudden change of heart (if such it be) before marriage than after. A broken engagement is better than a broken home.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

With Detective in City, Madge Prepares for Pleasant Trip Home

I found no difficulty in getting back to the Trains. The first passerby proved intelligently aware of the Kingston streets, and when I had found the corner marked upon Mr. Train's map I made my way swiftly to his house, troubled only by the fear that Mr. Hasbrouck's son might have telephoned some news of the private detective during the time I was foolishly fleeing from the Veritzen car, and that Mr. Train might have tried in vain to find me.

But as I came back into the Train sitting room I found to my relief that I would have no explanations to make, and that nothing disturbing had happened. Mr. Train and Mr. Hasbrouck were so engaged in a game of checkers that they hardly looked up at my entrance, and little Mrs. Train adroitly drew me into the next room with her finger on her lips.

"Mr. Train does so hate to be disturbed when he's playing a close game," she said. "Mr. Hasbrouck and he are pretty evenly matched, and they keep track of their games just like a tournament. Did you have a nice walk?" "Oh, yes," I said truthfully, for before and after my encounter with the Veritzen limousine I had been conscious of the contented feeling which only a walk in the outdoors gives me. "There was no telephone, I suppose."

"Nobody called," she rejoined, "and Mr. Train said as long as there was nothing to do but wait they might as well have their game."

"Of course," I said a bit absently, for a glance at my wrist watch told me that little remained of the hour which we had said we would wait before starting for New York to be sure that a possible telephone from Mr. Hasbrouck's son might not miss us. Should I awaken Lillian and Mary and have them get ready for the journey, or should I wait the pleasure of the checker players?

I decided upon the latter course. After all, the day was yet young, and I was perfectly willing to have still greater periods of time and space between us and the private detective, who had lost our trail, or so we hoped. I also was perfectly willing to have Philip Veritzen well on his way to New York, if, indeed, that was his destination, before I started. So I sat down in the nearest chair and spoke in as low a tone as she had used.

"I shall be glad to rest a bit after my walk," I said. "Won't you sit down with me?"

"Yes, I'll get my mending," she said, and brought a large basket from the corner.

"I never saw a man go through his clothes the way Mr. Train does," she said, looking up for an instant from her work, and, though the words might have been interpreted as a complaint, there was in her voice and eyes distinct pride in the activity of her husband. I caught my cue and returned it promptly.

"I should think he'd go through three pairs of socks a day," I said laughing, "he's so active."

"Yes, isn't he?" she agreed naively, and then there was a jovial shout from Mr. Hasbrouck. "Got you that time," and almost at the same time the telephone rang. Mr. Train hurried toward it, throwing a dogged "Wait till next time!" over his shoulder, and then he looked up with portentous meaning.

"Long distance," he said solemnly. "That must be Ed."

We waited tensely until the call was completed, and then Mr. Train said: "Ed? Just a second. Your father's right here," and beckoned Mr. Hasbrouck to the telephone.

I expected the usual maddening one-sided telephone conversation, but Mr. Hasbrouck must have repeated every word his son said, for I was able to piece out a connected narrative from his questions and comments.

"Hello! Ed? Where are you? Down near Bronx Park on the Boston Post road? Well, you've sure made good time. Where's the fellow you were trailing? What's that? You've lost him?"

His voice was suddenly sharp with dismay. The next instant he gave an ejaculation of anger; then a reluctant guffaw.

"Don't you tell me to keep my shirt on, young feller," he said, "or I'll give you a hiding when you get home, old as I am. But if you've only just lost sight of him that part of it's all right. You only contracted to trail him to the city. How did it happen? Do you think he suspected you? Nary a suspect, eh? All right. Come home when you're ready. So long."

He hung up the receiver and turned to us.

"Ed's sore at New York cops," he said with a chuckle. "He got into a traffic jam down there and the cop let the fellow in the black roadster through and kept him back. You see, he kept about two cars back so the chap wouldn't see him. And when the signal changed there was no black roadster to be seen."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, October 11

A very active and interesting day is forecast from the predominant aidereal influences. While things will move rapidly, and there will be a strong impulse to launch into bold adventures, yet there is an adverse aspect to thwart the plans and also it may be difficult to successfully approach those in authority or employers.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and interesting year with both business and personal affairs moving at high pitch.

A child born on this day may be versatile, brilliant intellectually and of great personal charm, yet it may incline to extravagance and undue indulgence in this direction, to the jeopardy of its workaday interests. It may lean toward subtlety and expediency, and suffer from such methods.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Modes—and the Man

A woman may waste a lot more time shopping for her clothes than a man does; but, in these days, a man wastes twice as much time getting INTO his clothes as a woman does.

Given an equal chance at the mirror for the masculine shave and the feminine facial landscaping, and almost any woman could be all dressed and half through a dinner-party, while her husband is still struggling with his collar or his evening tie and looking for his cuff-links.

It's time for the men to order that two-pants fall suit; and the little rumble of feeble remonstrance against his sartorial sufferings, which man attempted this summer, has risen to a mighty wail for liberty and justice! Everywhere, men are bursting into print, demanding not only more comfort, but more variety and beauty in masculine attire!

* * *

The present styles are about as appropriate to this carefree speedy age as a horse-car or a hand-plow.

It takes a man more time to assemble himself, with all his buttons, belts, links, attachments and patent devices, than it takes a woman to decide between a new car and a trip to Paris.

If men are really the Inventive Sex, why have they never been able to invent a set of garments that will slip on as easily as a woman's do and feel just as comfortable?

Why do they still cling to hot coats in summer and to trousers which invite the wintry winds to blow up their legs in January? Or, if they can't achieve a comfortable outfit, why can't they invent something at least less monotonous and easier on the eyes?

If the present masculine styles were founded on comfort, reason or convenience, there would be SOME alibi for their lack of grace and charm.

Of course, somebody will retort with a letter asking why, if men's clothes are so unalluring and ungainly, women are trying so hard to imitate them, and stealing their shorts, their pajamas and their riding breeches.

* * *

Don't ask ME!

There is only one thing about a man's clothes that any woman could possibly envy him; and that is his ability to wear the same suit and hat, year after year, and still be the glass of fashion.

He doesn't have to waste half his life shortening or lengthening his trousers, ripping out his sleeves and putting them back in again, sewing peplums on his last year's coat and berthas on his shirt, or banting down to the new silhouette.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Drinking Bouillon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper, when drinking soup from a bouillon cup, to pick the cup up in one's hand?

2. When the cup has but one handle, what is proper?

3. What does one do when a spoon is served with a bouillon cup?

Yes. When we drink bouillon, we sip the first few mouthfuls to test the heat of the liquid, and then, if we wish, we drink the rest of the bouillon as we would drink tea.

2. Since we would use only one handle when we lift the cup, it really does not make any difference if the cup has only one handle. Of course, if it has only one handle, it is a tea cup, not a bouillon cup. The extra handle, which makes a tea cup a bouillon cup, is the tea cup putting on "side."

3. We use the spoon, correctly the small bouillon spoon especially designed for use with the bouillon cup, to take the first few sips.

The Prospective College Girl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Some girls would like to get information from different colleges concerning their courses of study. What is the principle of getting this information? How is it done?

A AND B.

Write to the secretary of each college that you are considering. If you can find her name use it; otherwise, address your letter to "The Secretary of Blank College." Ask her to be so kind as to send you a catalog of the college, and, if you have any special questions concerning special courses in which you are interested, present these questions. It is very easy simple to get this information, and you will find the replies to your questions and requests thoroughly and cordially answered.

And dear friend, will you let me whisper to you that this is the correct spelling of college—not with the second vowel an a. It would be terrible for you to write to a secretary of a college, and misspell college!

There is a very helpful little book that you will probably be able to get in your library called "Choosing a College." I am very much interest in girls going to college, and, if at any time I can help, you would do me a great favor if you write me. Will you, please? There are so many difficult things to decide in choosing just the right college for the individual girl.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Ought There to Be a Law Against a Married Woman Working?

Do working wives wreck their husbands' self-respect.

And gyp them out of their reputation with the neighbors?

Patsy says they do—and she's plenty sorry for gentlemen whose wives hold jobs.

Elnora, if you remember, started this brawl. Wives who helped hubbies pay the rent were responsible for all the hangnails of modern civilization, from Bread Lines to Baby Bandits. And Patsy's for her a million.

"Dear Sally:

"Hurrah and hurray for Elnora! She's got the right slant on this 'working wives' business, believe me! Ten years ago, when I was single and working in an office, we single girls felt sorry for a married woman who had to work—and she felt sorry for herself. But now the married gals have got so conceited and 'smart' that they feel sorry for a single girl! Can you beat it?

"But do I feel sorry for the husbands of these working ladies? I sure do—and how! They are the real victims. Slowly, but surely, every husband of a working wife is having his manhood and self-respect zapped.

"There is no sane reasoning in the world that can overcome the fact that men and women are fundamentally different, even if they do have potentially similar reactions to experience. No man or woman can have a complete life without the love and companionship of the opposite sex . . . but each has a distinct part to play. And no woman can be a helpmate to any man when she has to serve two masters . . . him and a job.

"Of course, we all know of rare cases where a man is physically unable to work, and it is necessary for the woman to become the breadwinner. Then, all respect is due her. Also, widows, be they grass or sod, should have the same chance as single girls for employment. But there sure ought to be a law against women working after they're married 'just because they want to.'

"You're darn right, Elnora, that if the poor man ever manages to get clear of one of these 'working wife' leeches (and it sure is harder to get rid of one of them than it is of a clinging vine, because it's harder for one to get a man, whereas a real woman who understands men and appreciates them can always get a real one), he'll never go through the same nightmare again. He'll look for a womanly woman, who knows how to be a 50-50 pal. Someone who knows that there is something infinitely sweet about a girl looking to her man for protection.

"And I pity the working wife, too. The end of the poor, conceited, deluded creature is usually pitiful. Even if the man never escapes her, such a Jane can never be sure that she would have been chosen as the lucky Missis if Papa had had to support Mama.

"But pity rather fades, doesn't it, when we stop to think of the thousands of men, both married and single, and the thousands of single girls, that these selfish creatures have caused to become jobless?

"Here's more power to you, Elnora! And may your tribe increase! This world sure needs sensible girls like you.

"PATSY.

"An Appreciated Wife."

Yeah, that listens grand, Patsy. And if you're half smart, that coy little coo of yours about "a girl looking to her man for protection" should net you at least a wrist watch, with your Pleased Papa. But personally, your line leaves me cold.

Why do most married women work? Because they and the youngsters have to eat, my dear. And suppose it does bruise their Lord n' Master's Self Esteem? Any man that keeps on having self esteem after the pantry's empty and the rent's unpaid ought to get over it. Self esteem under such conditions isn't a virtue—it's a disease. And the lady who shows it up deserves medals.

And I will admit that the Big Boys are being shown up. Well, why not? They've been getting by with murder.

HOTELMEN FLAY 'LOBBY PESTS'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The constitutional rights, if any, of the "lobby loafers" was discussed before the convention of the American Hotel Association here.

Frank A. K. Boland, of New York, general counsel for the association, declared that when persons use space and privileges of a hotel, especially in the lobby, so as to inconvenience paying guests, and otherwise make themselves objectionable to reasonable rules of the proprietor, they may be ejected.

Defrauding hotels resulted in about 100 arrests in the United States during the year ending September 1, the association's protective committee reported.

TRAIN CRASHES AUTO, 1 DEAD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP.)—A freight train crashed into an automobile here fatally injuring Mrs. Thressa McShane, 35, of Carpentertown, near Mt. Pleasant.

Edward Sloan, 32, a salesman of Mt. Pleasant, driver of the machine, was unhurt, but collapsed after the accident and was reported in a serious condition last night in Uniontown Hospital.

Mrs. McShane was the wife of Hugh McShane, a contractor. She was the mother of three children.

Milk Increases Nutritive Quality of Bread

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City, United States Senator from New York.

Health is so vital to happiness that nothing can be more natural than to talk about it. When two or three are gathered together it won't be long before this important subject is under discussion.

What to eat and what not to eat are favorite topics of conversation. During the past 10 years there has been much discussion about bread. There have been bitter disputes concerning the relative values of whole wheat bread and white bread.

Whole wheat, graham and bran breads have become very popular in some circles. This is because of their supposed high content of proteins, vitamins and minerals. Many advocates of whole wheat bread go so far as to stigmatize white bread as a menace to mankind. The extremists regard it as having often caused disease. Such statements are unscientific and ridiculous.

WHOLE WHEAT ADVANTAGEOUS

Whole wheat breads, particularly bran bread, are advantageous in that they possess laxative properties. Though these breads are nutritious that fact does not make white bread an unfit and undesirable food. Indeed, in certain respects, white bread is superior to the other varieties.

Whole wheat and graham flour are not as easily digested as are the finer flours. This is particularly important in considering the welfare of children. You must not feed your children whole wheat and graham breads merely because you have been touched by the appealing statements telling of the highly nutritive content of these brands.

The fact is, children are intolerant of high cellulose diets. In many cases these brands are actually irritating to the intestines of children.

NEEDED NUTRIENTS

It is true that whole wheat bread contains needed nutrients that are less in quantity in white flour. However, this is no reason to eliminate white bread from the daily diet. The deficiency is easily made up by taking sufficient amounts of protective foods, such as eggs, green vegetables and fresh fruits. No one food is perfect and, in order to be assured of a balanced diet, we must have variety. It is not to be expected that a single article of food will supply every human need. Indeed, the very monotony of such a diet would be destructive to health.

Within recent years the nutritive quality of most white breads has been greatly increased. This was brought about by the use of milk to replace a part of the water in the dough. This change in baking methods has introduced to us the so-called "milk bread." Because of the value of milk proteins, the addition to the loaf of even this small amount of milk, adds greatly to the nutritive value of white bread.

Fortune Smiles Twice On Carole Lombard Within Few Days

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.

Fortune has smiled twice on Carole Lombard within a few days.

She has been given a long-term contract at Paramount, which insures her work for some time to come.

At the same time, she has inherited such a fortune that she need never work another day if she doesn't want to.

The fortune comes from her grandmother, Mrs. Alice Knight, whose will has just been probated at Fort Wayne, Tex. Carole is the sole beneficiary named in the document.

Carole Lombard

Her first role at Paramount will be in William Powell's next picture. It is tentatively titled "Buy Your Woman."

A wire from Colleen Moore reports that she survived the opening of her stage show in Rochester last Friday.

"During the first act," she says, "I didn't know whether there was an audience out there or not."

The play is booked for an eight-week run before it reaches Broadway.

Lois Wilson, who hasn't done anything on the screen for some time, is turning down leads in Westerns. She plans to forget billing, cut her salary one-third and hold out for attractive character roles.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Broadway seems so strange when the sun is blazing . . . I do not like it as much as I do when the bulbs are flaming . . . Maybe it's because I feel like a stranger in the daytime . . . The people seem different . . . The Stem doesn't pack the same wallop . . . The women aren't as contagious . . . The "Hell's Angels" portrait on the Criterion seems lifeless—no burning Zeppelins or nothing.

The music shops are quiet, and the running sign on the Times edifice flashing last-minute news dispatches is dark . . . That's not Broadway . . . It's Main Street! . . . The peasants are so serious . . . Probably going to work or coming from some place where they heard "No," again . . . Broadway by Night is Broadway . . . The people at night are either going or coming from the theater . . . Or to the asylums where the lights are dim and everyone is interesting because their pasts are . . . Good people make dull paragraphs . . . Mustn't get up early any more.

Wonder if Ethel will choke on that pretty bouquet of scallions Variety presents to her this issue . . . Hope the others mentioned in it see it . . . I mean those counterfeiters who try to make newspapermen believe that they are "good guys in a tough spot" . . . And then try to stifle them by complaining to their editors . . . The phonies! . . . What a contract Cohan is to that crew of mice, . . . When George learned that Broun was running a show at the Broadhurst Sunday night he volunteered to appear and will . . . After all the scoldings Heywood penned about George's "poor sportsmanship," too.

That's the sort of stuff that makes Broadway go, I guess . . . And Bill Robinson, Adelaide Hall and Ada Brown of the "Brown Buddies" show will make it all a joy . . . Instead of resting on the Sabbath and doctoring his wounded wing Robinson insists upon helping . . . Hope his show clicks . . . The applause at the premiere was the sort they gave Lindbergh when he came back from Paris . . . Before the show was one song old it was stopped colder than a night club hot roast beef sandwich.

The dinner to Escoffier, the grand chef at the new Pierre, will probably disappoint the stiff-shirted who are going . . . The fancy menu winds up with "Liquere des sages," which will be nothing but a nice, long, cold drink of water! . . . Wonder if it is true that Tullio Carminati, the heavy lover in "Strictly Dishonorable," uses "Christmas Night" perfume . . . Can't quit thinking of the last minute rush the other day when they yelled for an obituary notice on Jack Donahue.

Nobody in the office "knew" Jack . . . All they had on him in the reference room was a clip recording his activities in a new show . . . Then when they needed his "career" for his obit they went nuts . . . Why do they always wait until a guy shoves off before they decide to warble his praises . . . That's the newspaper racket, I suppose . . . They don't "know" Donahue because he had never crashed the Page Ones, or the second, third or fourth page in the sensational or scandal manner . . . Good people make dull paragraphs is right! . . . The reference room is lousy with material for an obit on Harry Thaw, Peaches Browning, Earl Carroll, Mae West and Walter Winchell!

Those two yarns about the men who broke jail only to be found out so many years after, gave me the shudders . . . That one, for instance, about the lad who hid his past for 20 years . . . And became president of a hotel chain only to be told one day by his associates that they knew . . . "You wouldn't want to hurt the rest of us, would you?" they asked him . . . So they gave him twenty-five million for his end and his resignation . . . And today he is a raving maniac somewhere in Paris . . . The other yarn is pathetic and makes me lose my respect for those "Mutual Welfare Leagues" which are supposed to help a guy go straight.

The chap went to Atlanta for something or other shortly after his daughter was born . . . Fifteen years later he broke jail . . . He shelved his tag for another and when his kid was 19 she selected her groom . . . The old man thought it would be unfair not to tell the suitor of his past so that she could be wedded under her real name . . . Which was done, but the rotter looked up the records, learned that there was a reward and turned his prospective dad-in-law in to the coppers . . . When reporters asked the recaptured man if he regretted telling the boy of his past, he answered:

"No, I'd rather spend the rest of my life in jail than have her married to such a rat!"

I like that one about the hypocritical clergyman who wanted to go to the theater to hear Edwin Booth, but who was afraid that some of his parishioners might object if they saw him . . . So he wrote to Booth and asked him whether there was a back door to the playhouse where he could slip in unseen . . . Booth's pungent response was:

"There is no door in my theater through which God cannot see."

Maybe Hammond shouldn't try to be fair with some of those mugs . . . Percy is getting too mellow . . . He gets sick about curtain time, doctors himself hurriedly and makes the premiere after the first act is over . . . Then when the play is finished he decides he no like, so his plan is not to review it "because it wouldn't be fair to all concerned" . . . Instead he instructed his assistant to turn in the verdict because the ass't saw all of it . . . And what happened? . . . The management puts up a squawk because Perce didn't write the notice, which would have been just as sour, . . . Serves Hammond right for showing his Cadiz, O., manners, . . . When will he ever learn that "It's a dirty trick—but it's good Broadway!" is the Big Idea?

So Owen Davis, the playwright, is getting touchy about dramatic critics now . . . After all these years, too . . . 251 plays he has written and he begins to take his judges to heart . . . Critics, like dramatists, are emotional idiots, says Davis . . . And, that critics hate to tell the truth about a good play . . . Dramatists, like critics, are often mistaken, Davis should have said . . . How stupid! . . . The critic who becomes so proficient at doping out plays is a sap to dope them out for a newspaper when he could get rich quicker advising the ticket brokers what shows to invest in or lay off.

Hate to tell the truth about a good play? . . . The poor ones are the toughest to report . . . When you are enthusiastic about one it takes less than ten minutes to write a "rave" . . . You sweat and use your brain preparing a blackball . . . Digging up synonyms for "awful," "second-rate," "disappointing," "listless," "seedy," "soggy," "drab" and "monotonous" . . . Davis probably meant to say that he is weary of the lads whose good fortune it is to be critics, because they are the only ones who make money out of failures.

It would be my luck to miss the burning down of Guinans asylum . . . I knew if I went to bed at such an early hour as two a. m. I'd miss something . . . Wonder if Tex's Joe Miller Joke Book perished, too? . . . Gahfobid! . . . She says she'll reopen in ten days, at least . . . Ten days! . . . That's ten days and ten nights for me . . . The joint was insured, and Tex is a good skate, so she deserves a good fire . . . But what am I gonna do now between 6 and 9 in the morning until she reopens? . . . Who will I gab with over the chow-mein and who's gonna listen and howl at the paragraphs they won't let me print?

Release the True Voice of your Radio Set

Learn how fine it really is ★ Put a new Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tube in each socket

To DISCOVER what rich, clear beauty, what breath-taking realism your present radio set can give to an evening's program, replace all your tubes with new Eveready Raytheons. Let these tubes show you how fine your radio can be! Dealers say 80% of all radio troubles come from weak or worn-out tubes.

Eveready Raytheons are a sound improvement. They are built on a principle new to radio-tubes . . . but old as engineering science itself. Look at the piers of a suspension-bridge, for example, and see how solidly they rest on four foundation-points. Then imagine how unsteady such a bridge would be, if its piers had only two points of support!

That explains the difference between Eveready Raytheon's construction and that of all other tubes. In an Eveready Raytheon, the elements are anchored at four points . . . protected against the inevitable bumps of shipment, and against tone-destroying vibration in the radio set itself. Eveready Raytheon elements are assembled with precision that is comparable with that of a 21-jewel watch . . . and nothing but the 4-Pillar construction can hold them there. Ordinary tube-elements have only two points of support . . . the Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar construction is patented, and no other tube can use it!

Call your dealer today. Tell him to bring over a complete set of these stronger, quicker-acting, better tubes. Then settle down and discover that first thrill of radio all over again with your own set.

LENORE ULRIC HERE MONDAY IN NEW PLAY

Lenore Ulric, star of "Pagan Lady," opening in the Nixon Monday for one week only, has just returned from the West Coast where she made several pictures for Fox and Warner Brothers. Among her outstanding films are "Frozen Justice," "South Sea Rose" and "Tiger Rose." The latter picture is the screen version of her stage success of the same name.

The new musical comedy, "Hello Paris," starring Charles "Chic" Sale, author of "The Specialist," is to be presented by the Messrs. Shubert in the Alvin next week, prior to its New York presentation.

Jean May, leading woman with the George Sharp Players, is particularly happy this week because her mother is visiting her. Stock players are away from home for such long periods that a visit from the home-folks is in the nature of a celebration.

Capt. Menke's players will present "The Maid and the Man," an old-time melodrama of a little girl in a big city, on the Golden Rod Showboat at Montrose next week.

the Silky Softness of rayon

Embodied in This Far Softer, Far Whiter, Bathroom Paper

Silky Rayon Garments and Ultra-Soft "Northern Tissue" are both made from pure cellulose.

A Bathroom Paper Created From The Same Material As Softest Rayon

IT represents one of the greatest achievements of modern science—the silky softness of Rayon itself embodied in a far softer, far whiter bathroom paper than ever known before.

Created, in the interest of fastidiousness and health, from the same pure cellulose base from which Rayon is made, it is totally unlike harsh, ground-wood "toilet papers." You can feel the difference.

There are no dangerous, "splintery" particles of raw wood in paper made this new way. Thus nothing to irritate the most delicate tissues—to endanger your own or your child's health.

Made From "Cooked" Cellulose—Not Ground From Raw Wood

In making "Northern Tissue," only silky cellulose pulp is used—cooked for over 8 hours at a temperature of 302°. Thus it is never like yellow or newsprint white "toilet papers" that are made largely by grinding raw wood into a splintery mass.

Prophylactic properties of paper made this new way are outstanding, of course. Health Commissioners in 254 cities and 45 states advise: "Use soft, white cellulose paper like 'Northern Tissue'—especially where children must be protected."

To make sure of this new health protection, ask for "Northern Tissue." It costs no more than ordinary old-type toilet paper. Only 10c a roll at any grocery, department or drug store. © N. P. M., 1930

MODERN WIFE ALLOWS RIVAL TO WIN IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

John Erskine's novel, "Sincerity," has come to the Stanley screen as "A Lady Surrenders." The "surrender" idea develops when a modern wife awakens to the fact that another woman has a greater love for her husband than she has. Other woman would die because of him. That is something the wife wouldn't do. But she's so impressed that anyone would want to die for a man that she walks out of the house and lets the other woman be the victor in what is a very modern and very movie game of love.

The picture is sophisticated drama. It is well acted by Conrad Nagel, Rose Hobart, Genevieve Tobin, Basil Rathbone and Edgar Norton, who looks like the best screen butler in the business. Mr. Nagel is the young husband. Miss Hobart is the young wife. Miss Tobin is the other woman. And Mr. Rathbone is just a man who eats breakfast with Young Wife in Paris.

ONE ROMANTIC DAWN

One scene has Young Husband and Other Woman out duck hunting. And the sporting excursion turns out to be one romantic dawn. There are "clinches" in the swampland with the sun breaking forth on its daily blaze. Which certainly is stealing Old Man Moon's stuff.

Another scene has Young Husband in Other Woman's apartment. It's pouring rain so the poor boy must stay there for the night! But he makes the fatal mistake of kissing the lady, so out into the rain he goes after all.

COINCIDENT, THE VILLAIN

The picture story has some novel twists. Young Husband thinks Young Wife is getting a Paris divorce so he goes and marries the Other Woman. But fickle Young Wife doesn't get the divorce and that thing called Coincidence and the movie director have her turning up just as the newlyweds arrive at the old homestead, which is a palatial mansion somewhere in Philadelphia.

Ed Lowry's new stage show is "Harem Hokum." Peggy Bernier, "Personality Girl," is present for a third week. Featured entertainers include Morris and Campbell, Harry Moore, Bee Cardell and a trio known as Sunny, Eddie and Eddie.

Modern Wife

She has a special nurse and has been very ill.

Jobyna Ralston

Jobyna has been out of the film since her marriage to Richard Arlen. To date, they seem to qualify as one of Hollywood's happiest married couples.

Arlen is now rehearsing his next picture, "Stampede." I may be mistaken, but I believe this is a talkie version of Emerson Hough's "North of 36."

The talkie of "Dracula" will have a second feminine lead. Frances Dayde has been signed by Universal to play the part of Lucy in the Bram Stoker vampire thriller. In the play Lucy is mentioned, but never appears.

The eyes of Hollywood once more are on Eric von Stroheim. The German director is arriving here Saturday to prepare the script of "Blind Husbands."

This was the first picture he directed for Universal and gave him his initial impetus to fame.

Carl Laemmle has signed him to repeat for the talkie. It is not determined as yet whether Von Stroheim also will re-enact his old role in "Blind Husbands."

Georgia Tech Coach Concedes Edge to Carnegie

By W. A. ALEXANDER,
Georgia Tech Head Coach,
Member, All America Board of Football.
(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Southern football teams attempt this year the most comprehensive intersectional program ever laid out in point of number of games played. At least four games on the program already have been decided. Southern Methodist helped Notre Dame open the season at South Bend; Vanderbilt played Minnesota in Minneapolis; Tulane went to Evanston to play Northwestern and Maryland played Yale in New Haven.

All three of these Southern invaders are considered representative teams. Southern Methodist is the dominant eleven in the Southwest, while Vanderbilt is rated one of the strongest in the Southern Conference and Tulane was the 1929 Conference champion. Southern elevens do not usually schedule an intersectional game before the second Saturday in October, for they can hardly hope to get in good shape so soon due to hot weather.

Intersectional strength will be given a general test tomorrow when five Southern Conference teams play opponents from other sections. Georgia goes to Yale Bowl for its game with Eli that has become an annual affair. Yale came to Athens last year to dedicate Georgia's magnificant new stadium. The trip broke all Yale tradition, but was made through deep friendship for Georgia. The tradition of Southern hospitality also was broken, for Georgia's young, inspired team defeated a Yale team that was not ready for such well organized opposition.

Georgia-Yale a Battle

Georgia is taking that same team, plus a year's experience, to New Haven and it should be the outstanding intersectional battle of the season. Georgia should have one of the best teams in America this year and will gain instant national attention if it can defeat Yale once more on the sacred soil of The Bowl. Coach Harry Mahre, a former star at Notre Dame, has the Rockne system well established at Georgia and his team can launch a variety of attack that may confuse the Blue.

The University of Virginia with a better than ordinary team plays Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. Washington and Lee meets West Virginia in Charleston and Tulane goes to Dallas to meet Texas A. & M. This latter game should afford an interesting test of strength between the Southeast and the Southwest. Needless to say, it will be a hard one for Tulane, coming on the heels of its game with Northwestern. Georgia Tech plays Carnegie Tech here in Pittsburgh with a team that is developing slowly and cannot be expected to give Carnegie any uneasy moments.

Two intersectional games are on the card for October 18. Florida with a formidable club plays Chicago on Stagg Field and certainly will make a good showing. On the same day, Duke, with a team that does not seem strong this year, plays the Navy at Annapolis.

The University of Mississippi, under a new coaching system, gives Chicago its second combat with a Southern Conference team in a row, October 25. Mississippi is not rated high in the Conference list this year and probably will not give Stagg's pupils a great deal of trouble.

Georgia Tech to Play Penn

November 1, Duke goes to Philadelphia for its second intersectional game with Villanova. Sewanee plays Rice in Houston and Louisiana State University meets Arkansas on neutral ground in Shreveport.

Georgia's second intersectional adventure is billed for November 8, when the Bulldogs meet New York University in the Yankee Stadium. The green Georgia team last year let New York University run up a score in the first half and then came back with a last half attack that nearly overtook the Violet. This game should attract nationwide attention.

Georgia Tech plays Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, November 15, in what is the last Southern intersectional clash on the program.

Contrary to last year, the Southern teams are doing all of the traveling. Not a single major intersectional game is to be played on Southern soil.

Other games of importance not involving members of the Southern Conference are November 15, Navy vs. Southern Methodist at Annapolis and Villanova vs. Oglethorpe at Philadelphia.

NEW BALL ADDS 30 YARDS TO DRIVES

THE WIDE DIFFERENCE between the slugging standards of the past and present in the major baseball leagues was brought to mind by the presence at the recent World Series of J. Franklin Baker, third baseman of Connie Mack's first world champions two decades ago. And that that difference is due to the lively ball, as is generally believed, was the decision reached after a discussion of the subject between Baker and another World Series third sacker of the old days in the person of George Moriarty, an umpire in the big stakes this year but who held down the hot corner for the Tigers when they met the Pirates for the title in 1909.

George Moriarty

Because he made nine homers during the regular season of 1911 and followed with two more in the World Series against the Giants, Mack's clouting third sacker won the title of Home Run Baker. It was considered remarkable slugging. Nowadays nine homers in a season wouldn't attract the slightest attention. A comparison of records led to speculation as to what Baker would be able to accomplish under present-day conditions.

MORIARTY EXPRESSED THE opinion that Baker, if he were now at his best, could hit the ball of today from 20 to 30 yards farther than he was able to drive the pellet used in the big show in 1911 and during other years of his career. And his estimate was not mere guesswork, he explained, but was based on an actual experiment made by himself.

"I wanted to see for myself what difference there was between the old and new baseballs," said Moriarty, "so one day I put on a uniform, picked up a bat and got Waite Hoyt to pitch to me just as if we had been in a real game. I was surprised at the distance I was able to drive the ball. Several times I knocked it out of the park and I was never able to do that in my playing days on the same grounds. Baker at his best would be right up among the leaders with 40 to 50 home runs a year if he were batting against the present ball."

WHEN HARD-LUCK defeats suffered by pitchers are listed, the 2-to-0 reverse charged against Burleigh Grimes in the fifth game of the 1930 World Series will have to be ranked among the toughest of all.

Burleigh Grimes

Not a Mackian runner reached second base against Grimes until the eighth inning, and the first to advance that far got there only because Frankie Frisch dropped a throw that would ..ave retired him. Burleigh pitched himself out of a terrible jam after the A's had filled the bases without knocking a ball out of the infield and with only one out, but all his great work was set at naught an inning later on a single pitch, which Jimmy Foxx pasted into the left-field seats with one runner aboard.

IT WAS RIGHT in line with tradition that an extra-base blow should cause the defeat of Grimes. Hits of that sort have been his jinx all through the history of his World Series pitching. The former Pirate spitballer has been on the mound in five title games. Of these he won one and lost four. He pitched a 3-to-0 shutout for Brooklyn against Cleveland in his first appearance in 1920, but since that occasion he has been beaten four times in succession, and in every instance his defeat was caused by two-baggers, three-baggers or home runs.

IN HIS FIRST defeat at the hands of Cleveland on October 10, 1920, Grimes was the victim of the only home run with the bases full ever made in a World Series. Elmer Smith was the hitter. Later in the same game Jim Bagby made another homer with two on.

The final score was 8 to 1, and seven of Cleveland's eight runs resulted from four-baggers. When Cleveland beat Grimes for the second time in that series, the score was 3 to 0, and doubles by Charley Jamieson and Steve O'Neill and a triple by Tris Speaker knocked in the Indians' runs.

IN THE FIRST game of the 1930 series which Philadelphia won 5 to 2, all of the five hits made off Grimes by the Athletics were extra-base wallops—two homers, two triples and a double. They totaled 16 bases and the A's got a run for each hit.

John Law

Then came the fifth game, when one hit, a homer by Foxx, beat Grimes, 2 to 0. In five World Series games, Burleigh has been hit for five home runs and a flock of doubles and triples. When they hit Grimes at all the ball appears to travel an unusual distance.

JOHN LAW, Notre Dame football captain last year and now coach at Manhattan College, says Knute Rockne is the main reason for Notre Dame's success. "Even when he was absent last year he was an inspiring leader," said Law. "I never met a more courageous or dynamic personality. The night before the Navy game, though in a serious condition, he called up by long distance telephone for a few words with every member of the team. He gave each of us a pep talk for a couple of minutes and while we stood in line to listen he lay on his bed telling us what to do. We needed just the extra spark. Navy was fighting mad, but we won, 14 to 7. Rockne's trip to Pittsburgh for the Carnegie Tech game was absolutely against the doctors' orders. That was the best exemplification of spirit and courage I have ever seen. I believe the words Rockne and courage are almost synonomous. We had a great team that day, and we won, 7 to 0, but it might have been a different ball game if we hadn't had Rockne to guide us."

YO- NOTICED, NO doubt, when the final major league pitching records for the 1930 season were published, that the figures had been changed to give Lefty Grove 28 victories instead of 27 and to reduce George Earnshaw's total from 23 to 22. The explanation is that Connie Mack went to League President E. S. Barnard and obtained

CARDS BETTER THAN MACKS, STREET SAYS

By GABBY STREET,
Manager, St. Louis Cardinals.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Looking back at the World Series now that we have a little time to reflect and consider, I can't see any reasons for regrets, except over the fact that we lost. I mean that we gave our best, and that if we were to start another series tomorrow I would follow the same plan of campaign, and I would depend on the same men who tried so hard to capture the world championship for St. Louis, and for the National League.

Gabby Street.

Naturally, with the eyes of the baseball world focused on the diamonds where we battled for the honors and spoils, there were many volunteer strategists who wanted to tell the two teams how they ought to tackle their problems. And, naturally, we heard considerable criticism.

But I'll stand on the way we played our cards. I started Grimes in the first game because I considered him our best bet, and he vindicated my judgment, even though he suffered two defeats, by turning in two brilliant exhibitions of hurling. Five hits were all the Mackmen got off him in the opener, but they happened to be for extra bases, and that beat Burleigh.

LOSES ON ONE PITCH

Then in Grimes' second game, which was one of the best pitched contests you'd want to see, Jimmy Foxx connected with a pitch that wasn't just where Burleigh wanted to put it. It went for a homer, and as there was a man on base that meant two runs and we lost, 2 to 0. Grimes lost two games, but he distinguished himself as a game fighter and worthy of the confidence that I placed in him.

Some of the volunteer managers said I made a mistake when I pitched Rhem. They forget that Flint had won eight straight games and had beaten all the good clubs in the National League. To say that he wasn't entitled to start in the series would be equivalent to saying that we weren't good enough to meet the Athletics. The breaks were against Rhem, and if it hadn't been for a couple of errors the Athletics would have scored only two runs on him. Moreover, we made only one run that day.

Hallahan came through as I expected him to do. He pitched a beautiful game in St. Louis to blank the American Leaguers, and if it hadn't been for a blister that developed on his finger in the first inning of the sixth contest, I believe he would have beaten Earnshaw and we would have had a chance to carry on and win in seven. Bill has established himself as a great pitcher and I am proud of him and expect him to rise to great heights in baseball.

I am proud of the way my ball club fought to the finish. Even when Frisch's powerful line drive went straight to Foxx for a double play in that ninth inning of the final game, my men didn't quit. They carried on and drove home a run, despite the commanding lead the enemy had at the time.

No resume of the series would be complete without a tribute to Connie Mack's two great pitchers, Earnshaw and Grove. Earnshaw won two games and might have been credited with a third. He did some wonderful work and showed fine control and a great curve ball. Most of my men say he has a better curve and more stuff than Dazzy Vance.

WELL-ROUNDED STAFF

But whereas the Athletics have two great pitchers and only two were good enough to be depended on in the big series, I have a well-rounded staff. Johnson was handicapped by an injured rib, or he

SOUTHERNERS SET FOR PLAID TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER.

A shift in the backfield which will gallop for Georgia Tech here tomorrow against Carnegie as the two famous technical schools shoot their gridiron forces against each other in the stadium was announced this morning by Bill Alexander, chief of staff of the Yellow Jacket gridiron forces.

Coach Alexander herded his Jackets into their quarters at the Fairfax Hotel, called 'em together for a brief talking to and then turned them loose to do as they pleased until time for the practice at the stadium this afternoon.

The backfield change as given out by Coach Bill as he sipped some coffee and smoked an early morning fag, has to do with the moving of Capt. Earl Dunlap from left halfback, where he performed against South Carolina last week, to quarterback. Doug Graydon, a

Bill Alexander George Kavel

168-pound junior, who was kept on the bench the greater part of last season with a series of aggravating injuries, will play left half and likely do the Ricking.

EXPECTS HARD FIGHT

The Tornado mentor isn't given to pre-game predictions of victory, but he expressed himself as being very confident that his ball club would afford local fans and the Carnegie players a right entertaining afternoon.

"We are not allowing ourselves to get all worked up over this game," Coach Bill drawled, "but we have a pretty good club, one that will take a mighty good team to beat. It's just another ball game, after all, you know. We have to come 'Nawth' again this fall to play Penn, and to tell the truth, I don't think we'll meet the opposition there that we are going to be up against here tomorrow."

TARTANS PRIMED

Bob Waddell is set on his starting lineup, and unless Advisory Coach Steffen suggests that a change be made as he and Waddell go into their usual pre-game huddle this evening, the boys will start as follows:

Rosenzweig and L. Flanagan,

DUKES, LOYOLA PLAY TONIGHT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The Night Riders of Duquesne will gallop on foreign turf this evening as Loyola University's Rambler host seeks valiantly to turn back Pittsburgh invasion and incidentally to gain palatable revenge for setback suffered a year ago at Bluffite hands in the Steel City. A capacity throng is slated to jam the lofty North Side Stadium of the home array, which means that close to 20,000 roaring rooters will greet the efforts of the bitterly rival athletes.

Stinging under the lash of defeat by Georgetown last week, Dr. Ed Norton's battling Chicagoans are pointed to perfection for the nocturnal combat, while the Dukes, with two set-up victories to their credit the past fortnight, are in best of trim and eager for action against opposition that ranks with the speediest in the Middle West.

DUKES PRACTICE

ROCKNE SEES CARNEGIE, PITT, DUKE WINS

PLAID'S POWER SHOULD BEAT JACKETS

By KNUTE ROCKNE.
Member All American Board of Football.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

With the World Series in baseball over, football gets under way in earnest this week-end. Most of the teams have been out about a month now, the weather is getting cooler, so the crude offenses of the past week or so should begin to show some polish, smoothness and co-ordinated effort. But even so it will be three or four weeks before the teams reach anything approaching top form.

Knute Rockne

In the Big Ten there will be several crucial contests tomorrow. The Northwestern-Ohio State game at Evanston should be a dandy. Coach Willaman's men in their tussle with Indiana last week showed that they have plenty of power in their attack, plus a sturdy offense. However, I believe Northwestern has a slight edge. The Purple line is big and powerful, while the backfield is versatile enough to threaten in all four weapons of attack. It should be a glorious game.

I look for Purdue to take Michigan, because of Michigan's disappointing showing against Michigan State a week ago. Purdue's game with Baylor did a lot to bring the Boilermakers along at a fast clip, and, unless Michigan completes a lot of long passes, Purdue should win.

STANFORD MEETS GOPHERS

Wisconsin has too much man power for Chicago. Chicago seems to have gone entirely to a forward pass attack this year. This may bother the Badgers some, but not enough.

Fritz Crisler, at Minnesota, after last week's debacle with Vanderbilt, tackles another super foeman from California in Stanford University. I am afraid the Gophers are going to be all mangled when it's over. Apparently, Pop Warner has another one of his powerful, deceptive elevens which can run in high gear whenever the occasion demands.

Zuppke, who has a very smart schedule, considering that he has a green team coming along, meets Butler. Illinois musn't take Butler too lightly, but the Illini have too many fast backs to be denied long by the Indianapolis boys.

In spite of Indiana's disappointing showing at Ohio State last week, I still believe Pat Page has a better team than that score showed. And, in spite of the fact that Oklahoma A. & M. beat Iowa a week ago, I am picking Indiana to win this one.

Centenary may be too strong for Iowa, as it tied Texas a week ago. The Centenary team is a lot stronger than the Iowa folks appreciate at this time. They will know more tomorrow night.

Wally Steffen's Carnegie Tech crew now looms up as one of the big teams of the country. Our scouts who saw them play last Saturday tell me that they were amazed at the quantity of powerful material which the Tartan clan has this year. Georgia Tech has a pair of very fine tackles and a couple of good backs, but, in view of what my scouts report, I don't see how they can cope with the Steffen machine this year.

The Pitt eleven, after an impressive showing against West Virginia, featured by an excellent line play, should have no trouble running up as many points as it wishes against Western Reserve. It looks as if Pitt is in for another fine year.

Elmer Layden, another one of the Four Horsemen, is coaching Duquesne. He brings his lads to Chicago tonight to play Loyola. I believe Duquesne has too much all-round strength for the Chicago boys.

Wittenberg has a very ambitious schedule and this week is taking on Washington and Jefferson. I am afraid Wittenberg is stepping out of its class, though it may hold W. & J. to a fairly close score.

EDGE FOR NOTRE DAME

The Notre Dame-Navy game at South Bend should be fairly even, with the edge, however, in favor of Notre Dame on account of greater reserve strength. Notre Dame had its pass defense tested to the limit a week ago by the Southern Methodist team from Dallas. With this experience under its belt, the Irish will have a lot more confidence in meeting this style of attack when it again appears. Navy Bill, at Annapolis, has a fine, well-rounded attack, with spinners, wide end runs, cutbacks, plunges and a quick kick that's a corker. However, his lack of reserve strength may prove fatal to him.

O'Donnell Victor In River Races

Carroll O'Donnell, a member of the top ring of Pittsburgh outboard racing enthusiasts captured premier honors in the series of two races held on the Monongahela River yesterday afternoon in connection with the Mardi Gras celebration. O'Donnell piloted his sea-sled to two decisive triumphs and carried away both trophies.

The excitement of the afternoon was provided by Jimmy Altman, who upset as he made the turn on the third lap of the first race. Altman was thrown clear of the boat, and, aside from a thorough drenching, was uninjured. The craft was towed to shore.

Rudy Kohzwski captured second place in the first race with Joe Mokranin third. In the second event, Ed Nig finished in the runner-up spot and Steve Mokranin was third. Both races were over the five-mile distance.

would have started and won. In Haines, Johnson, Hallahan, Grimes and Rhem. I have five pitchers able to take their turn against all kinds of hitters, and in the course of the season we would beat the Athletics, and if we had played a longer series with no train rides or rest in between our larger pitching staff would have triumphed.

In closing I want to tell everybody how happy I was to see Jess Haines pitch such a brilliant game to tie the series last Sunday. Jess is a great pitcher and a wonderful man, dependable and loved by all his comrades.

I only wish that he could have had another chance. If it hadn't been for the blister of Hallahan's and Bill had won his game, big Jess might have had another chance. And he would have beaten the enemy again.

I have a great ball club. We don't think the better team won. And after a winter of rest we will try to give St. Louis another pennant and I hope the Athletics win in their league. We think we can beat them.

HURLING BIG FEATURE OF SERIES--MACK

By CONNIE MACK.
Manager World Champion Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—In looking back at one of the most gripping World Series ever played, the things that most impressed me was the mighty carnival of airtight pitching that extended through the six games as well as the heavy scoring the Athletics squeezed out of a limited number of hits.

The winning pitcher of every game without exception turned in a rare performance on the peak.

Grove and Earnshaw both in Philadelphia and St. Louis and Hallahan and Haines in St. Louis unloosed a current of baffling pitches that will always linger long in the memories of those who watched them.

A'S HIT TIMELY

I have been battling in World Series as far back as 1905 but I can't recall a year where one of the contestants hit as timely as the Athletics this fall and made a small crop of hits go so far.

Just think. On the first two days we made only 12 hits but scored 11 runs to win two straight victories and get the jump on the Cardinals.

On the first day we made only five hits off Burleigh Grimes, but each one was for distance and consisted of two homers, two triples and a double for a total of 16 bases.

Five hits are not many but they beat Grimes handily.

Then in winning the sixth game at Shibe Park Wednesday and ending the series we made seven runs out of seven hits. Once again every hit that rang out was for extra bases.

Home runs by Dykes and Simmons and five doubles yielded a total of 18 bases and there was never a minute when this game was in doubt, although we marshaled no more than seven hits.

RECORD UNEQUALED

I don't think this record has ever been matched in world series competition.

The points I am raising are these:

We had the pitching in a pinch.

We had the hitting in a pinch.

While we were off our batting stride in the games, yet in a pinch there was always a stout-hearted Athletic bat-bearer to step up and bat in a run.

That combination was too much for St. Louis. Pinch hitting and pinch pitching will win for any team in a World Series.

Credit must go to Earnshaw and Grove for working out of turn and always being unshakable. They could have gone further had it been necessary.

I have no doubt in my mind that if a seventh game had been necessary that we would have won it.

Timely and spectacular extra base blows were made by Foxx, Simmons and Cochrane, while Dykes figured big with his bat in the first two victories and in the final one. After doing little hitting in the first five games, Bing Miller came back with two booming doubles to help win the sixth game.

I want to say that not one of my men failed me in the series. They played and acted like world champions.

(Copyright, 1930, Christy Walsh Syndicate)

Long's Sport Comment

a reversal of the scoring decision in Cleveland on September 13 that gave Earnshaw a victory though he had pitched less than five innings.

W. C. Hess writes from Butler on the subject: "Mack showed how little he cared for Grove's record, which he was accused of padding, when he sent him home to rest just as soon as the pennant was clinched. Grove proved again in the World Series that he is a great pitcher. Don't underestimate the A's on account of their low batting average. The Yanks outhit them by 15 points, yet finished 16 games behind. Any club that can win 304 games in three years, averaging .664, can deliver the goods. The A's have it."

THE DUKES AND Loyola clash in a football game in Chicago tonight and the Stadium's first feature event of the season comes tomorrow in the meeting of Carnegie and Georgia Tech. Always a strong and colorful aggregation, the Southerners may be depended upon to tax the Tartan to the limit and to make the game one of the best played anywhere in the country in the early part of the schedule.

Pitt plays Western Reserve in Cleveland tomorrow and is not likely to be hard pressed. The general schedule shows some of the leading teams moving into the harder games of the year, with Notre Dame meeting Navy, Princeton taking on Brown, Yale encountering Georgia, Dartmouth facing Boston University, Syracuse grappling with Rutgers, New York University playing Villanova, Colgate clashing with Lafayette, Stanford opposing Minnesota, Michigan lining up with Purdue, Ohio State tangling with Northwestern, Wisconsin hooking up with Chicago and Southern California going against Washington State.

Jimmy Maloney

JIM MALONEY has not accomplished much else during his Queensberry career, and his record has been marred by one-round knockouts at the hands of George Godfrey and Tom Heeney, three defeats by Jack Sharkey and additional lacings by Johnny Risko, Jack Gagnon, Ricardo Bertazzolo and others, but he did the game a good service when he showed up Primo Carnera the other night in Boston. The beating that Maloney administered to Carnera in spite of the latter's advantage of 65 pounds in weight and eight inches in height probably will put an end to the big Italian's operations in this country and wind up a campaign of fake and set-up matches during which fight fans have been victimized in all parts of the country. The fact that he couldn't beat a wash-up third-rater like Maloney shows just how little Carnera's carefully built record of 25 straight victories (22 of them so-called knockouts) amounted to, and in the face of the Boston exposure the vast Venetian will hardly be able to get away with it any longer. The boxing commissions of several states are largely at fault for the long run of pretense by reason of their failure to force Carnera to meet some one of Maloney's caliber soon after the Italian's arrival in this country.

BELMONT AFTER FOURTH KAYO IN ROW

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, Red Mason's welterweight, will be shooting for his fourth straight knockout victory tonight when he faces Larry Madge, of Cleveland, in the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple ring.

Larry Madge

Belmont has taken Paul Oper, Al Becker and Johnny Popieg into camp in succession, and will gamble with Madge's heavy artillery to get over a finishing punch tonight.

When Belmont fights and lets his punches go, he looks very good. He has been inclined in many of his bouts to stand back and wait for his opponent to come to him. In his present mood to pile up a knockout string he ought to go well against Madge.

Jimmy Reed, of Erie, and Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, box the other half of the double windup of two 10-round bouts at the Moose. Billy Scholes, of the North Side, and Tiger Joe Clark, of the South Side, box the second bout, and Elmer Waner, of the North Side, and Don Frazier, of Herron Hill, are in the opener at 8:30.

Between Rounds

The card for Motor Square Garden next Monday night has been completed with the signing of Frank Fiorian, of Cleveland, to box Patsy Pirrone, of Canton, O., in the eight-round semi-final and the substitution of Jack Thrasey, Negro welterweight, of Louisville, for Snowflakes Wright against Tom McCaffrey, of Youngstown, in the second bout. CRONIN MOST VALUABLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—Joe Cronin, sensational young shortstop of the Washington Senators, today was proclaimed the American League's "most valuable player" for 1930 by a special committee of members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Cronin, although playing only his second year as a major league regular, merited sufficient votes to beat out Al Simmons, of the Athletics, the league batting champion, and Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman of the Yankees, in a close contest. Cronin, selected as Washington's most valuable performer by every one of the eight experts, led with a total of 48 points out of a possible maximum of 64.

Cronin was one of the chief factors in the surprising rush of the Senators toward the top this year. He is a sensational fielder and batted for the fine average of .345. He scored 127 runs, collected 203 hits, including 42 doubles and 13 home runs, besides driving in 119 runs and stealing 15 bases. The complete tabulation of votes:

Joe Cronin, Washington, 48; Al Simmons, 39; Lou Gehrig, Yankees, 29; Charley Gehringer, Detroit, 26; Ted Lyons, Chicago, 24; Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland, 20; Eddie Morgan, Cleveland, 15; Mickey Cochrane, Athletics, 13; Bob Grove, Athletics, 8; Babe Ruth, Yankees, 7; Danny MacFayden, Boston, 7; Leon Goslin, St. Louis, 6; Carl Reynolds, Chicago, 5; Walter Stewart, St. Louis, 4; Milton Gaston, Boston, 4; Oscar Melillo, St. Louis, 2; Lucerne Blue, St. Louis, 2; Tom Oliver, Boston, 2.

PIRATE CHIEF AT PARLEY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Barney Dreyfuss, Pirate owner, is spending the day in Cleveland, where he is in attendance at the big baseball pow-wow, involving the minor league officials and especially having to do with the draft.

The troublesome draft question is in much dispute with certain leagues. These circuits accept it with qualifications, which are not pleasing to the major league owners.

International League officials, in attendance at the World Series, showed an attitude of defiance in connection with the draft, but it is likely that both sides will be willing to arbitrate the matter.

mediately after the workout, the Bluffite flock was hearded back to headquarters at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, a mile south of the Maroon citadel, and not many moments ensued ere all and sundry were in the eiderdown.

Bright and early this morning the Steeltown supporting cast steamed into the LaSalle Street Depot on the Duquesne special. Led by Graduate Manager John D. Holahan, several hundred loyal Bluff students and alumni streamed northward to the Edgewater rendezvous and right now there is much clatter, chatter and general to do about the hostelry as Duke money hurtles into view to meet demands offered on various sides by ambitious adherents of the home cause.

Numbered among the lately-arrived voyageurs are the members of the third Duke squad, including, at a glance, Center Bennie Barrett, Guards DiCarbo and Wynoski, Tackles Tom Kirby and Babe Kelleher, End Fitzgerald, Quarterback Larry Sullivan, Halfbacks George Chacko and Sepsi, and Junior Manager Smith. The sturdy youngsters thus enumerated will supplement the group of 23 regulars and near-regulars that blew into the "Big Bill" Thompson bailiwick yesterday and raise the team total above the 30 mark—and if one can't win with 30 gridders, one just doesn't win!

TOP LINEUP SET

The Hill mentor indicated after last evening's practice session that he will start his top flight lineup, rather than his "shock troops" in the night's debate. This means that Sammy Pratt and Smoke Abele are likely to draw the terminal assignments, with Ray Kemp, all-American nominee, and Jim O'Donnell at the tackles, co-Capt. Moon Clark and Mike Ferrare holding down the guards, and Pat Lally cavorting in the pivot post. The backfield seems apt to be composed of Joe McCarthy at quarter, co-Capt. Ganzy Benedict and Ted Todd at the halves, and Kass Kovalcheck at full.

BURNS TAKES CONFERENCE LEAD

By TOM BIRKS.

The Burns A. A., of New Kensington, went into first place in the Independent Gridiron Conference last evening, defeating East Pittsburgh, 6 to 0, in a thrilling battle at Parnassus High School Field. The upriver club was decidedly fortunate in annexing the victory, East Pittsburgh deserved at least a tie, which it almost accomplished.

It was the brilliant Lutz, in the first quarter, that turned the tide in favor of Jimmy Smith's club. An exchange of punts found the ball on the East Pittsburgh 35-yard line. Lutz clipped off 16 yards, and then took the ball over. The extra point was missed. In the matter of first downs, Burns had the edge, 10 to 8.

Pleasant Valley defeated the Irwin Mohawks, 6-0, at Jeannette last night, scoring the only touchdown in the first period.

Tomorrow evening, at the Alder and Emerson Street Armory, the Homewood club will inaugurate the indoor season with the Lawrenceville Mohawks.

On Sunday two games will be staged in the independent conference. The Ambridge Mystics will make their first visit to McKeesport, meeting the Olympics at Rainbow Gardens.

At West View, the fans will have the Majestic-West View game to become enthused over. The Burns-East Pittsburgh lineup:

Burns—6.		E. Pittsburgh—0.
Chilco	L.E.	Chamberlain
Heimer	L.T.	Bennett
Dellman	L.G.	Schenk

BRANNON WINS OVER HEBNER

Eddie Brannon, Hill district Negro lightweight, was forced to bring into use every bit of his ring generalship last night at the Palisades, McKeesport, before winning the judges' decision over Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, in the feature bout of a double windup. Brannon weighed 139¼ pounds against 136¼ for Hebner.

In the semi-final of 10 rounds, Johnny Warner, of Clairton, won a pleasing bout from Dan Billick, Duquesne featherweight, making a walk away of the affair after Billick held him even during the first half of the go. Billick weighed 123½ pounds, while Billick scaled in at 124¼.

Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, won all the way from Johnny Brown, of Lawrenceville, in the second bout of six rounds. He floored Brown for a count of seven in the second. Gornick weighed 139¼ against 141½ for Brown. Joe Bazone, of McKeesport, weighing 132½, defeated Gus Britner, Charleroi newcomer, 128½, in the six-round curtain-raiser.

Sport Vignettes

Jack Dempsey's opinions on the men he has boxed are interesting. . . . He is quoted as saying that the late Billy Miske was a better ringman than Tom Gibbons, and Gibbons a better man than Gene Tunney, who dethroned and twice defeated the Mauler. . . . "I think Miske really defeated me in our first bout, although I got the decision," Dempsey says. . . . Of Jess Willard, from whom he won the crown, Dempsey says the Pottawatamie giant was a better fighter than he was generally conceded to be. . . . "Willard would beat most of the present crop of heavies without much trouble," is Jack's estimate of big Jess. . . . "I would not have beaten him if I had not tricked him," he adds. "I made him think I was a pushover. I ran from him at the start of the fight at Toledo, and then, when he became careless, I stopped running and began to mob him, with the result that he was on the floor seven times before the bell ended the first round."

* * *

In Columbus they are crediting Wesley Fesler, former all-America end of Ohio State, now playing fullback for the Buckeyes, with having pulled a smart and almost unnoticed play against Indiana in Ohio State's first Big Ten game of the season last Saturday. . . . Ohio State led by only 3-0 for three quarters and then forced the breaks that gave it a 23-0 victory. . . . In the final period, Dauer, Indiana back, carried the ball around right end on third down and Fesler and Verner both hit him near the sidelines . . . While on the ground, Dauer wriggled desperately to force his arms and the ball out of bounds, but Fesler recovered from the shock, hurled his body between the ball and the sidelines, preventing the play and downing the ball just inside the chalk mark . . . On final down, the Indiana kicker had to turn away from the sidelines and kicked the ball directly into the leaping body of Sam Selby . . . It rolled out of bounds on the 14-yard line in position for Ohio

SCHOOLS IN ACTION

SOUTH DEFEATS SCHENLEY IN BIG UPSET

A week-end of intensive high school football activity gets under way today with a fine card of afternoon and evening games and will continue through tomorrow afternoon with another sparkling card.

Three night games, all of them of first-rank importance, really are the pieces de resistance of today's program. The City League operates with one game in Section I and two in Section II this afternoon. Yesterday, Schenley and South met, with the latter winning by a count of 21 to 13 and taking undisputed possession of the section lead. It was a big upset of the dope, although South previously had beaten Peabody High.

In Section I today, Peabody, defeated last week in an upset battle by South, engages Allderdice at Allderdice. Allderdice's chief claim to first-class rating is found in its scoreless tie with the well-regarded South Hills eleven in an intersectional game last week.

RIVALS BATTLE

In Section II, South Hills hopes to get started by taking over Langley, and two old rivals meet in a North Side feature tussle as Perry and Allegheny hook up on the Salt Works grounds.

The Clairton-Scott game tonight at North Braddock easily tops the program for the immediate district. Both elevens are right up there in the race for the W. P. I. A. L. title. Last year Clairton defeated Scott, 6 to 0, after a hard battle, taking away a victory that played a big part in swinging the league championship its way. A huge crowd is expected at tonight's battle.

The other night games feature Bellevue and New Castle at New Castle and Charleroi and Sharpsville at Charleroi.

Braddock aids Stowe in dedicating its new athletic field at Stowe this afternoon. The plant is one of the most complete in the district, and Stowe officials have made extensive plans for this afternoon's inaugural contest.

Washington plays at Duquesne as the latter dedicates its new athletic field. Another record crowd is expected for this game.

BIG TILTS TOMORROW

Tomorrow Oliver High will provide Moe Rubenstein's crack Ambridge High eleven with its first real test of the season. Ambridge has not been scored on to date, having taken Monaca, Rochester and Arnold into camp. The Bridge Workers are without a doubt one of the best-drilled elevens in the section, and under the smart and entirely capable coaching of Rubenstein, seem destined to go places and do real things this year.

Ellwood City and Beaver Falls meet in an important Beaver Valley battle at Beaver Falls. The rivalry between this pair is of ancient vintage, and Beaver Falls figures to pack a record crowd away tomorrow afternoon.

New Kensington takes on Butler in another contest well worth the attention of the fans. Greeneburg and Connellsville are certain to put up a great game of football and the Vandergrift-Jeannette struggle is a magnet that will pull its thousands.

Nate Lippe's Harding High of Aliquippa team makes its first start in the Beaver Valley title race, playing New Brighton at Franklin Field, Aliquippa. Monessen and Uniontown meet at Uniontown. Carnegie plays at Canonsburg and Scottdale meets Hurst High at Hurst.

All of the scoring in the Schenley-South game was done in the first half. Capt. Holland, quarterback for South High, was the star. He tossed forward passes to Mervosh for the first two tallies and then returned a kickoff almost the length of the field on his way to the second tally. Fullback Mihm bucked over both of Schenley's touchdowns in the second period. The lineup:

Stanich	L.E.	Landav
Haniac	L.T.	Friedman
Popow	L.G.	Rembert
Ferry	C.	Rock
Pisarcik	R.G.	Drob
H. Dean	R.T.	Sanford
Bernstein	R.E.	Stratton
Holland (C.)	Q.	Mawhinney
Miller	L.H.	Powell
Guyas	R.H.	Jacobs
Mervosh	F.	(C) Mihm

Score by quarters:
South	7	14	0	0	—21
Schenley	0	13	0	0	—13

Substitutions—South, Przybylek, Ivanovich, W. Dean; Schenley, Hirshhorn, Belle, Coastanto. Touchdowns—Holland 1, Mervosh 2, Mihm 2. Goals from touchdown—Holland 1, Guyas 2, Mihm 1. Referee—McClure; umpire, Bode; head linesman, Berhorst. Time of quarters—12 minutes.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 29.

After making such a desperate struggle for the pennant in the previous season, the lights of the Athletics flickered out dismally during the season of 1908.

This was one of the most drab years the team had experienced up to that time, for we got off on the wrong foot and stayed that way all through the race.

Connie Mack.

At the end of the season, sixth place was our portion and, for the first time in my American League career, I piloted a team that played under the .500 notch in games won and lost.

It also was the second time the Athletics failed to make the first division. In 1904 we finished fifth, but it was a close fight and we won more games than we lost.

We played .444 ball in 1908 and didn't exactly deserve the plaudits of the nation.

When I realized that the season was going to be a complete fadeout I commenced to S O S the sticks and college ranks for succor. Nearly every day late in the season a gawky young chap wearing a rubber collar shouldered his way into the clubhouse and asked for his stall.

Many of them returned to Main street, but there were some genuine pearls in the list. Frank Baker and Jack Berry, two young infielders who were to reach amazing heights, appeared for the first time and so did Outfielder Amos Strunk and Catcher Jack Lapp.

PICKS UP STARS

In addition, I saw for the first time Jack Coombs and Harry Krause. Both were college pitchers. Coombs, a righthander, came from Colby College, Maine, while Krause, a lefthander, was a graduate of St. Mary's College in California.

That would indicate that my scouts were searching the country far and wide when we picked up two pitchers at one crack, one coming from the Atlantic seaboard and the other from the Pacific Coast. Both, especially Coombs, were destined to be of immense help to the Athletics.

In addition to this, Eddie Collins, who had recovered from typhoid fever, was able to rejoin us and he played at several positions that year, although he had not fully recovered his strength.

Black as the season of 1908 turned out, I was convinced that better things were in store for us because, at least, I had the nucleus of a new young team with the pitching and catching staff and the infield and outfield strengthened by the addition of young players who I felt should last for many years. I was not wrong in my speculations.

In the last two seasons, I was obliged to part company with some of the veterans. Monte Cross left us at the end of 1907 and Jimmy Collins, Socks Seybold and Ossee Schreck were through at the end of 1908.

CLUB STRENGTHENED

We had two inspirations to help us for the season of 1909. I had a bigger and better team, buttressed by some promising youths, and we deserted our primitive wooden quarters at Columbia Park to move into Shibe Park, improved with a large grandstand of steel and concrete which was, at the time, the model baseball plant of America.

This has been our home ever since, although it has been repeatedly remodeled and enlarged. Besides the holdovers from the past season, during the winter, I made several deals that gave me additional players. I obtained Ira Thomas, one of the smartest catchers I have ever known, from Detroit, and also made a deal for Pitcher Cy Morgan, of the Red Sox, and Outfielder Bob Ganley, of Washington.

Then I delved into the minors and snared Infielder Stuffy McInnis, who turned out a whizbang; Catcher Paddy Livingstone and Outfielder Heine Heitmuller, a graduate of the University of California.

Our team went South with the largest team I ever had shepherded through Dixie. I had so many youths at the end of the training trip that I divided my team into two squads.

CONCENTRATES ON ROOKIES

One, in charge of Harry Davis, went North earliest, in order to play the spring series with the Phillies. I turned all of my veterans over to Davis' team and personally took charge of the youngsters.

We had arranged a slow return North for the youngsters, stepping off every day for a game and not getting back to Philadelphia until a day or two before the regular season opened.

Dedication of Shibe Park was a big affair, the new plant being packed to capacity and thousands being turned away, although it boomed into our ears from all sides that we were 20 years ahead of the time and that it never would pay.

The opening day was a success in every way but one. I surprised the fans by giving them the first inkling of my revolutionary switch in which Eddie Collins went to second base and Dan Murphy was moved to right field.

Their playing that afternoon convinced skeptics that the change was for the better. Yet the grisly form of tragedy was to haunt us in that afternoon of ceremonies that unfolded the biggest ball park of the day to the fans.

Eddie Plank was our pitcher and Dr. Michael Powers the catcher. During the game, Powers, who had been one of my faithful receivers since 1901 and who always was on duty when Plank pitched, in some manner wrenched his intestines crouching behind the plate.

DOC POWERS FATALLY HURT

After the game, he collapsed and was carried to a hospital and died in a few days. Thousands saw his funeral, with stalwart members of the Athletics bearing his casket to the grave.

Dr. Powers not only was one of my best players, but a fine character as well, and Athletic players greatly deplored his loss. It was a melancholy start for us, but we had to carry on.

We made a strong bid for the pennant that season, getting better as the season wore on. It came down to another duel with Detroit late in the year.

The Tigers came to Philadelphia 4½ games in the lead. Shibe Park was filled to capacity for every one of these games. There never were any better drawing cards than the old Tigers.

We thrilled our followers by winning the first three games and whittling the Detroit lead to 1½ games, but the Tigers took the final contest and won their third straight pennant by retaining that lead.

GABBY'S CHIN OUGHT TO BE TOUGH--NICK

By NICK ALTROCK,
Famous Baseball Humorist.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Looking back over the World Series from my rocking chair, I am glad Gabby Street does not manage a team in Chicago, where they fire you for winning a pennant, and drop you in Lake Michigan for losing four straight. Gabby has already got his autograph on next season's papers, so he can spend the winter just worrying over his mistakes.

Nick Altrock

Gabby once proved he had the toughest hands in the league when he caught a baseball dropped from the top of Washington Monument. Well, after the socking his Cardinals took from the A's, Gabby should now be able to catch a ball from the monument on the end of his chin.

The best of the season was Connie Mack worrying over Earnshaw. Before the tickets were even in the hands of the scalpers, Connie was yelping he had a little confidence in Bob Grove, but poor old Earnshaw had lost his stuff. In fact, Connie got seven more wrinkles, for a total of 160, fretting over George. Well, it didn't look to me like Earnshaw had lost his stuff. All he did was check it in a safe deposit vault. I get it from the official records that Earnshaw held the Cards scoreless for 22 innings. I am darned if I can see what Connie was getting nervous prostration about.

PLENTY OF CARBUNCLES

They say that Hallahan developed a blister in the first game he pitched, and then busted it on the closing day. But he should see the carbuncle that all the National League officials developed in the last four World Series from squirming in their seats.

As a matter of fact, a few more water blisters might have helped the Card pitchers out. You take Burleigh Grimes when he was delivering his spitter. It was breaking right until Burleigh's saliva resources went dry. If he had had a couple of water blisters on his fingers that he could bust, Burleigh might be still in there hurling his spitter now.

Grimes was the toughest-lucked player in the series outside of Bottomley. Sunny Jim must have got a corn on his shoulder, where his bat rested while the strikes were whizzing by. In 22 trips to the plate, Jim was lucky if he could even claim a foul. But Grimes pitched two games that were good enough to win almost any old ball game. I didn't quite see the second game he pitched because Umpire Rigler was behind the plate, and Cy is bigger than Paul Whiteman and his whole orchestra. But they tell me Grimes' record in that second game he dropped was just as good as in the first.

CARDS GET BONES

The whole trouble is that the A's in this series were getting a run for almost every hit they made. They were like the old lady that made a chicken dinner out of a hunk of veal and then had chicken salad the next day, and chicken croquettes the day after that. And finally she wound up with chicken hash.

Well, the A's swept through the whole series from chicken to hash, and all the Cards got were the bones. And they furnished those themselves.

SOTHORON UNDER KNIFE

MASTER MYSTERIES By ARTHUR HOERL

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Robin Dale goes to California to report on the case of Elsie Donahue. On the night of her wedding Elsie disappears after entering the house she had built and furnished as a new home. He interviews Roy Carroll, the husband. Elsie was last seen by Fred Wagner, a former suitor. Wagner ran after her toward the beach which fronts the house. The other wedding guests followed. Both Elsie and Wagner disappeared. A launch was heard leaving the small dock. Carroll thought his wife was going to their yacht. The launch was returned in a mysterious manner. Elsie never went near the yacht. Carroll believed his wife had run off with Wagner. The morning following Dale's interview the body of Elsie is washed up on shore. It has been in the water about 10 days. This coincides with the wedding date. Later, death is found to be due to strychnine poisoning. Fred Wagner was leaving his position. He was going to his home in St. Louis. Police are watching there without result.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER V

"Is it important?" Dale asked eagerly.

"Not very important, but interestin', to say the least. Elsie Carroll died without making a will. That bein' the case, her estate passes to the next of kin—meaning her husband, Roy Carroll."

"But it ain't a motive, Dale. Listen to this. Carroll has waived all right to the inheritance. Says he could scarcely be considered Elsie's husband, and refuses to accept any of the estate under the circumstances."

"What's going to happen to it?"

"He's going to do it legally, set the entire estate over to the mother and sister. One of the most decent things I ever been in contact with in this rotten old world."

Robin Dale stood at the window a long while before he spoke again. He wondered whether he should tell Franks what he had learned that day. Hildreth's statement still stood out in his mind.

"Sure we got strychnine here . . . got to keep arter the rats or they'll be arter you . . . yep. Fred knew where it was, used it often . . . what's strychnine got to do wi' his going off?"

That had been startling. The news he had just learned of Roy Carroll was quite as startling in an entirely different way.

Dale balanced all that he had learned during the last two days as he stood at the window. He decided to remain silent. He went back to the subject of the estate.

"What's going to happen at the Donahues? Any idea?"

"I went over today. The doctor's ordered Miss Louise an' the mother away, soon's it can be arranged. Wants them to take an ocean trip, preferably, to get away from scenes and people that'll remind them of the tragedy."

"What about Carroll?"

"He wanted to leave. There was quite a scene over it. The girl took it pretty badly—seemed to be frightened at bein' left all alone to face everything. Carroll was decent about that, too . . . he's going to stay until the affair is cleared up or until they leave like the doctor said."

"What plan are you following, Mr. Franks?"

Robin Dale smiled.

"Can you come to the hotel and have dinner with me tonight?"

There was a peculiar ring in Dale's voice. Franks looked up with a questioning gaze.

"Anything on your mind?"

"Come and eat with me. I get lonesome."

"Seven o'clock okay?"

"Seven o'clock."

It was close to the end of the meal before Robin Dale brought up the question that was uppermost in both their minds.

"I don't think you'll ever find Wagner," he said abruptly.

"Well, I'll be damned!" was all Franks could utter.

"And if you don't find Wagner you'll never find the answer to this riddle."

"That's better, Dale, but still a bit far-fetched. We know Wagner did it even if we never catch him. But we will!"

"What are you driving at, Dale?"

"Wagner is at the bottom of the ocean."

"How can you prove that?"

"I can't. You wouldn't believe me if I tried to explain why I believe that's the situation. But, will you try something that may sound silly?"

"Let's hear it."

"If what I think is true, there's one chance of dislodging the body. Tomorrow morning, at intervals of half a mile, set off dynamite within two miles of the shore."

"Sure we'd do that, if you'd give us a good reason."

"Circumstantial evidence is enough to hang people; intuition sends men around the world on goose chases . . . what will a few sticks of dynamite cost you?"

"There's nothing to lose, I guess. I'll feel like an ape if nothing happens, but even that won't be as bad as Sherid feels, the way the papers are raggin' him."

As early as 7 o'clock the following morning Dale heard the dull, distant detonations. The townspeople probably wondered what all the shooting was for. The explosions continued intermittently until late in the forenoon.

One of the peculiar results of Franks' procedure was the great number of small fish that were killed and came to the surface at each discharge. The vibrations the explosions set up in the water caused the lungs of the fish to collapse and death was instantaneous. The large fish were able to withstand the assault, but the smaller ones came popping to the surface like balloons released at the bottom of the sea.

It was practically this result which Robin Dale looked for if his surmise about Fred Wagner was correct. Any slight jarring, such as would be caused by the explosions, or even by a cannon fired above the surface of the water, might be sufficient to release the body where it was trapped. In its state of decomposition it would undoubtedly rise to the surface.

Alonzo Franks had arranged for a continuous patrol of the shore line at a distance of 10 miles north and south of Laguna. By the middle of the afternoon no result had been reported. He began to grow skeptical.

Dale spent the afternoon at headquarters. If anything, he was more nervous and excited by the experiment than Franks was. But he was careful to hide his anxiety in the event of failure.

At 4 o'clock the telephone rang. One of the guards stationed to the north of town was calling.

Something that might be the body of a man had been sighted some distance off shore, at a point five miles north of Laguna. In the grip of excitement Franks and Sherid and Dale set forth by car.

When they arrived at the designated spot the remains of Fred Wagner had been taken from the water and laid out on the short stretch of sandy beach.

GEORGIA TECH SQUAD HERE

ends; Highberger and Fletcher, tackles; Capt. Dreshar and Sample, guards; Ducanis, center, and McCurdy, Kavel, Eyth and Karcis in the backfield.

Bill Alexander isn't one of those chaps who gets set on a lineup a week or so, or even a day or so, in advance, but the chances are that the Jackets will accept the first challenge of the Tartans somewhat in this fashion:

Jones and Herron, ends; Maree and Speer, tackles; Brooke and Ezell, guards; Farmer, center, and MacArthur, Capt. Dunlap, Hart and Cain in the backfield.

The Georgia line is the club that may prove the undoing of Carnegie. Bulwarked at the tackles by Speer and Maree, the former an all-America tackle two years ago, and possessing both heft and speed, the forward wall of the Southerners is touted as being a forward wall of parts; indeed, of exceptional parts.

George Kavel, who'll be the only sophomore member of the Tech backfield, has shaped up so well in the games to date and in the practice sessions that he has been selected to hold down the starting job at right halfback. Such an honor for a sophomore must mean that the sophomore has the goods.

Music will be furnished tomorrow's engagement not only by Tech's highly colorful Kiltie Band, but by Katouch Post, American Legion, Fife and Drum Corps, of Greensburg. Five hundred Y. M. C. A. junior boys and the Davis-Elkins varsity gridiron squad will be guests of Graduate Manager Buddy Overend at the game. Besides, 3,500 members of the Westinghouse Clerks' Association will occupy two sections.

Panthers Leave

With no place to play, what with the Tartans tickets occupying all available space in the Stadium, Pitt's Panthers take to the road again, this time heading for Cleveland, where they'll meet Western Reserve tomorrow in what has turned out to be a very welcome breather.

Coach Sutherland's Panthers are not in the best of physical condition following the body beating they were served at Morgantown last week. The squad departs this evening at 5 o'clock, and upon their arrival in the Ohio metropolis, will be quartered at the Hotel Statler.

The coaches have shaken up the lineup no little for tomorrow's game. Eddie Schultz, the only gent on the squad who knows the difference between the Einstein theory and a head of cabbage, has been named to start at left end in the place of Jim MacMurdo, who's limping about on a cane with a trick knee. Rip Collins will go to bat at right end in place of Eddie Hirschberg, also sporting an injured knee. Quatsie and Tully will be back at the tackles, with Hart Morris and Ernie Lewis at the guards. Daugherty will start at center and the backfield will consist of Capt. Eddie Baker at quarterback, Hood at full and Josh Williams and Whitey Walinchus at the halves.

Jimmy Clark, the regular fullback, who hasn't been able to play yet this year, is to be called on for duty before the ball game goes along very far. Other replacement also will be in order, with the first stringers, especially those more or less hors-de-combat, to spend the most of the afternoon riding the splinters.

Night Battles

Charley Berry's Grove City Crimsons meet John Carroll in Cleveland in a struggle that promises to afford the Grovers the toughest test they have had to date. John Carroll, with Ralph Vince and Honey Guarino coaching the eleven, is coming like nobody's business. Win or lose, they'll give the Crimson a merry argument.

Davis-Elkins, back from a far from cheering invasion of North Dakota, takes a fling at Mt. Union at Alliance.

The Pitt freshmen open their season tomrrow night at Washington, D. C., meeting the George Washington University freshmen under the arc lights. This will be the first game for the Panther Cubs.

IMMIGRATION SUSPECT HELD

Giovanni Piccirilli, alias Salvatore Piccirilli, 45, Italian, of Pitcairn, alleged to have used the name of a dead brother in acquiring an immigration re-entry permit, was arrested yesterday on a federal warrant.

He was indicted last September by the federal grand jury at Erie. In default of $1,000 bond he was committed to jail.

He was alleged to have entered the country illegally in 1922, as a stowaway, landing at Boston, Mass. Later he was said to have made a trip to Europe, returning under a re-entry permit issued in the name of Salvatore Piccirilli, a brother who died in 1916.

THREE BRIDGES APPROVED

The county grand jury yesterday approved the building of three new bridges over Kilbuck Run, near Glenfield, to replace old spans. The body also sanctioned the spending of $266,400 for the improvement of the Elwyn road; $2,000 for the purchase of land for observation purposes on the new Ohio River boulevard; $395,600 for improving the Flaugherty Run road, Moon Township, and $218,000 for improving the Brandt School road, Franklin and Marshall Townships.

St. George Cadets Arrange Minstrel

A minstrel show will be presented October 28 and 29 by Company A, First Regiment, Knights of St. George Cadets, in St. Mary's auditorium, Nash and Lockhart streets, North Side.

Redecorate Court Room for Steel Suit Climax

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 18.—Court room No. 3, Mahoning County Court House, is being redecorated and refitted for conclusion of the suit against the Bethlehem-Sheet and Tube steel merger. Newton D. Baker and F. H. Wood will present oral arguments in behalf of the combine, and Luther Day and Harry Crawford, Cleveland attorneys, will argue against the consolidation. The arguments, to start October 20 before Judge David G. Jenkins, will end the trial, which lasted three months.

SCHOOL'S HEAT AROUSES UNION

Leo A. Green, secretary of the Steamfitters' Union, today said there was no danger of a strike over differences between the Board of Public Education and the steamfitters as to who should turn on the steam in the uncompleted addition to the Taylor Allderdice High School, Shady and Forward avenues, some of the rooms of which are in use. All the union asks, he said, was that an experienced steamfitter adjust the valves and be paid for time engaged and not by the day. The school engineer, who does not qualify in the eyes of the union, turned the heat on this morning in defiance of it.

Naughty Books Seized by U.S. Disappear

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP.)—Curious borrowers, willing lenders and insistent purchasers of books that have fallen into the Customs Bureau's category of forbidden literature are producing some interesting complications as an outgrowth of the obscene book controversy that stirred the Senate during the tariff debate.

Many of the books confiscated under the old law and which were loaned to various senators as exhibits in the tariff discussion have disappeared.

ARREST JEWEL THEFT SUSPECT

George Spach, 28, of Landsford, Pa., was held for court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court, accused of stealing an $800 diamond ring and a $200 bar pin from the Page home on May 21, 1929.

William Yanovich, 807 Cherry way, Braddock, said he was visited by Spach at the Page home, where Yanovitch was working, the day the gems disappeared. Later, Yanovitch said, he saw a woman relative wearing a large diamond ring which she said she had gotten from Spach by loaning him money. Spach today denied the theft, but said the ring had been in his possession. Failing to explain how he got it, he was held for trial.

Reichsbank Rate Raise Seen as Effort to Stop Gold Efflux.

An advance of 1 per cent in the discount rate of the German Reichsbank was the topic of no little discussion in New York financial circles. The posting of the 5 per cent rate marked the first change in the bank's charge since May 20, last, when it was reduced from 4½ to 4 per cent. To some it was an indication of an attempt to check flight of capital from Germany, but generally it was looked upon as intended to stop the flow of gold to France in progress during the past month. Both the Bank of England and the Bank of France this week showed their holdings of gold increased, the statements showing an increase of some $9,000,000 in the total of the British bank and of more than $2,000,000 in the French total.

German Republic 5½s, generally known as the reparations loan, rallied rather smartly yesterday afternoon following a further dip to new low levels earlier at 73¾. At Amsterdam the reparations loan was reported to have dipped to 69¼, in sympathy with the selling movement that developed on the Berlin Boerse on the news of the advance in the Reichsbank rate. The dollar bonds in New York were helped in a measure by the statement of Dr. Hialmar Schact, former president of the Reichsbank, who declared before the bond club at a luncheon here yesterday that "Germany would pay her obligations assumed since the war." Among these he included the loans outstanding under the Young plan.

Monthly figures of the association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, disclose marked improvement in the situation in the textile trade in New York. Among other things it is shown that production underwent sharp curtailment during the month of September. Production of standard cotton cloths for the month totaled 182,385,000 yards, as against sales of 291,980,000 yards, with shipments amounting to 232,975,000 yards. Stocks on hand as of September 30 were reduced to 392,405,000 yards from the figure of 442,996,000 yards on the first of the month. Unfilled orders stood at 285,427,000 yards the beginning of October an increase of 26 per cent compared with forward business reported a month ago.

Odd-lot investment buying has come into the market steadily for several weeks. In most instances, the purchasing prices have been placed under those prevailing, and reactions have resulted in the orders being filled. The significant feature of the demand has been that the stock has been paid for outright and taken away from Wall Street. The individual orders have been limited to small lots, but the aggregate has been rather large. Eventually, the effect of that purchasing will be felt in the strengthening of the technical position and the smaller floating supply.

Stop-loss orders have been helping reactions in the market. Several weeks ago, just prior to the beginning of the declining trend, a number of conservative observers strongly advocated that followers protect their accounts with stops. That policy was adopted and worked favorably for the holders of stocks on margin. Since that time, the tendency has grown to use stops as a safeguard against sudden breaks. Reaching the limits fixed frequently has increased the supply coming on the market.

Public utility shares have been meeting heavy selling. Part of the selling has been due to recent weekly reports showing decreases from the corresponding periods of last year in production. In some quarters, it is believed that investment trusts have been liquidating those stocks, although it is not the usual procedure for such holders to sell on a declining market. Interest in the utilities point out that the companies in the East are likely to benefit in the future from the rate at which railroad electrification is progressing in that territory.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Rally

Local Fuels Steady

STOCK PRICES' DIZZY DROP REVERSED

Rally Follows Decline In Which Great Volume Of Shares Are Dumped

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP.)—The blackest cloud of gloom Wall street has experienced since last November suddenly broke away to let in the sunlight today, as a dizzy decline in share prices was suddenly reversed just before 1 o'clock.

Selling poured into the market in enormous volume during the early hours of the session, but it was well taken until around midday, when sharp declines in stocks identified with the Harley Clarke interest, caused widespread alarm. These shares suddenly met strong and effective support, however, and rallied spectacularly.

FOX ERRATIC

Among the Clarke stocks identified in Wall street with Pynchon and Company, Fox Film dropped 9 points and regained its loss. Loews tumbled 10 and regained most of the decline. United Light A dropped 9 points to 20, but soon got back to 26. General Theaters Equipment tumbled nearly 8 points to 14½ before rallying. Industrial Rayon, which has been known as a Durant stock, tumbled 34 points to 31.

Elsewhere in the list losses of 2 to 5 points were numerous, but were sharply reduced. U. S. Steel touched a new low at 144½, and American Telephone at 192¾. Losses of 4 and 5 points in Eastman and Allied Chemical were converted into gains of 2 to 3.

The day's business news was dominated by the unfilled tonnage report for United States Steel as of September 30. While the report showed a drop of 155,866 tons to the lowest level in three years, the decline was moderate indeed in contrast to the drop of 441,851 in August, and although some optimistic observers had looked for little change, it was apparently small enough to discredit the loudest of the calamity howlers, for speculative spirits were immediately buoyed up. This helped to lay the foundation for the rally in the stock market an hour later.

SHARES DUMPED

The market as a whole, however, was governed by conditions within itself. Efforts to support it were of scant success during the morning, as the unsettling influences of yesterday's turbulent session still held the market in their grip. The sharp declines apparently necessitated wholesale dumping overboard of impaired marginal accounts. Furthermore, the failure of the market to meet more effective support at the low levels of last November apparently had caused much nervousness and considerable unreasoning liquidation of investment holdings. An increase in the floating supply of United States Steel of 22,765 shares between June 30 and September 30 indicated that this sort of liquidation had been in progress, although the increase was comparatively small.

The day's corporate news presented several bright spots. The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company reported a gain in dollar volume of September sales of more than 2 per cent, and a much larger gain in physical volume of sales, indicating that purchasers received about 10 per cent more per dollar. International Cement and American Chicle reported increased third quarter earnings. Paramount had a record nine months ending September 30. Sears Roebuck's sales for the September 11 to October 8 period, however, dropped 14½ per cent from last year. Call money continued firm at 2 per cent, indicating that commercial requirements for funds were taking up the recent slack in the money market.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 6 to 10 points under southern and local or commission house selling premoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, small domestic consumption figures and reports of increased hedging.

New December sold off to 10.21 at the start and March to 10.52, but the initial offerings were absorbed at these figures and prices steadied up a few points. At the end of the first half hour the most active positions were about 2 to 3 points net lower. A few additional notices were reported against the new October contract and that delivery sold off to 10.03, during the early trading or 8 points net lower.

Offerings were light after the early selling had been absorbed and the market turned firmer during the morning on covering which was supplemented by some commission house or local buying. New December sold up to 10.34c and March to 10.66c, making net advances of about 5 to 6 points on the more active positions with the market quiet and steady within 3 or 4 points of these figures at midday.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

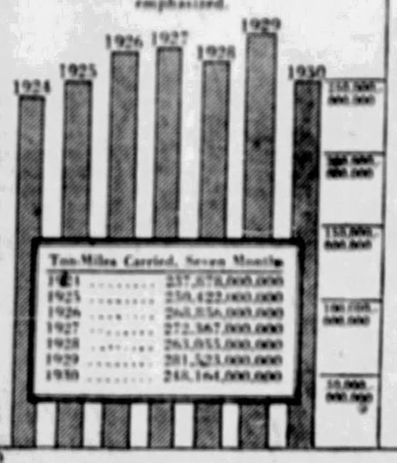
By FRELING FOSTER

Rail Freight and Street Cars Unharmed Materially by Depression and Motors

Chart shows the ton-miles of freight carried by the railroads of the United States during the first seven months of each year from 1924 through 1930; and the number of passengers carried by 212 identical electric railways in the first seven months of each year from 1925 through 1930. Sources: Bureau of Railway Economics and the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Ton-Miles of Freight

Ton-miles of freight carried is obviously a far truer index of railroad activity than car loadings. Ton-miles carried in the first seven months of 1930 were only 11.8% under the peak 1929, and only 5.4% under the six-year average from 1924 through 1929. This is not a bad record, considering the present depression and the increasing competition of motor trucks, both of which have been overemphasized.



Electric Railway Passengers

Number of passengers carried by 212 electric lines show a slight decline each year since 1926, due to the rapidly-growing use of the motor car and the independent bus service. However, these decreases are believed to be less than generally supposed. The number of passengers carried in the first seven months of 1930 is only 6.4% under 1929, despite the depression and the rapidly-growing bus business.

Forbes

Some Rays of Sunshine Are Here Reflected

By B. C. FORBES

AS THERE IS no lack of bad news, suppose this column today dwells upon good news?

B. C. Forbes

My barber tells me that, after many months of dullness, business lately has improved quite noticeably.

At the restaurant where I usually lunch, the owner reports a distinct increase in customers, a fact I had already noted.

Women friends say that more people are shopping. (Complaints are very numerous that assortments of goods are embarrassingly meager.)

FACTORY EMPLOYMENT in New York State increased some 2 per cent between mid-August and mid-September, the first gain since October of last year.

Procter & Gamble, soap manufacturers, have done more business in the last three months than they did a year ago—and made more money.

President Frank L. Dane, of the North American Company, reports an increase of better than 3 per cent in electric output in the last 12 months over the previous 12 months.

Vice President Frederick D. Corley, of Marshall, Field & Co., states:

"There is a vastly different atmosphere in wholesale merchandising circles than there was 30 days ago."

Ten-cent copper has stimulated very heavy buying both at home and abroad. The eagerness of foreign consumers to place contracts is regarded in the industry as especially significant.

In line with a gradually increasing number of chief executives, Frank T. Hulswit, head of the American Commonwealths Power Corporation, has issued instructions to operating heads to place orders for raw materials and other supplies for future requirements.

W. R. Kellogg, famous manufacturer of cereal foods, announces that his company is doing the greatest volume of business in its history. By switching from a six-day week to a five-day week, several hundred additional workers are to be employed. This company operates 24 hours a day.

Woolworth's and various other chain stores report gains in sales during recent weeks.

RADIO MANUFACTURERS have been increasing their working forces considerably—the increase in August over July by 44 manufacturers exceeded 25 per cent.

President Frank T. Tupper, of the National Business Show Company, states:

"Since the middle of August business in the office equipment field has been improving, and all indications point to a continuing increase in activities."

"Especially good showings are being made in the dairy products, package foods, soft drink and specialty baking fields. All things considered, the food group as a whole is one of the most fortunate of the industrial classifications this year."

President R. H. Whitehead, of the New Haven Clock Company, in announcing an alignment with Westinghouse to supply electric clocks, observes:

President Allen D. Gutchess, of the De Vilbiss Company, of Toledo, manufacturers of spray-painting and spray-finishing equipment for industrial plants:

"Our business has been satisfactory and apparently this is because forward-looking American industrial institutions are purchasing new, and and modernizing their present labor and money saving mechanical equipment with the idea in mind of lowering costs and speeding production."

THE BELL TELEPHONE system is going right ahead spending two million dollars and more every week-day on improvements and expansion, a rate of capital expenditure never before equaled by this or any other corporation.

Sales of electric appliances by utility companies are this year breaking all records.

THIS COUNTRY, it is well to remember at a time like this, never stays in the dumps very long. Capable leadership could change the whole complexion of things in quick order.

A. & P. Reports Large Gain in Sales

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

CHAIN STORE COMPANIES, following the records of previous periods of depressed business, have continued to maintain sales and earnings at a fairly high level. Stability in the volume of chain business is even more impressive at present that it was during 1920 and 1921 since most organizations have not been opening new stores at so rapid a pace. Ten years ago the chains still had large areas of virgin territory which they were developing while the expansion since that time has made nearly all areas highly competitive.

Lower prices for most types of merchandise have made it necessary for the chain stores to substantially increase the volume of their business in order to maintain their sales at totals in dollars equal to those of last year.

A. & P. Shows Gain

THE GREAT ATLANTIC and Pacific Tea Company has made an outstanding record during the preseent year. Each month has shown a gain in sales over the corresponding month of last year.

In September a business of $77,022,658 was transacted establishing a new high record for the month. This compares with $75,245,845 for the corresponding period of 1929 and is an increase of $1,776,813 or 2.36 per cent.

The actual quantity of goods sold was 378,627 tons compared with 336,309 tons for September of last year, a gain of 42,318 tons or 12.58 per cent.

Prices Decline

THE REDUCTIONS IN prices are indicated by the fact that Atlantic and Pacific received an average price of $203.43 per ton of goods sold during September. This compared with $223.74 a year ago. Last month consumers received 10 per cent more food for a dollar than they received a year ago.

Sales for the first nine months of the year ended September 30 were $800,168,990 compared with $750,945,000 for the corresponding period of the previous year, a gain of 6.55 per cent. Tonnage sales for the same period reached 3,860,144 compared with 3,449,067 in 1929, a gain of 11.92 per cent.

Pittsburgh Not Behind

IN REVIEWING THE business outlook in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium yesterday, Ralph B. Wilson, vice-president of the Babson Statistical Organization, did not make any extravagant predictions for the future. But he did state that Pittsburgh has fared somewhat better than other districts during the current depression.

In talking of Pittsburgh industries which have been working at higher rates than the general average he said:

"Steel pipe mills have continued active and labor in this industry has been fairly well employed, with indications that so far as this branch of the steel industry is concerned there is reason to anticipate encouraging conditions for the months immediately ahead at least. Employment in the electrical machinery and equipment plants can be described as satisfactory compared with the present status of industry in general; the booking of some large orders ought to help to steady employment for the immediate future. Plants manufacturing clay products, brick in particular, and fireproofing materials, have been reported as operating full time. The boat building industry has been a line which showed no appreciable let-up, and employment in the yards has been satisfactory on the whole. Many men have been given employment by several large construction projects, by state and county roadwork, and by municipal improvement."

Prescott Awarded Municipal Bonds

Prescott, Lyon & Co. have been awarded the following issues of Pennsylvania tax free municipal bonds—$13,000 Borough of Saxonburg, Butler County, Pa., 4½ per cent bonds, due serially October 1, 1935-1949, inclusive; $10,000 Borough of Mars, Butler County, Pa., 4½ per cent bonds, due serially September 1, 1935 to 1949, inclusive.

LOANS DECLINE $158,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve members banks for the week ending October 8, were announced by the Federal Reserve Board today as $2,965,000,000, representing a decrease of $158,000,000 as compared with the preceding week. The present total establishes a new low for 1930 for the second successive week, as well as a new low since July 30, 1927, when these loans totaled $3,059,000,000.

This compares with borrowings of $3,063,000,000 on October 1, this year, and $6,713,000,000 on October 9, 1929.

The high record for brokers' loans was established October 2, 1929, at $6,804,000,000, while the low record since publication of figures began in 1926, was established at $2,403,000,000 on May 19 of that year.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Mr. Pipp

Rawson always bellowed.

Mr. Adolphus Pipp, a wearened little man of around 50, slid noiselessly from his chair in the bookkeeping room and started for the outer office. He moved slowly, gently, almost timidly.

"Have to get in some young blood that can move—Oh, here you are."

Mr. Pipp was there, his heart beating with fear. He couldn't lose his job. He didn't have a dollar put away; he had spent it all caring for his mother in a home for the feeble. One can't do that and save, on a $20-a-week salary.

"Listen, Pipp," Rawson directed. "Hale is stuck on an estimate job out of town. There's a Mrs. Honora Haggerty—I'll bet she's no Swede," Rawson laughed again. He always laughed at his own form of wit. "Well, this Mrs. Haggerty's roof leaks. She wants a new roof. She wants us to tell her what it will cost. Go and find out."

"Yes, Mr. Rawson, but—but I never estimated for a roof and——"

"You can ask her what kind of a roof she wants, can't you? You can go up and measure her roof, it's a flat top house and you won't fall off—as if that would make the world come to an end—" more of Rawson laughing at Rawson's wit.

"Yes, Mr. Rawson."

Adolphus Frightened

Mr. Pipp moved away. Rawson stepped back into his private office. Mr. Pipp heard him say in his loud voice to his secretary, "Remind me to be on the lookout for a young bookkeeper, one who'll work cheap—Pipp's no good—too—"

He didn't hear the rest.

Mr. Adolphus went out, sick with fright. What would he do? To lose his job meant that his mother would be moved to a charitable institution. She would not think, any more, that her son was a prosperous business man, as she had thought for years, in her feeble way.

Mrs. Honora Haggerty's home was in a rather cheap district. It was a fairly large four-story brick house. A maid with a dirty apron and sudsy hands came to the door. Mr. Pipp tried to explain.

Mr. Pipp went into the dismal living room with its high ceiling, dark greasy paper, imitation marble fireplace and furniture that was pretty swell about the time the late Rutherford B. Hayes started growing a Smith Brothers beard.

He looked about, and, true to his timid nature, went over in a corner and sat on a low chair.

It was dark and gloomy in the corner. Mr. Pipp sat and worried. This would delay him terribly. Mr. Rawson would be sore and wouldn't listen to his explanation.

It seemed to him that he had waited hours. In reality it had been less than 15 minutes.

A young man breezed into the room. He hung his pearl gray derby jauntily over the back of a chair, hooked his imitation Malacca cane alongside of it, and sat down. He wore a loud checked suit and his tie was a glowing orange. He patted his plastered hair, adjusted his tie and proceeded to work over his nails with a pocket implement.

"Hello," she said, smiling at him.

The young man glanced up at her and resumed his work on his nails, without a word.

The girl was neatly but rather poorly dressed. She went over and sat down in front of the young man.

"I say, stop talking and give me a chance to say a word," she said.

Mr. Pipp thought the girl must be awfully stupid. The young man hadn't said a word. What could she mean?

The young man looked up slowly. He looked her over thoroughly and then he yawned.

Crazy Talk

"Woman," he said, "I never saw you before in my life—and I don't feel any better, now that I have seen you."

"Good looks sort of get you hot and bothered, what?"

"Whose good looks" she asked.

"Listen, Catherine the Great or Cleopatra or whoever you are, there's one good looker in this room right now. There are only two people in this room and you are a million miles from being good lookin'—now guess who?"

"Joe Zilch — get that? Joe Zilch."

"What do you mean, woman?"

"The only good looking man on earth is Joe Zilch—and there's no such a man as Joe Zilch and never was. Who are you?"

"Me? I'm Mr. Morgan's little boy. I just ran out to get change for a million dollar bill."

Mr. Pipp blinked rapidly and gripped his chair at this. The man, he decided, was crazy and probably dangerous.

"Mr. Morgan's little boy, eh? Office boy?"

"Listen, stupid, who are you and why did you blow in here? Can't you see I'm busy?"

"Busy at what?"

"Living."

"What do you want? Can the fresh lines and spill some sensible chatter.

"Aren't you Sam Forrester?"

"If I ain't, my people lied to me. How did you get hep to my moniker?"

"A bird told me."

"Ooooo! I'd do anything for a piece of ice like that," the girl cried, suddenly putting her arms about him.

Gets New Job

"How much is the ice worth, Sweet boy?"

"Ten thousand."

Mr. Pipp stretched his neck so much to see a piece of ice worth ten thousand that he fell out of the chair.

He hopped up instantly.

"Don't hug each other like that, you'll melt the ice and lose $10,000," he said when they had turned to see what made the noise. Mr. Pipp thought this was the best way to humor two crazy people.

They stood up and looked at him.

"You been here all the time?" the young man asked.

Mr. Pipp explained what he was there for and how it happened.

"Sam," cried the girl, "this will save our act or my name isn't Reba Russell—hire the old boy to do just as he done now—otherwise we'll flop, sure as hooting we'll flop. This is an awful act, but that old man will save it if he'll do just what he did now."

"Right, kid." Sam turned to Mr. Pipp.

"How much do you make, grandpop?" he asked.

"Twenty dollars, sir."

"We'll pay you $50 and traveling expenses."

"What must I do?"

"Just as you did now—we're in vaudeville, you know."

"I'd even go in vaudeville for $50 a week, my dears, I'd—I'd—"

"He's crying," Reba whispered.

He was, but not with sorrow.

Hospitals now grade nurses and give them merit marks for "imagination and sense of humor."

That may account for all the baby switching lately.

What hospitals need is patients with a sense of humor—people who know how to take a joke when the surgeon sews up forceps in their tummies.

(Tipton Herald)

"A little fast detective work was displayed here last week when P. A. Tocker escaped from the hospital. It seems that Tocker escaped about 4 a. m. and at 6 a. m. it was discovered. A policeman was immediately dispatched to arrest anyone on crutches. He reported later that he did not see anyone on crutches.

Increase in City Tax Next Year Threatened

Because tax collections have not come up to expectations, the city faces a deficit, which, it is said, will necessitate either an increase of one mill in the tax rate or a raise in property valuations. In either case property owners, already overburdened, will suffer.

Every effort must be made to save them from this additional burden. If the administration is unable itself to devise any method of averting the proposed increase, it should call into consultation representatives of the taxpayers and solicit their advice.

The Building Owners and Managers Association, the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and the Chamber of Commerce were leaders in the unsuccessful fight against the last tax increase. They may have some suggestions to offer, and should be invited to submit them.

The administration cannot be held entirely guiltless of responsibility for the present situation, because it has ignored some of the suggestions previously made for bettering the city's financial status. The Building Owners Association went to the trouble, for instance, of pointing out, specifically, how money could be saved in the management of municipal buildings and the city markets. Its recommendations were wholly or largely ignored.

In the long run the only satisfactory way of reducing the tax burden on real estate will be found to lie in finding new sources of revenue. Nothing can be done at this time, in all probability, that will immediately add any appreciable sum to the city's income. But an insistent demand for relief should be presented to the Legislature next winter.

Atterbury Resigns as National Committeeman

W. W. Atterbury has done the honorable thing in resigning from the Republican National Committee. Since he is unwilling to support Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for governor, it is but right that he should withdraw from the party.

Atterbury's resignation is just another example of how lightly the old shibboleth of "party regularity" is regarded. Much is being made by Pinchot's opponents of the fact that he once deserted the Republican party, but the same thing could have been said about his chief opponent in the primary, Francis Shunk Brown, Gen. Atterbury's candidate, who was at one time a Democrat.

The fact is that in the present fight party labels do not mean much. While Republican leaders of the Philadelphia gang are supporting John M. Hemphill, the Democratic candidate, some of the outstanding leaders of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania, notably Vance McCormick and John McSparran, both formerly Democratic candidates for governor, are for Pinchot.

As the candidate of the Philadelphia Republican organization, Hemphill will lose many normally Democratic votes, especially in the rural counties. The only question is, which stands to gain by this swapping of votes, Hemphill or Pinchot?

Increasing Cost of Running the State

The Department of Commerce issued today an analysis of financial statistics of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1929. It reveals some interesting things of which most Pennsylvanians had, perhaps, been only dimly aware.

Most striking is the revelation that the cost of running the state government is now, per capita, three times as great as it was 12 years ago. The payments for operation and maintenance of the general departments amounted to $10.41 per capita in 1929, as compared with $3.32 in 1917. The state's net indebtedness last year was $8.92 per capita, as against only six cents in 1917.

The building and maintenance of highways accounts in considerable part for the increase. But we are spending more for education and other things worth while. It may be said, in a word, that the standard of living has risen in Pennsylvania.

While a tripling in 12 years of the cost per capita of running the state government is calculated to make the citizens thoughtful, there is satisfaction in the thought that we have been able to pay for all these improvements.

Danger in Disturbing The Balance of Nature

The State Game Commission will pay a bounty of $5 for every goshawk killed between November 1 and May 1. In announcing the offer it urges hunters to spare harmless hawks, and describes goshawks in some detail, so that no mistake may be made.

The appeal to spare other hawks is interesting, because it shows appreciation of some important biological facts that have been learned in recent years.

Once Pennsylvania paid a bounty on all hawks. They were predatory birds, which fed on other birds, chickens and small game—so it was argued—and it would be best to exterminate them. There was an enormous slaughter of hawks—and then farmers started to complain of a plague of mice. The balance of nature had been disturbed, and the mice, freed of their feathered foes, multiplied rapidly.

The bounty was repealed, and has been renewed in the case of the goshawks only, because they are large winter visitors which prey very heavily on grouse and rabbits.

The United States Biological Survey has proved by examination of the stomach contents of many thousands of birds and animals commonly regarded as harmful that some of them more than repay for their destruction of useful things by their warfare on pests.

The Trail of Progress

By Nelson Harding

Countless wrecks and gallant victims,
Countless losses and disasters
Mark the path of human progress,
As we trace it through the ages.

Still the pioneering spirit
Not disheartened, nor discouraged
By its early tragic failures,
Carries on to final triumph.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

III.—The Origin of Life.

The one distinguishing feature of living matter is its capacity for self-reproduction. But the chemist can tell us of numerous chemical reactions which, given proper conditions, are self-continuing in the same way; the only difference is that the chemical transformations of life can reproduce themselves over a wider range of outer conditions than can any of those lifeless reactions.

Let us also remember that the state of not-living matter which we meet with in our earth's crust is altogether exceptional. In the first place, the physicists are finding out that matter and radiation are up to a point interchangeable, both aspects of a single physical reality.

H. G. Wells

The main quantity of this reality does not even exist in the form of matter at all, but of intangible radiation streaming in all directions through space.

When we come to matter, the great bulk of it is in the unbelievably hot interiors of stars, and here, as Eddington tells us in his "Stars and Atoms," exists for the most part in the form not of atoms as we know them, but of what he calls "unclothed atoms," with their rings of electrons stripped off.

Even at the surfaces of most stars, matter is so hot that atoms can never stay combined.

And, as L. J. Henderson points out in his book, "The Fitness of the Environment," most of the substances familiar to us on earth can only be formed once liquid water is there to act as chemical go-between in the task of building them up—and liquid water can only exist in a very few and isolated spots in the whole universe.

Matter in the form of naked atom-nuclei and free galabout electrons—the commonest state; matter in the form of atoms; matter in the form of simple compounds; matter in the form of the special compounds that need water for their formation—a rare state; matter in the form of the self-reproducing and very complex units that we call alive—it seems to be a continuous series, each term in it coming inevitably into existence as the conditions in the cosmic test-tube dictate.

In any case, the great majority of biologists agree in thinking that probably all the life upon the earth had its origin from the matter of the earth at a definite time in the earth's history. Where opinions differ is as to the form in which this primordial living-matter appeared.

Some biologists, like Ray Lankester, have suggested that the conditions were such as to call forth sheets and blobs of protoplasm-like substance, some of which just failed of self-reproduction and lost life, but served as food for the one or the few which could be called actually alive.

Others have supposed that the earliest life was plant-life in its nutrition, either equipped with chlorophyll from the start, or, like many modern bacteria, capable of living on air and salts and water without being green.

However, of late years, two discoveries have been made which seem to shed light on the problem, and suggest a third solution. One is the fact that light, even without chlorophyll to act as a transformer, can effect various chemical syntheses.

Under the influence of light, small quantities of sugars and other organic substances, some of them nitrogen-containing, are generated from a mixture of such simple substances as water, carbon dioxide and ammonia, as Prof. Baly, of Liverpool, has experimentally shown.

Such substances are presumably being manufactured today in sea-water, but in much smaller quantities. For it is the ultra-violet waves of light which are active in this chemical transformation, and most of them are stopped in our present day atmosphere by the oxygen in it. In those primeval times, the oxygen-content of the atmosphere was certainly lower, perhaps almost absent, and so the light could get to work to some purpose.

AIRPLANE OR DIRIGIBLE?

By Archibald Henderson

A great contest is now on between two types of aircraft for transoceanic flight. The problem is not one of possibility but one of practicability. The list of aviators who have crossed the Atlantic in both airplane and dirigible is long and imposing. The thing can be done, whether by Lindbergh alone carrying less than one and a half tons of gasoline in the Spirit of St. Louis or by Coste and Bellonte carrying four and a half tons of fuel in the Question Mark.

These and the flights of Byrd, Chamberlain, Von Gronau and others set up a new kind of question mark: Does it pay? Can trans-Atlantic flight be placed on a commercial basis? Will transoceanic flight be employed any time soon for regular travel or even for mail transport? Or will it continue to be a colossal sporting stunt, greeted with uproarious but meaningless enthusiasm by gaping thousands?

Certainly the flight of Coste and Bellonte was a practical achievement from the scientific point of view. These men were accustomed to make excessively long non-stop flights. They hold the record for the longest non-stop flight ever made, from Paris to Tsitsihar in Manchuria, only sixty miles short of 5,000. Every conceivable preparation for their recent East to West trans-Atlantic flight was made, which science could suggest. Their plane, long since proved in many a long and difficult flight, had met in advance every test. The plane carried every scientific device of value known to aviators. They landed precisely at the destination set in advance. Science was fully justified in this beautiful, this virtually perfect flight.

The question which the flight of Coste and Bellonte raises is the inevitable inquiry: Is the airplane superior to the dirigible for long flights of this sort? Can transoceanic flight become an economic factor in transport by the use of the airplane, without aerodrome, floating in mid-ocean, for stops on route? Is not speed a vital factor in the situation—a speed which the dirigible, in its present state, cannot attain?

Perhaps the greatest factor of all, from the economic standpoint, its cost. It is true that the dirigible is safe and steady. But it is greatly retarded in flight by adverse winds. Indeed, these may be so heavy as to cause the dirigible to exceed in speed by but little an ocean liner. But the cost factor is an even severer handicap to the dirigible. This involves a huge outlay, of many millions of dollars, not only for the dirigible itself but the essential hangar.

The day of huge airplanes is dawning. A huge plane like the DO-X may solve the problem of economic availability. The airplane which can continue to remain aloft and travel at high speed, even after two or three of its motors have gone dead, is the type of aircraft, it would seem, which will win the long drawn out contest now on.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Dr. Joseph Collins, famous author, says: "The greatest contribution of this age to civilization is the destruction of the sex bogy."

Maybe. But I also admit that the silliest contribution of this age to civilization is the sex ballyhoo.

It is undoubtedly bad to fear sex, ignore sex, repress sex and act as if it were the smuttiest subject on earth. But it is equally bad to act as if it were the smartest, and exploit it above every other topic of human interest.

When you 'n' me and Mary and Bill were kids, back in the Nasty-nice Nineties, we had a quaint amusement. Whenever we felt particularly daredevilish, we'd sneak out and write a Dirty Word on the back wall of the barn, or other public utility. Having done this we felt just like Ajax defying the lightning.

Now, according to Dr. Collins, this desire to paste-society-one-in-the-snoot by writing a Dirty Word, was due to the unhealthy repression of sex expression. But 30 years have passed. And now we can express sex all over the lot. But has that assuaged our desire to deal in Dirty Words? Has it allayed our lascivious snickers and given us that nonchalant indifference toward sex which should come with full knowledge and freedom? I'll say it hasn't! We no longer, it is true, need say it in secret. We can speak right up in the sitting room and talk as dirty as we please, provided we use nice, ritzy words. BUT WE STILL LOOK AND FEEL AS IF WE WERE WRITING THAT BAD WORD, BACK ON THE OLD BARN WALL.

Perhaps we've destroyed the sex bogy, as the wise doctor says. But my personal hunch is that we've just dragged it out of the shrubbery, and made it a free-for-all.

Now I've nothing to say against sex, per se. It's a grand institution, and life would be pretty flat without it. And since God invented it, humans should undoubtedly learn about it—which any alert student can do in a remarkably brief period. But, having learned, I protest that we should lay off and think about something else, once in a while. It's well enough to take sex off the barn wall. But does that necessarily imply that it should be installed in the living room, to the exclusion of all the other 563,874,239 topics of human interest?

There is an even greater side to this picture. In ceasing to be a bogy, sex has become a cult. There was a time when the exploitation of physical charms was taboo among women of refinement. Now every female between the ages of 9 and 90 firmly believes that a husband's faithfulness depends entirely upon his wife's S. A. . . . and proceeds to bend all her energies to the development of the same. But S. A.—as our divorce records prove—is the most unreliable of bonds between a man and a woman. For if you have S. A., sister, it's a cinch that some other lady will have it even better, and if that's your only way of holding a man you're certainly out of luck.

As a matter of fact, a good sense of humor, a neat hand at waffles and a willingness to go on fishing trips will hold a husband longer and harder than all the come-hither that ever was invented. But who wants to believe sense with all this smart talk flying around?

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a woman that had a cook, and she was afraid to bawl the cook out too much for fear she'd have to do some cooking her own self. Still, she couldn't keep still all the time. So she says one day:

"Gertie, I'll have to tell you something that's very important. My husband complained this morning that his eggs was cold and not half cooked, and his pancakes was cold and soggy, and his coffee was cold and weak, and the rolls were stale."

"Well, say," says Gertie, "you maybe think that's bad! But Lord bless your soul, after you've been married to him 20 years, like I been to my man, you'll get used to it! Don't pay no attention to him, I says!"

Waiting

Life can still be happy,
Though our pleasures are Set within the distance,
Like a shining star,
If through all our waiting
For a joy remote
Perfect trust and faith still Sound a silver note.

He who counts his treasures
Ere they come to pass,
Wise folks say, would garner
Shadows from the grass.
Yet who knows but faith may
Help those joys to grow,
Like the urge that wakes the Violets under snow?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Thoughts while strolling: The clump of feet over those temporary elevated sidewalks. Like the clatter of sabots on cobblestone. Women who part hair in the sleek Grecian manner, attend high-brow lectures, get cock-eyed in Harlem night clubs. And think "Lysistrata" is art instead of a filthy play.

Theodore Dreiser, a Terre Haute (Ind.) boy, who made good in the city. Do radio performers have to wear sideburns? Fluttery quick-talking flappers eternally glancing in mirrors. Col. Joseph Hartfield, the lawyer. The window mannikin parades in upstairs gown shops certainly tie up traffic.

John N. Wheeler's Panama and brief case. Those freshly barbered gamblers with white rayon shirts and pungent scents of cologne. The East Fifty-fourth street blind pig owner who is a fashion plate. Pastel shaded suits with lapel flowers to match, the very idear! Tush and Tutt, sign painters.

Somebody should tell the captivating Irene Bordoni never to take a high note. Ladies who walk alone slowly—until they pick up someone. No. 16 Park avenue where the Courtney Coopers hang out. The silk district. Agencies supplying French maids and English butlers by the hour for those aching to put on the lug.

Union Square looks natty again. But it is a public park and should be for children and peaceful citizens instead of wild-eyed agitators. Viola Brothers Shore—a writer with a pretty name. Why does time disintegrate so many friendships? Medical students with peaked goatees.

The grand all-glass-and-aluminum book cases. Old Faro Pete is a rheumatic corner newsdealer. What's blind stitching? An euphonious name: Karletta Klomski Kapetta. Electric fixtures go modern, too. The timorous sunshine of Indian summer and the silvery haze that hangs over the town.

Fat cops in roaming cars searching for unmuzzled dogs. But the big police dogs are never bothered. You could take the eyebrows of Irvin Cobb, Ring Lardner and J. M. Flagg and stuff a fair-sized mattress. And the ears of O. O. McIntyre and sail a boat.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Many parents are learning the sad lesson that it is unwise to give their children their home and other property before their death.

Of course this is done with the understanding that the children are to care for them, and the children may be honest in their desire to do the right thing.

But, when they are married, they cannot always carry out their plans.

The husband or the wife may object to having the old people in the home.

The number of cases where such arrangement is agreeable to all is far in the minority, which is too bad.

And sometimes it is found that, when everything that may be expected has been procured, the children forget the terms of the bargain.

Elderly people should retain their possessions.

If they desire to assist, want to pay their way, for instance, in the home of any particular child, a certain sum each month should be agreed upon.

This plan, with the understanding that the children will receive what is left, may be found agreeable to all, and has worked out satisfactorily in many cases.

But there are many sad instances where parents have given all to the children only to find themselves out in the cold and unwanted. Often this is due to the married partner, who has shared with the children as long as there was anything to divide and forgets obligations when the property is gone.
